METALS.—COPPER—Ingot has found scarcely any sale outside the ordinary trade call and business was at times quite stupid. Supplies, however, are so situated as to prevent pressure to realize and holders remain quite steady in most instances. We quote at 14c for ordinary brands, up to 14⅞@15c. for Lake. Manufactured in good average demand, but offered plentifully and rates remain easy. We quote as follows: Brazier's Copper, ordinary size, over 16 oz. per sq. foot, 26c. per lb; do. do., 16 oz. and over 12 oz. per sq. foot, 28c. per lb.; do. do., 10 and 12 oz. per sq. foot, 30c. per lb.; do., do., lighter than 10 oz. per sq foot, 32c. per lb; circles less than 24 inches in diameter, 28c. per lb.; 24 inches in diameter and over, 31c per lb.; segment and pattern sheets, 28c. per lb; locomotive fire-box sheets, 26c. per lb.; Sheathing Copper, over 12 oz. per sq. foot, 24c. per lb., and Bolt Copper, 26c. per lb. IRON—Scotch Pig was at no time of late in very good demand, and, while the rather moderate accumulation of stock on hand induces a steady holding, parcels to arrive have been offered at a concession. We quote at $22.00@23 00 per ton, according to brand. American pig has ruled rather quiet, most of the large customers being well supplied and bidding carefully. Holders, however, retain good faith and offerings are made only under a full limit of valuation. We quote $20.00@21.50 per ton for No. 1 X foundry, $19.00@20.00 for No. 2 X do. do., and $ 8.00@19.00 for gray forge. Rails have been less active and, while a few small orders may still be found, they are not stimulating in character. Most of the mills are busy on contracts quoted at $34.00@35.00 per ton, according to delivery. Old Rails, Scrap, etc., continued in erratic demand but seldom reached a point of positive animation and the general run of prices is only barely maintained We quote at $20 50 @22 0 for tee rails, $21.00@25.50 for double heads, $22 00@22.50 for No. 1 wrought scrap ex ship, $ 3.50@24.00 for selected do., $18.00@19.00 for old car wheels, and $22.00@23.00 for crop ends. Manufactured iron has secured some little attention, but not enough to create any animation and the general run of prices remains about as before, though some shading would be made to hasten trade into more encouraging form. We quote Common Merchant Bar, ordinary sizes, at 2[illegible]@2.5c. from store, and Refined at 2 4@4c; wrought beams at 3 5@3 6c Fish plates quoted at 3[illegible]@3.1c.; track bolts and nuts, 3¼@3½c; railway spikes, 3@3½c.; tank, 3@3½c; angle, 2 5@2.7c.; best flange, 4¼@4½c; and domestic sheet on the basis of 3¾@3⅞c for common Nos. 10@16 Other descriptions at corresponding prices, with 1-10c. less on large lots from cars. LEAD—Domestic Pig has continued to weaken under neglect and an accumulating supply and prices are off generally with some appearance of anxiety on the part of a portion of the holders. On the other hand, however the low cost attracts attention and one or two buyers are thought to be half inclined to invest with some liberality. We quote at about 3¾@3⅞c. per lb., according to brand and the size of invoice handled. The manufactures of lead are steady and quoted: Bar, 6c.; Pipe, 6¾c.; and Sheet, 7¼c., less the usual discount to the trade; and Tin-lined pipe, 15c.; block tin Pipe, 45c., on same terms. TIN—Pig has had a somewhat irregular market under the influence of the speculative element manipulating the position. The actual demand for consumption, however, proved quite moderate, and buyers who would put stock to actual use were quite sure to secure some favors. We quote at 18½@18⅞ for Straits and Australian. 20@20¼ for English, and 20½@20⅝ for Banca. Tin plates have continued in buyers' favor on round full invoices, owing to the light uncertain demand, but on the jobbing distribution there has been a fair movement, and as a rule at very good prices. Stocks are ample at the moment. We quote I. C. Charcoal, third class assortment, $5.30@5.35 for Allaway grade, and $6.10@6.20 for Melyn grade; for each additional X add $1.25 and $1.50 respectively; I. C. Coke, $4.70@4.75 for B. V. Grade; $4 87½@4 90 for J. B. grade; Charcoal terne, $4 85@5.15 for Alaway and Dean grades 14x20; $10.12@10 37½ for 20x28; Coke terne, $4.55@4.60 for Glais grade 14x20, and $9.55@9.60 for do. 20x28—all in round lots. Spelter has undergone little or no change, a moderately active demand taking out about the average quantity of stock and at former cost. We quote at 5½@5¾c. for domestic and foreign, according to brand, quantity, etc. Sheet Zinc selling moderately with a fair quantity of stock offering and former rates current. Quoted at 6@7c., according to quantity, quality, delivery, etc.

NAILS.—The course of business continues to follow out about the old line, and there is really not much new to advise. Holders seem to think quite as well of the situation as ever and are offering merely stock enough to satisfy the developed outlet, while production is kept down and that serves as a partial support. The quotations are made without any reference to or guide from the so called list rates and may be placed at $2 60@2.70 for 10d to 6 d., according to quantity, the outside rate a trifle extreme.

PAINTS AND OILS.—Demand has been fair, and a little fuller if anything from one or two points, for standard assortments of paints, etc., and there is just so much more of encouragement expressed by sellers. No positive activity was reached, however, and most customers indicated a determination to adhere closely to the hand-to-mouth policy in all dealings, unless consumptive prospects materially improve. Linseed Oil selling steadily and supporting former values, with quotations placed at 56@58c for domestic and 58@59c. for foreign. Spirits Turpentine has been moderately active and a shade steadier at 34½@36c. per gallon, according to size of invoice.

PITCH AND TAR.—The movement slow and principally toward usual outlets, and as no special strengthening of values takes place, sellers complain somewhat over the condition of trade. We quote pitch $2 25 @2.30 per bbl, and tar $2 50@3.00 do., according to quantity, quality and delivery.

JUDGMENTS.

In these lists of judgments the names alphabetically arranged, and which are first on each line, are those of the judgment debtor. The letter (D) means judgment for deficiency. (*) means not summoned. (†) signifies that the first name is fictitious, real name being unknown. Judgments entered during the week, and satisfied before day of publication, do not appear in this column but in list of Satisfied Judgments.

THE RECORD AND GUIDE.

191 Broadway, N. Y.

TERMS:

ONE YEAR, in advance, SIX DOLLARS.

C. W. SWEET, 191 Broadway.

J. T. LINDSEY, Business Manager.

FEBRUARY 16, 1884.

There is no sense in the raid on the so-called bucket shops. What would kill them effectually would be to allow dealings in ten share lots, as on the London Stock Exchange. If this were done the business of the Stock Exchange would at once be largely augmented.

The Cotton Exchange now permits its brokers to make what terms they please in the way of commissions and interest with their customers. Why not free trade at all the exchanges? The Stock Exchange brokers are complaining at the absence of the public from their offices. May it not be that the outsiders think $25 too large a commission for buying and selling a hundred shares of stock, and regard it as extortion when asked to pay 6 per cent. for the loan of money when the brokers borrow it for 2 per cent.?

For years past THE RECORD AND GUIDE has been advocating responsible local government. We have shown time and again that there was no hope for the reform of our local government unless the Mayor had authority to appoint and dismiss heads of departments without reference to the Board of Aldermen. We have shown that the source of nearly all our governmental woes was the unchecked authority of irresponsible legislators and Boards of Aldermen, and that the proper corrective was an exaltation of executive powers so that the public would know whom to blame if things went wrong. The programme so long ago outlined in this paper has worked well in Brooklyn, and an attempt is now earnestly making to confer upon the Mayor of New York the same authority which was given to the Mayor of Brooklyn. It may fail this session, but it will certainly succeed next year, as it is the only way out of our municipal troubles. It is gratifying to note that an influential section of the daily press has come round to our view of this matter, and the meeting at Cooper Union on Thursday night shows that our best citizens are all agreed as to the desirability of withdrawing the confirming power from the Board of Aldermen. Of course some check should be put upon the Mayor. If tyrannical and corrupt, the Governor might be given power to interfere, but the present system is simply intolerable. We say aye to Mr. Rosevelt's amendments to the charter.

The bi-metallists would probably be quite willing to agree to the stoppage of the coinage of the silver dollar if Senator McPherson's financial measure was endorsed by Congress. The aim of that bill is to utilize all the gold and silver bullion of the country for currency purposes. Bars of gold or silver could, under the proposed enactment, be taken to the mints and stamped, and certificates issued representing their money value; but the certificates are not to be issued in excess of five million per month. The dispatch summarizing this bill in the daily papers was made by some ignorant press agent and is very confusing, for he speaks of dollars when he means bars, and while he gives the fineness and weight of the gold dollar he does not tell what ratio it shall bear to the silver also to be stamped. This is, of course, the vital matter at issue. If the bullion is stamped at the same ratio that now exists between the American gold and the standard silver dollar, the silver men and bi-metallists will not object. Should this bill pass we will have the most perfect currency on earth, for every certificate issued will represent the amount on its face of actual gold and silver in the Treasury. There will then be no need for national bank bills, or for making any provision for continuing them, in view of the absolutely perfect currency, representing gold and silver, which will in time replace them. A national bank bill represents credits mainly; first that of the bank which issues them, then that of the government whose evidences of debt insure the ultimate redemption. But we fear Senator McPherson's bill is too sensible a measure to pass. Already some of the singularly misinformed writers of the New York press are talking of these bullion certificates as being a paper inflation, to which they have no more resemblance than a warehouse receipt or a ticket to a place of amusement.

Terra Cotta in Architecture.

A visit to the works of the Perth Amboy Terra Cotta Company is of extreme interest to all students of architecture. It is of especial interest as showing, young as the industry is in this country, how far the enterprise and skill of the manufacturers have outrun the ability of the designers, and how far the capabilities of the material are in advance of the power of the architects to make a good use of it.

In sculptural decoration the museum of the works is of high artistic interest. This it owes mainly to the work of Mr. Mora, an artist in decorative sculpture of the most thorough Italian training and of the very first rank. His most successful works hitherto have been the quaint and charming reliefs in the panels in front of the Metropolitan Opera House. These cannot be in the least appreciated in their places. The grace and freedom even of the general composition can hardly be perceived, while the skill and expressiveness of the modelling of detail are entirely thrown away upon the spectator. The best impression of these beautiful works which the public has had a chance of receiving is that given by the admirable engravings of them published in the November number of Harper's Magazine. But even these do not do the original complete justice, as one sees when he finds in the collection at Perth Amboy duplicates, which have been injured in firing, of one or two of the panels. One or two of Mr. Mora's assistants are only inferior to him in decorative work, although the works to which we have referred are really works too ideal to come within the category of decorative sculpture. A mantelpiece, designed for one of the stations of the Pennsylvania Railroad, now in the modelling room, is an exquisite piece of decoration in Italian Renaissance, the delicacy of which would be destroyed if it were to be cut in sandstone by an ordinary, or even an extraordinary, workman, but being fixed by baking as it is modelled it is sure of retaining the grace of detail which nothing but the actual handiwork of the artist can give.

This is the great advantage of decoration in terra cotta. The range of its application in architecture is immense. Its limitations, although rigid, are not numerous. The capabilities and the limitations have both been pointed out with justice and intelligence by the author of two articles in the London Builder, but it does not seem that either the capabilities or the limitations have been at all appreciated by the great number of architects who have introduced it in their work. In the huge Produce Exchange, the most important work thus far done here in terra cotta, the capacities of the material are both negatively and positively disregarded. We think we are within bounds in saying that, with the exception of the slabs that cover the girders over the basement and which, to the eye, are absolutely unaccountable, there is not from top to bottom, or from end to end, a detail which is designed for its material, one from which in a drawing or a photograph the spectators could confidently pronounce that it was made of baked clay. This is what we call a negative disregard of the properties of the material, a failure to secure its advantages by a characteristic treatment. Of a positive disregard the huge cornice is an example. A cornice of great projection can be made of shelves of stone overlapping each other, and cannot be made of pieces of baked clay, though it may be imitated by hanging pieces of baked clay over the outer walls on poles or iron cantilevers. This is really the most important restriction in the use of terra cotta, and this is defied in the Produce Exchange by a cornice of terra cotta which would be gross in stone. The design is a design for brick and stone, not translated into terra cotta, but merely imitated in terra cotta.

The restrictions of terra cotta arise from the processes of its preparation. The size of the pieces is limited by the necessity of thorough and equal firing, and their shape and employment by the liability to shrinkage and to torsion. These amount to one thing, the liability to unequal shrinkage, by which distortion is produced. The shrinkage in the bulk of the wet clay, which is modelled by hand or pressed in the mould, to the baked clay which comes out of the kiln, is roughly put at one-twelfth. Most of this takes place in the drying-room before the clay goes into the kiln, but there is contractibility enough left to constitute a liability to slight deformations and deflections of line. It follows that continuous straight lines should be avoided in large pieces of terra cotta. But nothing is commoner in designs meant to be executed in terra cotta than long, straight and narrow mouldings by which the designer so far shows his ignorance of his material as to provide a measure by which its deviations, trifling in themselves, may be estimated and exaggerated. When mouldings of high and complicated profiles are employed, it is desirable, evidently, to subdivide them horizontally into small sections, in each of which the shrinkage is inconsiderable. It is better still to avoid them, and to interrupt the mouldings so as to make them recurrent instead of continuous. This is exemplified very effectively in the main station of the Pennsylvania Railroad, in Philadelphia, a building in which the treatment of the material is uniformly, though not invariably, admirable, by the interruption, every few courses, of the moulding of the jambs with courses of reeded bricks, so that the eye does not detect the irregularities.

This building of Messrs. Wilson in Philadelphia, and Messrs. Kimball & Wisedell's Casino in New York, are the only extensive examples we recall in this country of what can properly be called design in terra cotta, out of the innumerable multitude of buildings in which terra cotta has been employed. The lines of the horse-shoe arch, or rather the modes of constructing that arch employed in the Casino, are especially favorable to terra cotta by dissembling slight irregularities of form. The terra cotta used there is made in Boston. It is of an excellent color, which is made yet more effective through the treatment of surface adopted by the architects, a series of parallel lines, like tooling in stonework, giving a very satisfactory sense of texture, and the color is much helped by the judicious contrasting of it with that of the Croton and Collaberg brick which has been used in the walls. The main defect in the architectural treatment of the material in the Philadelphia station is that the surface of the terra cotta in that excellent building is left smooth, while it is used in conjunction with Philadelphia pressed brick. The effect is so far unpleasant.

Another mode of roughening the surface, and one perhaps even more appropriate to the material, is that employed in the detail of a large railway station in Chicago, of which Mr. C. L. W. Eidlitz is the architect, many specimens of which are now to be seen in the modelling-room or the moulding-room at Perth Amboy. The plane surfaces are gone over with random strokes of a coarse saw, forming a surface which has evidently been wrought while it was still highly plastic. This detail, by the way, is capital in design, bold and vigorous, well divided and sharply "punched" with shadows, and if it has been as well thought out in adjustment to its place as it has in itself, and if the general design is as good as the detail, it will make the new building a very valuable acquisition to the architecture of Chicago. In this detail full advantage has been taken of the extreme plasticity of the material to do what cannot be done in stone, or cannot be done so cheaply. When one sees what the possibilities of architectural modelling in terra cotta are, it is plain that young as is the manufacture it is mature compared with the art of using it. We may yet see in buildings the actual handiwork of such architects as are able and willing to acquire the art of modelling, whereas in stone the design has to be translated in turn by a draughtsman and by a stone cutter before it is seen in execution. And it is to be noted that the fact that a continuous ornament is commonly impressed by a mould need not affect the quality of the product as an original work of art, since every piece can be retouched by the artist as it comes from the mould, and variations of detail made in each, if it is desirable to make them, without impairing the unity of the design. The opportunity thus offered to artistic architects is so great that it will be surprising if modelling by architects of their own decoration in terra cotta does not become common.

The more we consider the capabilities of the material the more it seems as if thus far nothing had been done in it. Instead of studying to see what can be done in it, most architects seem merely to inquire, after they have produced a drawing, how much less it will cost to do it in terra cotta than in stone. On the other hand freedom without training is more dangerous in proportion to the plasticity of the material, which means the superior facilities it affords an incompetent architect for making a fool of himself. In this point of view it is perhaps well for many architects that it has not occurred to them that they can do in terra cotta what they cannot do in stone. They can also do in stone, we may repeat, what they cannot do in terra cotta. An architecture of baked clay is properly an architecture of small pieces, with comparatively slight projections, and with its junctures visible and emphasized. The joints in terra cotta must be protected with special care, and the mode of protection ought to be expressive. A raised joint, in sills and like features, is the expedient adopted in the Philadelphia station, so that no water will come to the joint except what actually falls on it. A lap at one end of each block is another device. The most perfect protection would be afforded by capping a raised joint, and this would also be the most emphatic expression of the nature of the construction.

Large pieces may, on occasion, be safely baked. But a building should not consist of mechanical tours de force. That only should be habitually done in a material which is natural to it, and natural does not mean within its possibilities but according to its nature, that which is vernacular to it, so to speak. We almost hesitate to record that the Perth Amboy Company has just succeeded in the extraordinary feat of baking, without a flaw or a crack, a decorative panel seven and a half feet long, four feet wide and eight inches thick, lest some aspiring architect should draw and specify a dozen panels, ten feet long and five feet wide.

In face of a distinct agreement with the government, that whenever the time came when it was desirable to purchase telegraph lines, that the appraisal of their value should be fixed by arbitration, the newspapers persist in all kinds of wild talk as to what Congress should do in the matter. One proposition is that the government should build lines of its own to compete with the Western Union and the Baltimore & Ohio systems, but this nation could never afford to deliberately ruin a private corporation by entering into its special field. If done it would furnish a precedent full of peril to every corporate interest in the country. Then the demand that a new corporation be created with certain privileges so as to compete against Western Union, is clearly undesirable, as it would be creating another monopoly by law, and adding another series of poles and wires when there are already too many. The proper thing to do would be for government to offer a three per cent. bond for every one hundred shares of Western Union stock, the Baltimore & Ohio and other systems to be taken in at fair valuation. The total cost for all the companies need not exceed a hundred million. It would be a paying speculation, for while the government would pay out three million in interests annually it would easily be in receipt of six millions after making very large reductions in the telegraphic charges. Every nation on earth owns its own telegraphic system, save alone the United States. It is monstrous, that the secrets of our social life, the business interests and the market news of the world should be handled by a private company, whose owner and controller is the most conscienceless speculator in the world. Our government built the first telegraph line with its own money, and when it allowed this system to pass into private hands it made itself responsible for the abuses, the waterings and the over-capitalizations of the various telegraph organizations. Jay Gould is very heartily and very justly detested, but that is no reason why the newspapers should conspire to bully the government into depriving him of his property without an equitable compensation.

Is Gold Going?

What would be the result should gold be exported is a problem now much discussed in financial circles. In a normal state of things, we would be steady exporters of gold and silver. They are metals we produce in greater abundance than does any other country. Indeed, half the silver of the world comes from our mines and nearly half the gold. But since 1879 we have not only retained the gold from our mines, as well as the silver, but have drawn a large quantity of the yellow metal from abroad. This was necessitated by the resumption of specie payments and the consequent necessity of a metallic basis for our existing large paper currency. These additions to the money metals have been an unmixed benefit to the country. They gave solidity to our financial and banking systems. If some years back we had withdrawn the one, two, five and ten dollar bills, both of the national and bank systems, it would have added to our store of gold and silver by making a demand for them in all the channels of ordinary trade. Something less than $200,000,000 would be needed for this purpose. Then if we had further required that the banks should be obliged to redeem all their issues in gold and silver, there would have been a still further demand for the precious metals, which would have been drawn to our shores from other commercial nations. But these measures were not taken, and so gold has been heaped up in banks and depositories in readiness to be shipped when exchange would turn against us. The vast bulk of our gold coinage is in double eagles, the only use for which is to accommodate the bankers when they are ready to export gold. Take, for instance, the coinage report for the past month of January:

	Pieces.	Value.
Double Eagles	83,030	$1,660,600
Eagles	30	300
Half Eagles	30	150
Three Dollars	30	90
Quarter Eagles	30	75
Dollars	30	30
Total Gold	83,180	$1,661,345

And this is only a specimen of other months. Our United States Treasury has been deliberately preparing for a vast export of gold by minting the double eagles for the convenience of the foreign bankers.

There being one less use for gold in this country than in Europe, as we do not employ it in our retail trade at all, it would naturally find its way to those countries where it is demanded in the daily transactions of commerce and retail business, and we must expect, therefore, to see it leave our shores, and in time in very large quantities. The first year of the drain will not affect us much, but should the balance of trade keep against us the country will wake up some morning to find that both the government and the banks have suspended gold payments. Our laws have provided for that contingency, for the United States Treasury is authorized to pay out in greenbacks instead of gold if the reserve of the latter is at all endangered.

All the indications favor the idea of a possible drain of gold. Money is 3½ per cent. in London and less than 2 per cent. on call in New York. We are not exporting as much cotton as we did last year, and wheat continues 6 to 8 cents a bushel dearer in New York than in Liverpool. The commercial world is now one great republic, and the rates for money cannot permanently remain high in one country and low in the other. There will be an equalization in the price of money between London and New York, which will be best effected by the transfer of gold to the other side. When the gold begins to go there will begin a knavish clamor in the New York daily and financial press against the silver coinage, which it will be claimed is expelling the gold from the country, when the very reverse is the fact. Our treasury and banks have steadily increased their gold stores during the coinage of the silver dollars, repeating in this respect the financial history of France, which has been steadily drawing gold from the rest of the world, although the Latin Union has in circulation and in store three times the quantity of silver five-franc pieces as compared with our silver dollars.

But can a bull movement continue in face of gold exports? This is a difficult question to answer. As a matter of fact we have seen declining figures for stocks in the face of cheap and abundant money, and then every bull movement of magnitude is made in the face of advancing rates for money. In a period of "booms" there is always a demand for funds to carry stocks. Intrinsic values tell the story of prices in Wall street as elsewhere, no matter what the price of money.

How to Tax Personal Property.

The letter of X. Y. on taxation in New York State will repay careful perusal. It is by a professional expert, who is well informed, and is habituated to stating his cases with great circumspection. Our laws imposing taxes are unjust in the extreme. New York city is taxed for one-half the realty in the State and for about two-thirds of the personal property. Of course this is monstrously unfair, and is due to the fact that each county levies its own assessments, with no disposition to be equitable or follow any controlling principle as to values. Each locality tries to shift the burdens from itself, and thereby impose additional taxation upon the neighboring county. Then all the rural districts conspire to let this city bear the heaviest load. What we need is a better State Board of Assessors, with ample powers, working under a system which will insure equitable assessments. The present system clearly does not work. It leads to injustice and is especially onerous to the city of New York.

Nor is this all. Something should be done to force the great holders of personal property to pay their proportion of the State taxes. It is notorious, as our tax books show, that the conspicuous millionaires who reside here either escape taxation altogether or pay so little that it is a mere trifle. Our laws controlling taxation are based upon the ideas of property current one hundred years ago. The only estates in the past were those founded upon land. But within the last half century personal property has grown amazingly as compared with real property. The rich man in the olden times was one who held farms and houses, and a great rent roll was the proof of wealth in the head of a family. All this is now changed. The richest men are now those who have bonds or stocks of railways, or who own shares in manufacturing or other corporations, but it is real estate which still has to bear the burden.

Ought we then to tax securities, that is, bonds, stocks and shares in incorporated companies? Perhaps some equitable system might be devised by the nation imposing taxes upon personal property, but it clearly would never do for New York State to attempt the solution of this problem itself. It would simply drive business to other cities than New York. For the present we must consent to the anomalous burdens put upon real estate. The true solution, as the State Assessors suggest, would be an income tax. The Astors to-day pay probably ten times more taxes than Vanderbilt or Gould, yet the latter are known to be the wealthier. A system which exempts from fair taxation, Field, Sage, Gould, Vanderbilt and the other railway and security magnates who live in New York is grossly unjust. Men should not be punished because they hold real estate in preference to other property.

The income tax, when we had one, was easily collected and very productive. England has had such an one for over forty years. It has varied in rate from one shilling and four pence to three pence in the pound. Mr. Gladstone at one time got the impression that it was an unpopular tax and he promised to repeal it if his party was returned to power. To his great surprise Disraeli at that election secured the heaviest vote for the Tories known to this generation. The "People's William" did not forget the lesson, for since his return to power he has never proposed to abolish the income tax. It may be remarked, here, that the repeal of the income tax in this country was effected by a trick at the end of the session, the yeas and nays not being called. It was undoubtedly effected by the great holders of personal property whose influence has been so powerful in the lobby for twenty years past in connection with our railway system.

Our Prophetic Department.

OBSERVER—What have you to say, Sir Oracle, about the floods in the West, the prospect of the crops of 1884, and the outlook for business?

SIR ORACLE—One question at a time, please. Where do you wish to commence?

OBSERVER—Well, suppose we take up the business question first. Of course we all know that a presidential year is bad for business, and that we must expect dull trade until the fall elections are over.

SIR O.—That is one of those generalizations which passes for an axiom among the newspaper editors and other careless observers, but which is as wrong as wrong can be. 1880 was a presidential year and one of the most prosperous the country ever saw. In 1876 hard times had been prevailing for three years but the Centennial did a great deal to revive the stagnant business of the country. It was a better year than the one which followed it or the three which had preceded it; 1872 and 1868 were both, to all appearances, exceptionally prosperous years, when the paper money inflation was at its height—the crash did not come until the fall of '73. I might go back further, but these instances will suffice. I am free to declare that I believe increased political activity is a stimulant to business and does not injure it at all, unless questions affecting the very life of the nation are at stake, as they were in the contest preceding the rebellion. 1884 may not prove a good business year, much will depend upon our home crops and the foreign demand for them, but the political activity of the summer and fall will be wholesome; there are no life and death issues before the American people.

OBSERVER—How about the inundations? What moral do you draw from their almost yearly recurrence?

SIR O.—These floods are of the gravest national moment—they are due to the improvidence of the American people in cutting down their forests, more especially the woods on the banks and at the headwaters of the streams which feed our great rivers. The consumption of wood as fuel, in the construction of houses and in supplying railway ties is simply enormous, and, if continued, will be disastrous. This is a matter the nation must take in hand to correct, States and individuals cannot do it. We must re-clothe the hill-sides where our streams take their rise, with woods, and must prohibit the cutting down of timber where it will injure the streams.

OBSERVER—I do not see how that is to help the people in the Ohio or Mississippi Valleys this year or next, or for fifteen years to come; what would you do right away?

SIR O.—It will require a series of yearly disasters of great magnitude to induce the nation to change its past policy in regard to internal improvements. It was the necessities of a great civil war which gave us our national banking system. We have neglected all the lessons of history in wantonly wasting our noble forests. There have been spring and fall freshets enough for the last quarter of a century to forewarn us what was coming, but no conspicuous newspaper and no statesman or publicist has pointed out the only efficient remedy—a re-foresting of the headwaters of our streams, under the direction of the general government. This would be a gigantic undertaking, but it will have to be done, though it may not be even commenced until toward the close of the century.

OBSERVER—But surely something can be done in the way of receptacles and reservoirs to protect cities like Wheeling and Cincinnati from these annual inundations.

SIR O.—Yes, we can follow the example of the ancient Egyptians, who built canals and artificial lakes, which in the spring relieved the sacred Nile of its surplus waters, thus protecting the populous cities and towns from inundations and storing water for irrigating the soil when the river was low. But the Egyptian system would necessitate a strong central government, having charge of gigantic works for protecting and improving our water courses. The fate of the last River and Harbor Bill, which President Arthur vetoed, shows how impossible it is for the general government to spend money without being charged with corruption. That bill appropriated twenty millions for entirely worthy objects, but the newspaper press, by lies that were as unscrupulous as they were wholesale, created the popular impression that the bill was a huge swindle. Now, instead of twenty millions, we ought annually to spend sixty millions in improving our waterways. But no, it would be the political death of any public man who would advocate such expenditures. The inhabitants of our great river valleys will have to face yearly the angry and destructive floods caused by man's improvidence in the past, and the unwillingness of the nation to adopt the only measures which will protect our river valleys and save the waste of life and property.

OBSERVER—To change the subject. How about the stock markets?

SIR O.—It will be a dull market for a while I think, the bulls have cried halt, because of the western inundations, fears of a damage in the winter wheat crop and a possible export of gold to Europe. But the bears will not I think make much headway. Stocks are intrinsically cheap and money abundant, hence I think the drift of things will be toward higher prices, but the market will fluctuate until such time as it is determined whether or not we shall have good crops. I shall expect to see a fair fall business, if our barns by that time are full of cotton and grain. Then the political activity will help business whether the crops are good or bad.

Over the Ticker.

FOGGY is the word; the bulls are in a fog; the bears can't see an inch before their noses; the outlook is misty in every way.

STILL the market is suspiciously strong, it moves up easier than it goes down; the bears talk boldly, but they act timidly and cover at every little scare.

BUT it is a good market for investors. There are plenty of securities that are dead sure for 6 per cent., and others again in which there is small risk which will pay 7 and even 8 per cent. This is why it is so easy to put up prices.

THEN the bears know that there are a number of possible deals, if circumstances favor—that melon in the Northwest may be cut. Manhattan may be shoved up to 75; Pacific Mail to 60. C., C. & I., Terre Haute, Nickel Plate, Lake Erie & Western are all on the cards for a boom if circumstances favor.

BUT the floods, the high rate of exchange and the rumor that Jay Gould is at last going on his two years' voyage helps, temporarily at least, to depress the market.

BONANZA KING on the Mining Board is manipulated by the same ingenious gentlemen who engineered the famous deal in Robinson. They made a pile of money in that famous mining fiasco and caught prominent members of the Stock Exchange, such as Brayton Ives and S. V. White, in their toils. There are a lot of new fingers to be burnt in the Mining Board.

BULWER is selling too high. The company own a splendid mill but have no mine. The talk about the Fortuna vein in Bodie running into Bulwer is intended to deceive. Bulwer is worth about 50.

W. H. VANDERBILT, it is now said, like the much-persuaded young woman in Byron's poem, while swearing he would ne'er consent, has consented to the buying of the West Shore Road, and has decided to absorb that property in the interest of the Central. He talked about the Nickel Plate Road as he did about the West Shore, but he purchased it notwithstanding. If he bought the control by purchasing the stock of the North River Construction Company he might make the latter valuable, as under the contract the West Shore Road was bound to make good the actual cost of construction.

AND now it looks as if Western Union was about to gobble up the Baltimore & Ohio lines. Robert Garrett went back on James Gordon Bennett in the matter of the Atlantic Cable, and if the Baltimore & Ohio land lines become the property of the Western Union, of what value will be the Mackay-Bennett cable after it is laid? An ocean cable between Ireland and New York would starve to death unless in conjunction with a telegraphic land service which would supply it with business.

Another Real Estate Exchange is talked of. It is to be comprised, if successful, of 500 members paying $150 each. The design of this organization is to retain the legal sales at Trinity Building, 111 Broadway, and render valuable the leases now possessed by Mr. Fowler. It is claimed that the legal sales have been secured by Mr. Fowler for two years. This appointment, it is said, was made by the Supreme Court judges last December. Messrs. Ludlow, Harnett and other directors of the Real Estate Exchange and Auction Room (Limited), declare the judges have made no final decision, and that when their Exchange is fully organized and ready for business, which will be in October or November next, the sales will naturally be given by the judges to the institution which represents the most wealth and the largest number of active brokers. The Real Estate Exchange and Auction Room (Limited), is already a paying institution. It is now in receipt of rentals of $34,360 per annum. When the alterations are effected and the auction room and information bureau under way, the receipts will be over fifty thousand per annum. Then it is believed that in two years' time the fees from annual membership will amount to as much more. Instead of organizing another institution it would be better for those who did not secure membership in the Liberty street Exchange to become annual subscribers to that institution. New York is a big city but it is not large enough for two exchanges in the same line of business.

A very pretty way to dispose of the Christmas and Easter cards for ornament is to take two light bamboo canes, tie them together with ribbons, put a bow at each end, letting one band of ribbon go across from one end to the other, and through this slip the cards.

Home Decorative Notes.

—Where rooms are small and art treasures varied great scope is given to ingenuity and contrivance to gain a fitting place for each object, it is excellent practice to battle with the many difficulties and inconveniences in trying to make the best of all shapes and proportions, many mistakes must be made, failures are inevitable, but some experience is gained by each disappointment.

—Skating bags are now in season; they are made out of bright colored silk or plush, embroidered with any design fancy pleases; they should be lined with chamois.

—White paint that has become yellow and discolored may be wonderfully cleansed by applying, when washing, a little whitening.

—A little salt sprinkled over a carpet before sweeping will remove all dust and brighten the colors.

—Illuminated leather is a beautiful material, and lends itself very readily to the ideas of decoration, it is very desirable for wall hangings or chairs, the square tables with odd shelves are quite attractive covered with this material; some very unique designs were noticed at the warerooms of G. Epple & Son's, of 916 Broadway.

—Perfumery put up in long glass bottles and enclosed in a policeman's club is one of the latest novelties.

—An exquisite design for a royal-blue plush sofa pillow is the Lady Washington geranium in relief embroidery.

—Soft chamois purses are in favor for carrying small change.

—Within the past few years the beauty, durability and comfort of the Oriental floor coverings has grown immensely in popular favor; the Persian carpets are rich in color, harmonious and restful to the eye; the Daghestan are strictly conventional in design, with wonderfully glossy surface and soft as velvet. Quite as valuable for rarity and superb texture are the Bokhara rugs; a vast and varied style of these exquisite carpets are now shown by W. & J. Sloane, of Broadway and Eighteenth street.

—Mahogany furniture that has become slightly soiled may be washed with warm water and soap; then apply with a soft cloth a mixture of beeswax and sweet oil, and polish with chamois, rubbing vigorously.

—Numerous are the devices for pen wipers; felt of various colors, cut in the shape of maple leaves veined with silk and fastened together, form a graceful bunch of autumn leaves; the carnation pink is also extremely attractive.

—The manufacture of wall paper has rapidly risen in the artistic scale and the variety of designs steadily multiplied. There is, however, a great diversity of tastes and fancies to be consulted by the dealers, and the most fastidious cannot but find something which will please and attract among the rich goods of artistic merit and excellence which are now offered by Fr. Beck & Co., of Twenty-ninth street and Seventh avenue.

—The Persian shawls with an elaborate silk design on a novel ground forms an exquisite portiere, a very happy effect is produced if the design is outlined with gold cord.

—Damask napkins turned over at one corner and embroidered with the initials or monogram are quite new.

—The new smilax, which has the appearance of a marabout feather, is now the popular novelty for decoration.

—Valentines are assuming an unusual importance this year, and many of them are from the hands of well-known artists. The American Specialty Co., of Union square and Twenty-third street, present a varied list. One of the most beautiful and popular styles may be noted, "The Lion in Love," by F. G. Church; it is mounted upon olive green plush, and bears in one corner the artist's emblematic figure in silver, the war horse.

—The usefulness of stained glass, as a decorative medium, is almost unlimited; the hall doors, stair-case windows, parlor or library, all allow a liberal use of these transparencies.

—The mosaic patch-work, where each block is composed of different patterns and colors of silk, plush, or satin, and embroidered or painted with various designs, forms an effective border for a table cover; one end may be finished in this manner and the other wrought with designs in embroidery, silks or crewels.

—Among the Oriental rugs and portieres lately introduced by Archer & Bull, of 26 West Fourteenth street, may be mentioned the durries, they are very bright, attractive, and possess one very important quality, which is durability. Attention may also be called to the soft and brilliant colored purdahs, which are much admired for curtain drapery and portieres.

—The square and oblong tables of very highly polished mahogany, with sides slightly rolled and brass feet, are very fashionable.

—Bronze plush easels, with graceful folds of the plush of same color, fastened here and there with loopings of heavy gold cord, are very effective.

—Tiny cups and saucers of splints, with bright silk pockets attached to the cup, are used for bonbonnières.

—The delicate purple and whitewood violets and the arbutus, with an occasional bunch of the bright red pigeon berries and a few stray lichens, are wonderfully effective designs for painting on the small square toilet mirrors.

—Tiny humming birds put upon spring wires and mingled through a bouquet of roses are at present all the rage.

—Few Oriental porcelains are at present shown, as the preference is given to more modern wares such as the Royal Worcester, with jewelled decorations, Copeland, with the exquisite light and rich dark blues, and Crown Derby, with Persian figures on a yellow, red or turquoise ground; exquisite dessert plates can be procured for the trifling sum of $1,000 a dozen, very rare and beautiful designs are offered by Theodore R. Starr, No. 206 Fifth avenue.

Concerning Men and Things.

The death of Thomas Kinsella, of the Brooklyn Eagle, calls to mind the fact that a very large proportion of the sub-editors in the daily press graduated from the case. Kinsella was originally a compositor; so was the late Dr. Wood. Of the sub-editors and reporters who participated at the obsequies of the latter at the Press Club, three out of four were originally type setters. More than half the working force of the New York press are Irishmen, and the Press Club is controlled by that nationality. The number of college graduates is steadily increasing in the editorial sanctums, but the most efficient men in the Sun, Herald, Tribune and Times offices graduated into the editorial rooms from the composing rooms and proof-reading desks.

So far there are not many Jews among the owners or reporting staffs of the New York journals. There have been some, however, but they are very apt to work out of journalism into something more lucrative. The Pulitzer Brothers, owners of the World and Journal, are said to belong to that race, and Josh Hart, of Truth, also; so is Montague Marks, proprietor of the Art Amateur. In Europe Jews are largely represented in the ownership of the press. The Telegraph, which has the largest circulation in London, is owned by a Jew, though Mr. Levi Lawson's son has been married outside the pale of Judaism. The Hebrew race is well represented among editors and proprietors on the Continent, especially in Germany. The Roman Catholics are largely represented among the reporters and sub editors of New York and London.

The death of Editor Kinsella will lead to some journalistic changes in Brooklyn. It is believed that the regular democracy will secure the undivided support of the Eagle, which will probably have a new head in St. Clair McKelway, now editor of the Albany Argus, and who learned his business in the old World office. Mr. McKelway is well acquainted with Brooklyn affairs, is a ready and fluent writer and a gentleman of marked ability. Should the Eagle become a straight Democratic paper, the Union, edited and controlled by Mr. Jno. Ford, formerly of the New York Times, will be greatly advantaged. The Union is a sensible and well-edited paper, and deserves more success than it has yet achieved. But has not the time come for a first-class morning Brooklyn paper? So far the competition of the New York morning papers has prevented the establishment of a good Brooklyn morning paper. But as our daily press has so greatly deteriorated, there might be a chance for a first-class high-toned paper in the City of Churches. The New York press in point of influence, enterprise and ability ranks below Chicago, St. Louis, Cincinnati and Boston. There is a fine field in the metropolis for a really great journal.

Editor RECORD AND GUIDE:

The question of modes of taxation is now exciting State as well as national legislation. This is because of the heavy government obligations that are to be provided for. We may say that at present it is the most important and general subject that affects the American people. The science of any mode of government cannot be approved so long as inequality and injustice in taxation is allowed to be general. Of the more than a score and a half of legislative bodies now in session in the United States all of them have the tax question under consideration in some form. The late message of Governor Cleveland to the New York Legislature contains the views of a statesman upon this subject—the inequality of taxation in New York State—and asks for a legislative remedy.

The laws may stand right on the statute book, but the administration of them needs reform.

As New York city bears so much of the burden of State taxation a little attention to the matter as administered there will be sufficient to show its injustice.

The entire valuation of real estate in the year 1883, in the city of New York, was $1,079,130,669 (in the State of New York it was only $2,557,218,240, including New York city). The assessed value of personal property of all kinds, including capital of corporations in the city of New York, was $197,546,495 (in the State of New York it was only $315,039,085, including New York city). It will be observed that New York city is taxed for about one-half of the real estate in the State, and for about two-thirds of the personal property in the State.

But to return to the taxation in New York city. The personal property and corporate capital taxed were as follows, not including manufacturing corporations:

Corporations and joint stock companies	$27,152,906
Shareholders in banks	59,152,420
Belonging to other residents	100,525,634
Belonging to non-residents	10,715,533
Total personal	$197,546,493

The capital of manufacturing corporations is included in personal property.

The rate of taxation is, of course, regulated by the assessed value and the sum to be raised thereon. The rate in New York city in 1883 was $2.29 upon each $100 of valuation of real and personal property, excepting upon the capital and personal property of corporations, where it was only $2.03 upon each $100 of valuation. For half a century it has been a subject of complaint that real estate is taxed in the hands of the owner for its full value without deducting any mortgage upon it. Under the law bonds and mortgages have long been taxable in the hands of the holders of them, but the law has been so generally disregarded that it is firmly believed that they are not taxable. However, this may have formerly been, the law of May 12, 1883, chapter 392, cannot leave the question open. By that law all debts, dues and obligations for the payment of money due or owing to persons residing within this State must be assessed to the owners thereof. This law is broad in its terms, but it does not include stocks in corporations, although it does include their bonds without regard to the location of the corporation or its property. If this law is carried out it will necessarily greatly affect the tax upon real estate by increasing the valuation of personal property to a great extent, and will thereby lessen the rate of taxation. An estimation of the extent of this increase may be provided upon the amount of mortgages held upon real property in this city. The assessed valuation of real estate being about one thousand millions of dollars last year, the mortgages upon it can be safely estimated at three-fourths of that valuation. Other bonds of railroad and other corporations located both without and within the State of New York can safely be estimated at two hundred and fifty millions of dollars, and the total corporate capital can be assessed at a much higher valuation than at present, but if it is only put at sixty millions it will be double what it is now assessed at. So we see that there can be an increase of at least the same amount of personal property taxed under the present laws as there is of real estate, and if this is done the rate of taxation will be only one-half what it was last year to raise the same revenue as last year.

But to do justice and give equality to property owners real estate should not be taxed in the hands of the owners only to the extent of their ownership over and above any mortgage upon it. By thus reducing the tax upon real estate, rents would necessarily be much lower and improvements upon land would rapidly increase and holders of homesteads be more numerous among the people.

There are a few advocates in the United States of taxation being only upon land. This is a relic of feudalism and of the dark ages in Europe where the people had literally nothing, but depended entirely upon the land owners for sustenance and he exacted services, and where the landlord can distrain for rent and imprison for non-payment of rent and for debts generally. Where want and destitution are general the government can only look to land owners for support and revenue. We are happy to feel that in the United States of America, where there is a government of the people by the people, and where there is plenty for any and all to help themselves to and all are protected equally by the laws, why should not all be obliged to contribute to sustain the revenues of government according to the value of the property he owns? X. Y.

To Outflank the Obstructions.

Henceforth the finest engineering skill in New York will be best employed when turned to the perfection of plans for clearing the streets of all needless encumbrances. We have an immense amount of merchandize passing through the port, for distribution at home and abroad, which should never be allowed to leave the water front between its time of arrival and despatch to the point of final destination.

One of the most flagrant of all the contemplated crimes against the city of New York is comprehended in schemes, more or less definite, for drawing freight trains across the East River on bridges. It has been said that the New York and Brooklyn Bridge was made to cost a needless amount of money in giving it additional strength and stability with this object in view. It is possible that the eventual use of the bridge for the service of railroad transportation may have been anticipated fifteen years ago, and it is still possible that a few men, notwithstanding the difficulties experienced in utilizing the structure for the purposes of ordinary traffic, are yet dreaming of a realization of the original plan. But at this late day such an idea should hardly be dignified with the name of a dream. Were the work of converting the bridge into a freight way for the passage of trains attempted, with all the necessary details that must follow, the result would suggest a veritable nightmare, fit only for the finale of some "railroad monopolist's" dinner. A descent into tunnels from the elevation of this bridge not being practicable, the scheme would comprehend the construction of elevated freight roads both in New York and Brooklyn; for the capacity of the roads already in operation in this city is severely taxed, and it is not likely that the lines soon to be built in Brooklyn can be operated with any less attention to the convenience and safety of passengers. But the construction of elevated freight roads means also the construction of more misplaced storage warehouses, a more complete divorce of the terminal points of water and land transportation, more frequent and prolonged street blockades, and a consequent deeper philological demoralization in the use of adulterated English. We want no elevated freight railways across the city in New York, whether converging to the New York and Brooklyn Bridge or to the projected bridge at Blackwell's Island. Fortunately, however, the danger of seeing such roads in operation is not imminent. The cost of building elevated roads for freight transportation, comprehending, in addition to the cost of construction, the value of property condemned and an enormous penalty for damages along the streets that they would follow and almost ruin, will forever preclude their introduction. They are only mentioned here to call attention to the impracticable nature of the scheme for drawing freight trains over the East River.

From an elevation of 135 or 140 feet above high tide, the supposed altitude of East River bridges, we will descend to a depression of, say, 75 feet below low tide, and contemplate the Hudson River Tunnel. It is to be presumed that the work will be some day completed, notwithstanding the present suspension of operations, and, to be made profitable, it must be used for the service of both freight and passenger transportation. But, like all other terminal works around the New York harbor, it is to be feared that the design was only half conceived in the beginning, and contemplates little else than a great bore under the river to be utilized according to subsequent events. Where is to be located the New York terminus? For passenger traffic alone this is a question of perhaps little consequence to the public. Passengers can make their exit from the tunnel at any point, either by means of elevators at the river side or on the street grade in the middle of the city, the nearer to the latter location, perhaps, the better. But where will be located the freight depot? The very use of these words is suggestive of the vast character of the enterprise; for the idea of a freight depot comprehends wide space with numerous switches and sidelings where freight trains may be loaded or unloaded. It is undeniably true that such depots are to be found scattered around in New York in several improper places; but it is equally true that they represent great nuisances which ought to be abated. If the Hudson River tunnel is to have a freight depot in New York it ought not to be difficult to decide upon its location. Both subterranean and above-ground, it should be placed directly on the Hudson River water front. In this location it should communicate freely and without any break with the shipping at the piers, and with the water front freight railway, parallel with the rivers, long since conceived but not yet realized. In any other place the depot that opens into the Hudson River tunnel, if utilized for the purposes of freight transportation and used by a half-dozen railroads, would represent an intolerable nuisance to the city of New York.

The proposition to refuse the use of bridges for the passage of freight trains across the East River may sound very selfish to the inhabitants of Brooklyn, long taught to regard themselves as insular and deprived of some of the advantages of location possessed by this city. As a matter of fact the inhibition is suggested in a spirit of the utmost kindness, and for the purpose of withdrawing our neighbors from the pursuit of an ignis fatuus. Their road to the mainland does not lie through the thickly populated sections of this city. They can be better served by turning their eyes in other directions. From Lawrence Point, above Astoria, opposite Randall's Island, to the shore of North New York, the distance, by the way of an easily-constructed tunnel under the East River, is only about half a mile. This is the road to Boston if our Brooklyn friends wish to set their faces against the injunction of Horace Greeley, and go east. By this route, also, connection can be cheaply made with the New York Central & Hudson River Railroad, a connection, however, which has lost something of its importance since the construction of the West Shore road. The New York Central road, too, possesses more water front than it can ever utilize on the Hudson River, and it is questionable if any immediate connection across the East River would be worth while. But at the southward, under the Narrows and across Staten Island, communication may be opened directly with the five great railroads that concentrate on the west shore of the Hudson, together with the Lehigh Valley Road, terminating at present at Perth Amboy. These are connections which will be very well worth making; and it is not a little curious that a people who can secure them so cheaply as the people of Brooklyn should dream of climbing over the East River at an elevation of 140 feet above high tide. The dazzling effulgence of the metropolis must have affected their vision unfavorably.

It is time that we began to study this terminal question more thoughtfully in New York. Indeed, it is many years past the time when the subject should have been thoroughly understood. Commerce, according to all testimony, is drifting away from the city; and unlike London, Paris or Berlin, our American metropolis was not created by court influences. New York is the creature of commercial enterprise, and when she loses her commerce she will lose also her prestige, and, finally, her leading position on the harbor.

The want of a water front warehouse system in this city has been already the cause of incalculable losses, and if the present awkward situation is permitted to last it will be the cause of our eventual defeat. If we are to maintain our supremacy our Department of Docks must set itself to the task of providing accommodations for commerce on a line essentially different from the plans projected.

Realty at Albany.

ALBANY, February 14.

There is now before the Judiciary Committee of the Senate a codification by Montgomery Throop of the second part of the Revised Statutes, which relates especially to realty. Like all the codifications by Throop, it proposes many changes in the present law, by the insertion of a word or two in different sections, and in some instances entire new sections are substituted. It covers 267 printed pages, 92 of which, or one chapter and five titles, being devoted to realty. One title is devoted to the tenure of real property, one to the nature and qualities or definitions of estates in real property, one to landlords and tenants, one to conveyances of real property, and another to miscellaneous and general provisions affecting realty. Under these different heads the question of who is legally permitted to hold real estate and the rights of aliens are treated; also the disposition of estates, estates for life reversions, rights of landlords, rights of lessees, forfeiture of leases, alienations of real property—mortgages and conveyances, when they are void—rights of purchasers and all the various subjects relating to the ownership, leasing, sale and mortgaging of realty.

The bill is an important one, for while pretending to be a codification of present law, it is in fact a revision and amendment of the laws bearing on these subjects as they have stood for some time. It will require the skill of a real estate lawyer to determine how far it goes, and the effect of the changes on the present laws relating to realty. Codification in the past has not always been wisely done, that of the laws affecting public and private interests in New York city is a sample It has been found that in that codification the wrong mechanics' lien law was incorporated, and another change was found necessary last year. And there are now about twenty bills pending to correct other errors discovered, including one in reference to the payment of contractors. The consolidation so changed it, that where work is done in the grading of a new street, it cannot be paid until after the assessment is laid and all collected.

There has been another muddle discovered in reference to the issue of assessment bonds, and still another this week, which shows that no department or other city authority has charge of the improvement or opening of streets on Manhattan Island, north of One Hundred and Fifty-fifth street, so muddled is the codification. The local authorities are seriously contemplating requesting the Legislature to repeal the entire codification; it has proven such a botch, and caused so many contradictions in the laws.

Luther R. Marsh, Mr. Mullally, ex-Alderman Wells, W. W. Niles and several others have this afternoon made lengthy arguments before the Joint Committees of both Houses in favor of the bill carrying out the report of the Commission to Locate New Parks in the Twenty-third and Twenty-fourth Wards. The main features of their argument are found in the report of the commission, which was supplemented by an explanation of the advantages to be derived by taking the property before it further advances in price, and the establishment of a system of parks before further improvements are made in that section. The gentlemen mentioned are hopeful of being able to secure the passage of the bill during this session.

Arguments were made on Tuesday before the Senate Committee on Cities by a delegation representing the builders, underwriters, iron masters and architects, in favor of the Daly bill remodelling the building laws for New York city. They all appeared satisfied with the bill, and urged its passage. They represented that the present building laws are not what New York needs at the present time but are more applicable to the city of half a century ago. Final action on the bill was postponed until next Tuesday by the committee. While no opposition has as yet publicly appeared against the bill, it has been discovered that some of the Fire Commissioners are using their influence against taking the Building Bureau out of the Fire Department and making it an independent department, as it should be. This influence is being felt, although the delegation which was before the Committee intimated that they had assurances that Mayor Edson would place Mr. Esterbrook at the head of the department if the change was made, yet it seems that the desire of some of the Fire Commissioners to retain control of the patronage under the Building Bureau weighs more than any such assurances. Political patronage is the barrier in the way of all legislation for improvement in New York. Senator Gibbs, the Republican member at the head of the committee to which the bill is referred, represents the district of which Fire-Commissioner Van Cott is one of the party bosses, and that weighs more than the benefit of the proposed changes. Senator Daly admitted to-day that he should probably be compelled to eliminate from the bill the provision for an independent department to secure even a report of the bill from the committee.

Mr. Clarke, of the annexed district, has presented a bill to enable property owners to have asphalt pavement laid. It provides that the authorities having in charge the paving and repair of the streets in the city of New York may cause any of the streets to be paved with native asphalt pavement whenever it shall be petitioned for by a majority of the owners of property fronting upon the street, a portion thereof to be paved, provided the interests of the city shall not, in the judgment of such authorities, be injured thereby.

The Assembly has passed Mr. Oliver's bill, directing the Department of Parks to improve and repair the park in Mission place, at Five Points, commonly called Paradise Park, by planting trees, placing benches, putting in order the fountain and removing the iron structure thereon. It requires the Board of Apportionment to appropriate $1,000 for that purpose.

The Assembly Committee has reported the Senate bill establishing a park at Coenties slip.

A bill was introduced early in the session by Senator McCarthy, regulating the manner of letting contracts in New York city. It seeks to do away with the unbalanced bid system and the dividing up of the work into pieces, so that each will come below $1,000. The committee has made several amendments and reported the bill.

The bill relative to the Gansevoort Market, which has been reported in the Senate, sets apart the block of ground west of Washington street, extending to West street and Tenth avenue, between Little Twelfth street on the north and Gansevoort street on the south, for the exclusive use of farmers and market gardeners, and places all regulations for controlling the same under the Finance Department. The portion of land heretofore taken between Tenth and Thirteenth avenues, Bloomfield and Gansevoort streets, is dedicated to market purposes, to be used in such manner as the Commissioners of the Sinking Fund shall prescribe.

The Railroad Commission has sent to both Houses its bill providing for the organization of companies and the construction of street railroads in cities and villages of the State. Its provisions are general and do not exclude these roads from any streets or avenues. It is in all respects a general bill and free from any special privileges to anyone. It provides for obtaining the consent of the local authorities, or the majority of the property holders in the street on which it is proposed to construct the roads, and for the payment of 3 per cent. of the gross receipts in the large cities to the city for each of the first five years, after that 5 per cent. The bill meets all the requirements of the constitution, and appears to treat the construction of such roads as a public benefit, rather than a nuisance as many people have argued they now are. It also gives the right to existing street railroads to extend their tracks, to meet the growth of any city, upon the same conditions as are applied to new roads. The contest over the bill is to commence before the Railroad Committee next week.

The Railroad Committee of the Assembly has decided to report adversely the bill adding six more hours to those in which the fares on the elevated roads shall be five cents. The passage of the bill would make the fares five cents twelve hours each day, the ten cent hours being from ten o'clock to three during the day time. A determined effort is to be made to override the committee's report in the Assembly.

The promoters of the plan to enlarge the powers and increase the privileges under their charter of the Broadway Underground Railroad, so as to enable them to construct an arcade railroad with four tracks, instead of two in a dark tunnel, have arrived and propose to have their bill introduced to-morrow.

No action has been taken this week on the measure for introduction of salt water into New York city for the extinguishment of fires and sanitary purposes. Some amendments have been suggested by a representative of the city authorities to better enable the city to carry out its contract if one is made. It is decided that the local authorities will not oppose the measure.

The bill placing the entire responsibility for the appointment of heads of departments in the Mayor was not acted upon in the Assembly, owing to the absence of Mr. Roosevelt, its author, whose mother died this morning and his wife in the afternoon.

A bill has been reported in the Assembly which provides that "No city, township, or municipal corporation shall be allowed to become indebted, in any manner or for any purpose, to an amount, including existing indebtedness, in the aggregate exceeding 10 per cent. on the whole value of the taxable property therein, as shown by the last assessment roll. All debts incurred in excess of 10 per cent. to be illegal.

Owners of realty in the city of New York, who are in doubt about the future of the metropolis, may find some encouragement from the remarks of Mr Littl john on the importance of the canals, in the debates in the Assembly, during which he predicted that the city of New York within fifty years would have a larger population than that of any other city on the face of the globe. If that prediction is verified, all the realty within the present city limits will have to be utilized and built upon. To provide for fully double the present population it will be necessary to build on miles of vacant lots. It also shows the necessity of adopting other modes for transit besides those now possessed to carry the vast numbers to and from their places of business, as well as local street railroads. Without these facilities New York will not gain as fast as predicted, for the elevated railroads are now taxed to their full capacity during the rush morning and evening. By the time that the arcade road can be constructed under Broadway, if commenced at once, there will be sufficient business for both that and the elevated roads. That additional route for rapid transit will help secure the rapid growth that Mr. Littlejohn predicts.

The Proposed Cable Roads.

Editor RECORD AND GUIDE:

I cannot but think that there is a colored man hidden in the woodpile of the rapid transit cable enterprise. Why go to Albany to get an extension of the time of the commission? This I hear was done without the knowledge of the president of the company interested in the cable. It looked as though it were done to "feel" the lobby at Albany, and to see how strong it was. It would have been an easy matter to have had the commission reappointed by the Mayor. After the legal conditions are complied with he can keep on appointing Rapid Transit Commissioners ad libitum. There is no limitation to his authority in this respect.

Then there is another thing that I cannot understand. Why a transverse road through Twenty-second street when there is already one on Twenty-third street? Then there are other of the routes designated which are plainly intended to antagonize existing horse-car interests. Can this all be a strike?

Now I admit that New York needs a comprehensive system of intermural travel. But should not the motto be, "make haste slowly?" A cable road would be a good thing on Tenth avenue, where it is imperatively needed. One is wanted also on the Hudson River front. Forty-second and Thirty-fourth streets should have transverse roads. Once these were established and in running order other Transit Commissioners could lay out additional roads, but this covering the whole city with a network of proposed cable roads looks like a scheme to bleed the existing horse-car companies. While it is true that roads are needed on down-town streets, such as Chambers and Liberty, the proposition to run some twenty between the Battery and Harlem, from river to river, is sure to provoke powerful opposition from property holders as well as the owners of horse-car stock.

LYNX.

Landlord and Tenant.

Mr. Louis Spatz hired apartments by the month from John Scheiner; rain came through the roof and damaged Mr. Spatz's property, and he sued Mr. Scheiner for $450 damages, and got a verdict, from which Mr. Scheiner appealed. The General Term of the New York City Court has just overturned the judgment, ex-Judge M. C. Gross being Mr. Scheiner's counsel; the facts are fully stated in the opinion of the court, which was written by that able and learned Chief-Judge David McAdam, whose book on Landlord and Tenant is, or ought to be, in the hands of every property-owner. The following is the opinion in the case, filed February 8th, 1883:

MCADAM, C. J.—There was no covenant by the landlord to repair, and he is liable, if at all, on the sole ground of negligence. While it is true that the landlord of a tenement house occupied by numerous tenants is bound to keep the roof in repair, yet, he is not an insurer, nor is he required to anticipate a leak nor exercise any other than ordinary care in his management of the property. To charge him as landlord, it was necessary to show that he neglected, after having knowledge or notice of the defective condition, to repair the roof with promptitude, or, if he had no such notice or knowledge, that he had omitted to use such reasonable means and precautions for ascertaining it's condition and making requisite repairs as his relation to it and his duty to the several tenants demanded at his hands (Henkel vs. Hurr, Daily Register, November 28, 1883). The evidence fails to show any such neglect as amounts to negligence.

The plaintiff occupied the fifth floor of the tenement, and had resided there for about one year prior to the leakage of which he complains, and this was the first injury of the kind he had suffered. The only evidence of notice to the landlord of the defects in the roof was given by the witness Liederback (one of the assignors), who testified that "about a month before the accident occurred," he spoke to the defendant in reference to the roof, and that the defendant said "all right, I will attend to it." Francis Scheffe, a tinsmith, testified that he remembered the storm of September 23d, 1882, and that about fourteen days previous thereto he repaired the roof and made everything tight. His evidence, which is uncontradicted, is consistent with that given by Liederback, and proves that the notice given by him met with the necessary attention on the part of the landlord. The defendant denies that he had knowledge or notice of any defects in the roof until the storm came which caused the damage. This in substance is about all the proof there is in the case upon the question of negligence, and it fails to show that the defendant omitted to do any act which an ordinary prudent man would have done under the circumstances.

The fact that a leak occurred does not of itself prove negligence, nor does the mere fact of damage give the tenant a right of action. The landlord's liability rests wholly upon actual negligence in which the duty or obligation of the landlord is only an element, a most important one, it is true, but by no means exclusive or controlling (Henkel vs. Hurr, supra). The character of the weather on the day of the injury and for the four preceding days was given by the witness Merrill, who has charge of the Signal Service Bureau in this city. He testifies from the official records of that department as follows: "On the 19th of September, 1882, the weather was very sultry and moist; on the 20th a thunder storm, between 9 and 10:35 P. M., 59-100 inch of rain; upon the 21st light rain began before sunrise, 78-100 inch; it was quite heavy at intervals; upon the 22d light rain before sunrise; it began again at 7:20 A. M., and ended at 1:05 P. M.—total rainfall 1 69-100 inches. Upon the 23d the rain began before sunrise and continued all day; was remarkably heavy fall, 6 17-100 inches of rain, the heaviest daily fall recorded since the establishment of the station in 1870. It ceased before sunrise the next morning. It was at its heaviest from about 1 o'clock of that day until 8 o'clock that night."

The proofs show that it was during the heaviest portion of this unprecedented storm that the rain percolated through and did the damage complained of. The roof had served as a complete protection up to this time.

The case presented, viewed in the light of this testimony, demonstrates that the unusual fall of rain was such as no ordinary foresight or prudence could either foretell or guard against. It is difficult to infer and impute negligence to the defendant under such circumstances.

It follows, therefore, that the judgment appealed from must be reversed and a new trial ordered, with costs to the appellant to abide the event.

HALL, J., concurs.

Real Estate Department.

At the Exchange Salesroom during the past week the attendance has been good, and considerable property was offered. The sale of the Power estate on Tuesday, and the Faile estate on Thursday, were the most important, the latter bringing out a large attendance as it was liberally advertised. It was all desirable business property. The Chambers and Warren street properties sold were considered cheap, but the Burling slip and Front street stores and warehouses commanded prices which would net the investors about 6½ per cent. The parties in interest were quite satisfied with the result of the sale.

Dealers report a much more active real estate market so far as private sales are concerned than attained last year. They anticipate a much better spring business than in 1883. They argue that there is a great deal of money seeking investment, but that the public are afraid of Wall street, and distrustful of general business enterprises; hence the only really safe outlet for money is in real estate investments. We remarked last week on the very few foreclosure suits that are now commenced, as well as the smaller number of foreclosure sales. Money is so easily obtained at reasonable rates of interest, that borrowers on real estate are in favor with money lending institutions.

The transfers of last week compared with the corresponding week of 1883 show a slight falling off, but taking the official list since the beginning of the year there is a decided increase in the number of Conveyances. Here is the table for the week:

CONVEYANCES.	1883. Feb. 9 to 15, inclusive.	1884. Feb. 8 to 14, inclusive.
Amount involved	$2,573,511	$2,246,582

Richard V. Harnett will sell on Tuesday next, the 19th inst., the houses on the southeast corner of Delancey and Mangin streets. The parcel embraces two three-story brick buildings used as stables and shops, and can be made to bring in a good rental.

The conveyances so far this year show a decided increase in number, as well as in the outlay of money, over last year, while the mortgage indebtedness is much less. But the building movement during the month of January and the first week of February was largely behind that of last year.

Since our last issue plans embracing ninety-eight buildings, to be erected at an estimated cost of over $1,100,000, have been filed, the most important being the house on Fifth avenue for John S. Kennedy, on which $150,000 will be expended and a new store building on the southeast corner of Greene and Bleecker streets, at an expenditure of $225,000. In our column "Out Among the Builders" will be found news of several important operations. Four seven-story brick and stone stores are to be erected on the corner of Leonard and Hudson streets, by the Goelet estate; an eight-story office building, on the southeast corner of Wall and New streets, by the Mortimer estate; a six-story office building at No. 51 Liberty street, by The Brooklyn Life Insurance Company; a station for the New York Steam Company on east Forty-ninth street; five private dwellings on West Seventy-first street, for Edward J. King; and fifty-two three-story houses in the Twenty-third Ward by the House and Home Company. This shows an excellent week's work in the building line.

It is a noticeable fact that very few signs are up of houses to rent, and it is believed there will be far fewer changes this year than usual. Some of the high-priced houses will be vacated, but in no quarter of the city are landlords advancing rentals, except in cases where long leases have run out. It will be found that there are somewhat too many tenements in the market in the Harlem district, but houses ranging from $800 to $2,500 will be in demand.

Brooklyn property is really looking up. Our reporters this week state that sales of real estate across the river are unusually heavy. The particulars will be found under the proper head. There seems to be no doubt but that in Brooklyn as well as New York investors are putting their money in real property rather than in business and railway stocks.

Gossip of the Week.

Messrs. E. H. Ludlow & Co., have sold the four-story high stoop brown stone dwelling, No. 122 East Thirty-ninth street, 20x55x98.9, for Max Kayser to C. G. Landon, for $25,000.

Messrs. Lewis & Harris have sold, for Thos. Smith, the four five-story brick and stone front first-class tenement houses, Nos. 309 and 311 East Sixty-first street, size of each 25x74x100.5, and Nos. 314 and 316 East Sixty-second street, size of each 25x85x100.5, for $98,000 cash.

J. O. Higgins has sold, for John H. Deane, the three story brown stone dwelling, 20x55x95, No. 1185 Madison avenue, opposite Mount Morris Park, for $23,000, the four-story stone front flat, No. 79 East One Hundred and Twenty-first street, northwest corner of Fourth avenue, 20x76x100, for $22,000, and a similar building, No. 77 East One Hundred and Twenty-first street, same size, for $20,000.

J. J. Macdonald contemplates the erection of five five-story brown stone flats, with stores, 20x75, on Third avenue, southwest corner of Ninety-sixth street. There is a large quantity of rock to be removed before building operations can be commenced. The total cost of the structures is estimated at $80,000. Architect, John Brandt.

Robert Auld intends shortly to begin the erection of three five-story brown stone front flats, 25x85 each, on the south side of Forty-seventh street, west of Ninth avenue. Architect, W. J. Merritt.

Edward H. Kendall has the plans in hand for four seven-story brick and stone stores, 25x— each, to be erected for the Goelet estate, on the southeast corner of Leonard and Hudson streets.

F. Carles Merry is the architect selected by the Brooklyn Life Insurance Company for the building they propose to erect at No. 51 Liberty street, as announced in our last issue. The structure will be six stories and basement in height, the front being of brick, stone and iron. It will contain an elevator and steam heating, and will probably be fire-proof. The size of the building will be 25.8x60, though should the company purchase the adjoining building on the northeast corner of Liberty and Nassau streets the frontage will receive an addition of 12 feet. The five-story brick building at present occupying No. 51 Liberty street will shortly be demolished to make way for the new structure. The architects who competed were Mr. J. A. Mundell, of Brooklyn, and Mr. Merry. The new building will cost about $60,000, and will be used for office purposes, the second story being occupied by the Brooklyn Life Insurance Company.

Stephen D. Hatch is the architect selected for the alterations to be made to the Marquand building for the Real Estate Exchange and Auction Room (Limited).

R. Guastavino has been selected as the architect for the synagogue to be erected for the Bnai Jeshurun Congregation on three lots on the west side of Madison avenue, 25.5 feet south of Sixty-fifth street, as reported by us on the 26th ult. The material of their present edifice on Thirty-fourth street, between Broadway and Seventh avenue, will be used in the reconstruction, with the partial addition of Philadelphia brick in the front, which will be of new design, the whole being in the Moresque. The size will be 67x95, and the cost about $40,000. Messrs. H. J. Schwarzmann & Co. have been chosen as associate architects. Mr. Guastavino is also superintending the completion of the Progress Club, on Fifty-ninth street, near Lexington avenue, which was commenced by Emil Gruwe.

Geo. B. Post has drawn the preliminary designs for an eight-story brick and stone office building, to be erected by the Mortimer estate on the southeast corner of Wall and New streets, adjoining the New York Stock Exchange. It will be 57x66, and have two elevators and steam heating, and will be fire-proof throughout. The cost has not yet been estimated. The present structure on the site will be torn down after May 1 next.

The steam station to be erected by the New York Steam Company on the south side of Forty-ninth street, east of First avenue, as mentioned by us last week, will be a four-story fire-proof building of brick and iron, 100x100. It will be 120 feet in height, and contain several large boilers, and one or two elevators. The building proper will cost about $250,000, exclusive of the machinery, which will make the total cost about $500,000.

The plans were filed this week for a block of fifty-two three-story high stoop brick houses, all improvements, to be built for the House and Home Company (Limited), on Sherman avenue, and One Hundred and Sixty-third and One Hundred and Sixty-fourth streets, one block from Fleetwood Park station of Suburban Elevated Railroad, each house and lot to cost about $4,500, in installments, building to be supervised by a committee of owners; all money saved in building or made from sales to non-stockholders to be divided pro rata and applied to price. The capital of the company is $125,000, and an additional $125,000 is provided for small first mortgages on each house. Butcher, baker and grocer to be put at the corners and the whole neighborhood created at once. The plans are very neat and compact. Architect, G. A. Schellenger, 128 Broadway. Among the incorporators are Charles E. Sprague, Secretary of Union Dime Savings Bank, and Mr. Geo. W. Van Siclen. It may be added that an announcement of this important improvement was made in THE RECORD AND GUIDE of July 21 last.

D. & J. Jardine have the plans under way for five four-story and basement Philadelphia brick and brown stone private dwellings, with mansard roofs, each 20x55, with two-story extension, to be erected on the south side of Seventy-first street, 350 feet west of Ninth avenue, for Edward J. King, at a cost of about $85,000.

Anthony Smyth intends to erect four 18.9 three story and basement private dwellings on the three lots, 75x100, just purchased by him on the south side of One Hundred and Twenty-sixth street, about 235 feet west of Fifth avenue. Cleverdon & Putzel will be the architects.

James Meagher will improve the three lots on the east side of Fifth avenue, 25 feet south of One Hundred and Thirty-second street, probably by the erection of four three-story and basement private houses.

Cleverdon & Putzel are the architects for the flat and distillery for Wm. Wallace, into which the brick house at No. 207 East One Hundred and Twentieth street will be altered, as reported in this column on the 26th ult.

Messrs. Reid & Barry, of New York, have purchased seventeen acres of land for houses, on Passaic avenue, Passaic, N. J.

John Brandt has the plans in hand for a four-story brick and brown stone dwelling, 25x54, to be built at No. 445 East Seventy-seventh street, for John Stadler, at a cost of about $10,000.

Engelhardt has plans for a three-story frame flat, 19x50, and a three-story frame double tenement, 25x55, to be erected on Gwinnett street, near Throop avenue, for John Schlinger; the total cost of this improvement will be about $9,000; also a two-story frame (brick basement) dwelling, 22x40, to be erected on the north side of Skillman avenue, 78 feet east of Graham avenue, for Mrs. Metzen; cost, $5,500; a three-story frame tenement, 20x50, to be erected on the south side of Park street, 130 feet east of Broadway, for George Straub; cost, $4,500; two three-story frame dwellings, each 25x52.6, to be erected on the northwest corner of Varet and Humboldt streets, for A. Schineller; cost, $9,000; also two three-story brick dwellings, 25x32 each, to be erected on Clason avenue, near Flushing avenue, for J. J. Hower, at a cost of $7,000.

Vollweiler & Co. have plans for four three-story brick stores and tenements, to be erected on Leonard street and Meserole avenue, three of which will have a total front of 75x55 and the other will be 20x46, the cost of which will be about $34,000; owner, Mr. Wierck.

John I. Glover has the sketches for a four-story brick terra cotta front flat, 21x60, to be erected on Adelphi street, near Myrtle avenue; the cost will be about $8,000; also a two-story and attic brick dwelling to be erected at Somerville, N. J.

Four three-story brick flats are to be erected on the south side of Pacific street, about 150 feet west of Clason avenue; owner, Mr. Taylor.

Elihu J. Granger will improve the property on the northeast corner of Decatur street and Sumner avenue, by the erection of a row of four-story brick dwellings.

The building committee of the Flatbush Methodist Episcopal Church will erect a parsonage, and a tower and spire, to church building from plans by Mercein Thomas; the work will be done by the day, and the cost will be about $5,000. Mr. Thomas also has plans for alterations and additions to No. 269 Washington avenue, at a cost of $4,800.

Suburban.

A large hotel is to be erected at Montclair, N. J., by a joint stock company. It will be situated on the mountain, about 500 feet above the level of the sea, and will be 225x125 in size. It will contain an elevator, billiard room and bowling alleys, and will be fire-proof throughout, as well as heated by steam. It will accommodate about two hundred guests, and be surrounded by extensive grounds, approached by pathways and carriage drives. The cost will be about $150,000. The plans have been drawn by Geo. W. Da Cunha.

Messrs. Lamb & Rich are engaged on the plans for the erection of a two-story brick, stone and frame residence, 50x114, for the Hon. Theodore H. Roosevelt, at Oyster Bay, L. I. It will be finished in hardwoods, and have a stable and lodge house on the grounds.

Messrs. King & Swazey have just finished the plans for a Queen Anne cottage for Mr. C. W. Hanks, at New Brighton, S. I. It will cost about $3,500. The same architect have on the boards plans for a large and ornamental barn for Judge Benedict, at Fair View, S. I. It will cost something over $3,000.

Mr. Morse has purchased the property on the northeast corner of Park and Washington streets, Orange, N. J., from Mr. Lloyd, on which he will erect in the spring two fine houses, one for his own occupancy and the other for his son.

The Ben Halliday place at Harrison, Westchester Co., near White Plains, consisting of a large stone mansion and 700 acres of land, is to be extensively improved during the coming season. The property was purchased three years ago by John Roach, who expended some $30,000 in repairing the mansion.

The Bay Ridge Construction Company have elected the following board of trustees: R. H. Berdell, J. F. Ames, W. Roosevelt, S. Mawhinney, W. J. Gilfillan, J. E. Smith and A. P. Bliven. It is stated that $387,500 of the company's stock has been subscribed for, and that active operations will begin in March. The company has twenty-seven acres of land at Bay Ridge with a frontage of 700 feet on New York Bay. Its object is to build and repair steamers, sailing vessels and other craft. The National Marine Engine and Boiler Manufacturing Company will occupy adjacent grounds. Forty cottages will be erected by them in the rear of their works, and they ntend to construct a large cob dock, 600 feet long and 80 feet wide, sufficient to accommodate the largest steamer afloat, directly the rest of the plant is well advanced.

Street Opening.

The commissioners in the matter relative to the opening of Ninety-fourth street, between Second and Third avenues, have completed their estimate and assessment and will present the same to the Supreme Court for comfirmation on April 4, 1884. The abstract of the said estimate and assessment, together with maps, and all the affidavits, estimates and other documents which were used in making report, have been deposited in the office of the Department of Public Works, there to remain until the 20th of March, 1884.

Special Notices.

Attention is called to the card of Mr. S. H. Mapes, the well-known west-side builder, from whom estimates for the erection of buildings can be obtained on application, personally or in writing, at his office, No. 1777 Broadway, between Fifty-seventh and Fifty-eighth streets.

The Central Iron Works, whose advertisement appears elsewhere, manufacture all kinds of ironwork used in the construction of buildings. They have made a specialty of the Dunn Fire Escape, which closes up tightly in a perpendicular receiving box, and does not detract from the appearance of a building, being invisible when not in use. When required it is easily opened by a child, the turning of a knob being simply necessary. It can be seen in operation at their works, No. 323 East Twenty-second street.

Huston & Corbitt furnish estimates on plumbing. They refer to their work in the Grand View Hotel, Mr. Warren's house, No. 15 East Forty-first street, the house No. 17 East Forty-fourth, the parsonage on West Twenty-third street, the Land and Water Club-house at Whitestone, L. I., and to a number of architects and builders by whom they have been employed. Communications can be addressed to them at their office, No. 54 East Forty-first street.

BUILDING MATERIAL MARKET.

BRICKS.—Business has again been quite dull, and the market for Common Hards commences to show a greater degree of irregularity. The miserable condition of the weather during the best portion of the week has added another period of inactivity to building operations, and kept the sales in the main confined to some odd parcels afloat or form yard as required for urgent necessity, and we hear grumbling from both receivers and dealers, though matters, it is reasonable to expect, would have been worse had not the fogs interfered with navigation and prevented the arrivals of more than just a few cargoes as they might happen to slip through. The fog, the rain and "warm spell," however, were working out a result in another direction by rotting and breaking up the ice on the Hudson, and this latter fact, with the expectation that it would soon lead to larger supplies, has been a private factor in inducing buyers to stand off, even where they might have handled a fair quantity to advantage. Some dealers, too, have been a little fretful over the dragging state of affairs, and like those in Brooklyn, referred to last week, seemed willing to sell to a moderate extent at a "cut" on what was considered the wholesale line of value. With all these influences therefore the feeling has become quite unsettled, and we find more or less conflict of opinion as expressed by various operators. Not a great many, however, claim any great amount of strength and a number seem slightly inclined to think that unless the demand very quickly and decidedly improved, it will be necessary to offer buyers still greater inducements in order to create an outlet sufficient to offset the supplies available and likely to become so. In this connection it may be well to note that some of the barge loads afloat supposed to be awaiting customers have already been disposed, and that with a prospect of somewhat better weather a little more interest is shown by buyers at the close. We do not pretend to give positive prices at the moment, as the market is of too unstable a character, but the general line of valuation ranges about as follows: North Rivers, $8.00@8.50 per M; Long Islands, $7.35@8.00 do. as to quality. Staten Islands sold at $7.50, and that price still asked, and Jerseys $6.25@6 50, with a few held at $7.00 per M. Pales are quoted at $4.00@4.50 per M, but without any basis of actual business to work upon.

CEMENT.—Winter trading in domestic cement does not as a rule take very positive form and we find considerable margin on the rates quoted by various operators. The differences in price, however, are in a great measure due to the various influences of quality, quantity, delivery, etc., and probably the average cost is much the same as early in the season. Supplies fair, but apparently not excessive, and no unusual effort to realize manifested. The imported stock remains in very good position, and is generally spoken of cheerfully by the selling interest. As noted from time to time, there has been considerable success this season in preventing any important addition to stock, and, with the desirable grades in particular sold close, the tone is naturally well maintained, with agents of most of the leading brands holding contracts against parcels afloat.

GLASS.—Some little demand has prevailed for window glass, possibly a small increase in a few instances, but the movements of buyers are not of an anxious character by any means nor does there appear to be the least inclination to anticipate wants. The resumption of work at the Western mills and a full accumulation of imported goods with tame account from abroad all tend to induce a certain amount of indifference among buyers and keep rates easy, while holders, and especially some of the importers are evidently anxious and partially inclined to urge business. Irregularity is shown at the close and quotations are to some extent nominal.

LATH.—Exactly how much demand there may be for lath at the moment is not very clear as no chance for its development has been presented in the absence of supplies. The "indications," however, are thought to be quite favorable, and receivers generally claim much confidence in their ability to place a considerable amount were it here, and at full rates. Indeed negotiations are pending on one or two cargoes afloat from the Provinces on a basis of last rate at an inside figure. That rate was $2.50 per M, below which nothi g has been sold for weeks, and it may therefore fairly be retained as a nominal quotation.

HARDWARE.—The demand for most kinds of domestic hardware has shown a fair degree of animation, but especially such goods as may be considered seasonable and standard. A great deal of the stock goes to fill interior orders, but local wants are increasing a trifle and promise to continue. There is not, however, any positive animation of a character to really stimulate the market, and holders of stocks are generally found quite as willing to negotiate as buyers. In some cases, the movement of builders' hardware has been behind expectations, owing to larger holdings by jobbers than was anticipated, and a comparatively slow consumption. Prices, as a rule, are considered fairly steady, and the recent irregularity on Screws is less marked. Recently published discount sheets show a slight advance and place the figures as f llows: Flat Head Iron, 70 per cent.; Flat Head Brass, 70 per cent.; Round Head Iron, 65 per cent. and Round Head Brass, 60 per cent. There has been a recent reduction of ½c. per lb. on all kinds of cordage.

LUMBER.—Somewhat larger supplies from coastwise points have come to hand, leading to slight irregularity, but aside from that the market underwent no noticeable change. Indeed, so far as immediate ca ls from buyers may be concerned and their wants for the future there is nothing to vary the monotony of the situation, and we find most of the Trade without news or features of general interest to suggest. Occasional complaints of broken assortments may be heard, but investigation in the majority of cases show that such a claim would only stand good in individual cases and that as a whole the stock and assortment is holding out well against any ordinary call. Aside from coastwise arrivals the only additions at present are in the form of hardwoods, and these must be fine to attract attention from any class of buyers. Holders are not exactly offering stocks with freedom, but continue to be ready sellers when the opportunity occurs, and the tone is simply steady. The absence of a speculative element makes the necessity for liquidation on the lumber market less apparent than in some of the other commodities, but all hands appear to recognize that caution must prevail, and while buyers on the one hand act accordingly by limiting operations, sellers on the other side feel that every reasonable opportunity to move stocks should be taken advantage of, and especially if any line of profit be shown.

Eastern Spruce has an indefinite sort of market consequent upon the irregular shipments and uncertainty surrounding the voyage of vessels when they make a start. There is also a slight doubt over actual selling rates, as a great many contingencies of delivery, both as to time and place, have to be taken into consideration at this season of the year, and charges or allowances made, therefore, as the case may require. Still, the fluctuations are only fractional, as a rule, and about the old general range will suffice as a quotation, or say $13 5(@16.00 for random, up to a pos-ible $17.50 per M for extra difficult special. The demand for specials continues moderate, but a few are booked for early spring delivery, without any positive gain for the seller shown.

White Pine has found some little local demand for manufacturing purposes and there seems to be a feeling that this must further increase. Holders, however, are not possessed of specu'ative feeling enough to wait for an expansion of trade, but believing it best to secure the bird in hand, meet all calls from desirable sources where a modification on values is not expected. Export orders are a little irregular, and, so far as reported, the volume appears to be somewhat reduced. Shipping stock, however, have been broken up a trifle during the past five or six weeks, and over the remainder holders evince but moderate anxiety though inclined to keep trade in motion when opportunity offers. We quote $18 50@22 00 for West India shipping boards; $28 00@30.00 for South American do.; $17 00@18.00 for box boards, and $18.50@19.00 for extra do.

Yellow Pine retained a somewhat uncertain market, but gives no evidence of immediate positive improvement. Agents are still picking up a few free on board orders, and that keeps them moderately busy, but they appear to sell little on local account. There is, however, now and then to be noticed on the part of some buyers a slight increase of interest in chances for future cost of goods, and there may therefore be taken for granted that as spring approaches demand will revive in something of the usual form if not in full volume. At the South the "buzz of the saw" is heard more generally, and many of the mills are really quite in business form at the moment, but manufacturers have no protracted engagements for their product and look for additional orders. We quote as follows: Randoms, $20 @ 22 per M; Specials, $21 @ 3 do.; Green Flooring Boards, $21@25; Dry do., do., $25@26; Step Plank, $30@35 do.; Cargoes f. o. b. at Atlantic ports, $14@16 for rough, and $19@21 for dressed. Cargoes f. o. b. at Gulf ports, $13@15 for rough, and $18@20 for dressed.

Hardwoods continue in very fair demand on small orders for choice stock, and as the desirable supply available does not amount to much holders experience no great difficulty in maintaining a steady range of prices. Anything "off" meets with the usual fate and has no price until a sale can be made. We quote at wholesale rates by car-load about as follows: Walnut, $65@110 per M; ash, $35@40 do.; oak, $30@55 do.; maple, $20@32.50 do.; chestnut, $25@30 do.; cherry, $40 @75 do.; whitewood ½ and ⅝ inch. $25@30 do., do., and do. inch, $28@38; hickory, $45@55 do.

Shingles continue to meet with some little export demand, and nearly every week small parcels are shipped. On home account, however, the outlet amounts to nothing, and values remain to some extent nominal. We quote Cypress at $8 per M for 5x20 and $10 do. for 6x20 regularly assorted shipping; Pine shipping stock $2.50 for 18 inch, and Eastern saw grades at $2.50@4.50 for 16 inch, as to quality and to quantity. Machine dressed cedar shingles quoted as follows: for 30 inch $15@20 for A, and $20@28.50 for No. 1; for 24 inch, $10.50@15 for A and $15@20.50 for No. 1; for 20 inch $7@9.50 for A and $9@12.50 for No. 1.

GENERAL LUMBER NOTES.

THE WEST.

The Northwestern Lumberman as follows:

CHICAGO.

AT THE YARDS.—The lumber trade of this city is rising from its winter lethargy and shaking itself. Just as inquiries and actual demand for shipments began to show signs of renewed life, the railroads declared war on rates to Missouri River points, cutting the figure to ten cents a hundred pounds. This means a stir among the bones of trade that were becoming exceedingly dry from inaction. Two weeks ago—yes, one week—there were merchants that were almost ready to give up the business, so discouraged were they at the dullness prevailing. The same individuals are now so full of work that they have no time to reflect on the recent past. The signs of revival are everywhere visible. The uprising is phenominal, considering its suddenness.

But while there is to be a great increase of sales and shipment in consequence of the low freight rate, it is a question as to what general effect the movement will have on values. Until recently, since the closing of navigation, the tendency has been to moderation and firmness of values. Will the new dash of trade demoralize prices? There is a difference of opinion about this question. The fact that dry stock is not plenty will probably tend to strengthen prices for such stock, under the stress of large and rapid shipment. On the other hand, the unarmed traveling salesmen will all be out, and will compete with each other fiercely for orders. Country dealers have all the season been expecting cheaper lumber, and will now demand what they expected, emphasizing their demand by a plea of low freight rates on delivered lists. It is to be feared that the trade here will follow its customary habit of being more eager to unload than to realize a fair profit, and will make concessions in order to beat rivals in securing orders. It may likewise be expected that the Mississippi River dealers, who are just beginning to feel the revival of demand, will enter the field as earnest competitors for Western trade. And since the cut rates from Chicago to Missouri River points are calculated to stir up the shippers at Minneapolis, Eau Claire, and all Northwestern markets, an avalanche of competition from that quarter may be looked for. It is to be hoped, however, that the necessities of shippers to obtain reasonably dry lumber may prevent a wholesale concession in price.

Up to date there have been no important changes in the prices of yard stock. The shading of the "official" list amounts to from 50 cents to $1, averaged through the entire schedule This is considered an evidence of a fairly firm condition. The effect of the reduced Western freight rate on prices has not yet become visible.

The floods in the Ohio and its tributaries will inevitably cause much loss and hindrance to manufacturers and shippers in the region cursed by the overflow. The high water will cut off, or delay, much lumber that goes Southwest from this city and Michigan points. No intimation of the extent of damages has yet reached this office.

In Hardwoods walnut is the deadest thing on the list, as far as common and culls are concerned. No one wants them, and every one that uses them seems to have an abundance on hand. The furniture trade is sick, which accounts for the ill health of Walnut. Some furniture factories are positively shut down, while about all the others stop to rest occasionally, or manufacture at a very lazy rate. Oak and ash are in only tolerable request, but prices are firm for good plank. This market seems to have a healthy appetite for good cherry, and though some lots have been placed at shaded figures, "good Cherry is as good as gold," as a dealer put it. Chicago is more and more coming to be recognized as a good market for this wood, and while cherry is brought here from wherever it grows, west of the Susquehanna River, purchasers from a still wider range come here to find the cherry they need.

The prospective heavy building the coming season in Chicago is felt in large contracts for maple flooring which are being made. Some heavy handlers report that they are already far ahead of their last year's contracts.

Whitewood is in rather bad shape. Though it is claimed that the available stock on hand in Tennessee is small, there are a plenty of manufacturers who seem to think their own surplus is too large and are disposing of it in a way to injure the trade.

The Minneapolis Lumberman and Manufacturer says: "A few job lots of badly made Wisconsin lumber are being offered at a shade off, but the regular trade is at full prices. Among the sales of the week we note two of 300,000 and 500,000, which were made without concession. The loggers are being specially favored by the element and are doing better than they have done for years. The log crop will certainly exceed the sawing capacity of the mills, but this should not affect prices on lumber because the mills can only saw enough to supply the demand now in prospect. A most important item is that many of the millers are purposely providing themselves with nearly a year's stock of logs for their mills in advance, and are in a much better situation to carry over the logs than ever before. This will account for part of the excessive log crop. No stream in the pineries can be found that will not furnish more than was intended."

FOREIGN.

The London Timber Trade's Journal of January 19 contains one of the most elaborate reviews of the market we have ever seen. It is impossible to make any fair condensation, even did our space admit, and we rest content with the two following extracts:

It has been recently shown in this journal that the importation of wood goods last year was the largest since 1877, and very nearly equivalent to that production; the figures were as follows, exclusive of staves and furniture wood. For 1877 the import amounted to—

	Loads.	Value.
Difference.....	196,123	£2,962,401

If we average the value of a load of building timber, hard and soft, at 60s.. ex ship one with another, we shall allow quite enough; and at this rate the cost of 196,123 loads would be £588,369, which, being deducted from the aforesaid difference of valuation between 1877 and 1883, leaves £2,374,032 as the difference of value between the quantity imported last year and the same quantity in 1877. These are remarkable figures. According to experienced authorities, for eign timber was by this time to be at famine prices; yet our importations in 1883 cost us less by £2,374,032 than the same quantity did in 1877.

The timber trade of Liverpool seems not to have been so satisfactory last year as it might have been; in fact, few places have had so much to say on the unfavorable side as Liverpool, the market having been overwhelmed by supplies, for which there was only a limited demand. The influx of Baltic fir timber is stated to be about 50 per cent more than in 1882, and the stock on hand equal to nine months' consumption. Spruce deals, a staple article in Liverpool, have also overpowered the market; and, instead of wondering that prices should be so low, the surprise is that they keep up so well as they do. It is very much to be desired that more moderation should be exercised in the shipments next season. Who will commit himself to an adventure when the chances are all against his making a profit by it?

NAILS.—Little or no change of a decided character can be found in the general conditions of this market. Demand fluctuates somewhat, but on the whole may be called fair and covers the usual outlets, and requires about an ordinary assortment. The quantity of stock available is fully equal to the necessities of the market, and holders appear quite ready to part with it at former cost. Some sales in full invoices have been made at $2 50 per keg, but $2.60@2.65 are nearer the average figures for 10d. to 6 d.

A dispatch from Pittsburg, Pa., under date of Feb. 13th, says: "The Western Nail Association met this afternoon and reduced the card rate from $3.40 to $2.60. The stocks were reported light and trade un atisfactory. The question of prolonging the suspension of the nail-machines was not discussed, and as the six weeks' shut down expires on February 11 all are at liberty to resume. Owing to the flood only a few factories in the West are in operation."

The above is a mere nominal reduction in cost, and simply adopts the rate at which business has for some time been conducted.

PAINTS AND OILS.—Business has been fairly active, with a slight improvement made in values in one or two cases, but buyers are almost too cautious in their movements to give sellers much advantage. Some little trading in Paris Green for future delivery has of late taken place, at steady rates. White Lead finds the usual trade demand, and there is evidences of a coming increase in the distribution, but accumulations in first hands are full and values do not stimulate to any extent on either domestic or foreign stock. Linseed Oil has been in very good general request, and commanded former rates all around. We quote at 56@58 for domestic, and 58@59 for foreign. Spirits Turpentine in better general demand and higher, closing firm at 37@39c., per gall., according to size of invoice.

PITCH AND TAR.—A moderately active trade demand from the regular run of customers has prevailed with no change in prices on the general features of the market. We quote pitch $2.25@2.30 per bbl., and tar $2.50@3.00 do., according to quantity, quality and delivery.

FEBRUARY 23, 1884.

A Washington letter elsewhere conveys some information which may well be called startling. Our correspondent says that Bismarck means war. Germany has a great and so far useless navy, and as the cities on the American coast are enormously wealthy and utterly defenseless, he proposes to find a pretext to seize them, and force the United States to pay as large an indemnity as did France. Our correspondent predicts that the next step of Bismarck will be to annex some West India islands in defiance of the Monroe Doctrine, but he does not explain why. The explanation is that Germany could not make an attack upon the United States without establishing a naval station near our coast.

What a pity Theo. Roosevelt is not a Democrat. If he were he would be the next Mayor of New York. Indeed it might be possible to elect him as the opponent of all the machines. The bulk of the Republicans of this city are as restive under the rule of Johnny O'Brien as are the bulk of the Democrats to the domination of Kelly and Thompson. If the Republicans should put up Roosevelt as the local standard bearer it would force the Democratic factions to nominate good men in opposition to him. We have always advocated the principle of the bill passed by the Assembly last Wednesday. But, of course, that measure does not go far enough; the Mayor should have the power of removal as well as appointment. But a half a loaf is better than no bread, and if Mayors make bad appointments when they have the power they will be called to a stern account by public opinion. Albany reports say there is little probability of the Assembly's action being confirmed by the State Senate. This body cannot be changed for two years, a fact which makes one regret that some political machinery is not provided by which elected legislators can be forced to come before their constituents at any time and run the chances of a new election. We nominate Theodore Roosevelt as the Republican nominee for next Mayor and Edward H. Ludlow, President of the Real Estate Exchange, as the Democratic candidate.

An effort has been made to raise money for a statue to the late Peter Cooper. It was in the form of a popular subscription and has had but indifferent success. Peter Cooper would make but a poor statue. He had a homely face and an ungainly figure. The greatest honor connected with his name is the Cooper Union. In that institution he was a quarter of a century a head of the American people. We have been felicitating ourselves on a common school education which does not fit the youth of our country for their work in life. By instituting a technical school, and showing the value of science and art when applied to industry, Peter Cooper furnished an example to the citizens of this country which they should have profited by. And in some few instances this has been done. Mr. Auchmuity has opened an establishment on Second avenue to train lads and young men to be scientific mechanics; our New York College is taking a step in the same direction, and now comes the welcome news that the city council of Toledo, Ohio, has adopted resolutions to establish a manual training school in connection with the public school, as a part of the high school course, where each pupil may receive practical training in any selected branch of mechanics. This is an intelligent and genuine effort to fit youths for future life work, and, if properly conducted, the institute cannot be too highly appreciated. Industrial education is exactly the thing needful for the youth of this country, and its general provision would secure a remedy in part for several of the social problems that now perplex us.

Our reduced shipments of wheat and corn to Europe are due, says the Modern Miller, to a much greater home consumption than is generally suspected. Our population of late years has been increasing very rapidly. In 1870 it was 38,558,000. The gain in ten years was 11,590,000. Allowing for the very large immigration for the last few years the Modern Miller estimates our present population at 60,907,000. A better estimate, however, is 58,029,417. This is based on the same ratio of increase which prevailed from 1870 to 1880, plus the emigration we have had since that time. As the working-classes have received good wages recently they have been larger consumers than usual. The Miller thinks that not more than 25 per cent. of the crop of 1883 now remains in the farmer's hands, and though the present visible supply is excessive, the actual crop is considerably more than 100,000,000 bushels short of the crop of 1882. In short, the Miller thinks that our increase in population keeps so near to our wheat supply that a very well defined wolf may be seen prowling around the front gate.

The Gold Controversy.

According to the Seligman Bros., the United States will ship abroad some $30,000,000 of gold this spring, and much more in the fall if our crops turn out badly. As we stated last week, when gold shipments were likely, the newspapers would immediately say that it was due to the coinage of the silver dollar, yet the mints were turning out $2,000,000 per month during all the time we were importing gold. The reason why we will export gold now instead of importing it, as we did some years back, is because we have had poorer crops and lower prices for the little we sell to foreign nations. Hence exchange is against us, and we must send gold abroad to pay for our imports. Then as gold is the sole unit of value among commercial nations it is becoming more costly daily, which fact is shown by the shrinkage of values of all the commodities it measures. The true facts in the case are never furnished to the New York reading public, as the daily press persistently gives false explanations of the situation. All our journals seem to be in the pay of the great money-lending banking institutions, as they never by any accident tell the truth.

We published, a short time since, the fact of the organization of a Bi-metallic International Union in this city, with a membership of such persons as U. S. Grant, Hamilton Fish, Henry Clews and others equally well known. The secretary of this organization has received the following letter from A. H. Buckner, which we hope our subscribers will not only read, but will induce others to read also. The United States is bi-metallic, and is misrepresented in this respect by the singularly provincial press of New York city. But here is Mr. Buckner's letter:

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES, U. S.
WASHINGTON, D. C., Feb. 11th, 1884.

W. M. Boucher, Esq., New York:

DEAR SIR—I have yours of the 8th inst. with its inclosures as well as the English bi-metallic papers. Many thanks for these tracts as well as for former favors of like kind.

I am in hearty sympathy with your effort to organize an International Bi-metallic Association for the United States, and if my name is worth anything towards aiding it, you are at liberty to use it. The present is a propitious period for enlightening the public mind on the necessity and importance of co-operation among the chief commercial nations of the world in fixing a permanent relation between the two money-metals. The published addresses of the English Bi-metallic Association by men of profound thought and of great practical experience in financial questions, indicate not only the great change of opinion that has been going on among the English people on the subject of bi-metallism within the last year, but they also offer the most cogent reasons for the opinion that the depression in the prices of commodities since 1873 is chiefly, if not alone, due to the appreciation of gold, growing out of the large demand for it by the United States, Germany and other European nations.

If the facts collated by such men as Goschen, Gibbs and others, and their deductions therefrom, are not wholly misleading the further disuse of silver as money, and its further substitution by gold will necessarily lead to great financial embarrassments, general decline in prices and violent monetary convulsions among the principal commercial people. So great is the interest felt on the subject of bi-metallism and kindred questions that the International Association of England have resolved to ask from Parliament authorization for a Royal Commission to inquire into the causes of the present depression in the prices of commodities and the influence that the increased demand for gold and the diminished money demand for silver has had on these prices. That the commercial relations of Great Britain with her East India possessions have been greatly embarrassed by the appreciation of gold (or as Eastern mono-metallists would express it, by the depreciation of silver) is universally conceded, and it will be fortunate for her people if they are not forced again to atone in sack-cloth and ashes for the great mistake of 1816, made under the lead of Lord Liverpool. The United States, if possible, has a deeper interest than Great Britain in maintaining if possible an international agreement by which the relation between the two metals shall become fixed and permanent.

Its commercial intercourse with and its proximity to so many of the silver-using nations of the world, and its wonderful mineral resources both of gold and silver, to say nothing of the anomalous and unsatisfactory status of its silver coinage, makes the question of the complete rehabilitization, and unification of the two metals of supreme and paramount importance. An association in the United States, properly managed and acting in concert with similar associations already organized in Great Britain and on the continent of Europe, will manifest our profound interest in this great question, aid in enlightening public opinion in this country, and tend to give aid, comfort and encouragement to all in other countries who are working to the same great end. At present and for years past the conservatism of England, and the influence of her example and power over less important nationalities, has been the chief obstacle to our success; but the demands of her commerce, the depression of her cotton industry, and the rapid growth of competition in cotton manufactures in British India, are awakening her to a realization of the truth that the gold blanket is of too scant proportions to cover that trade and business of the world.

In the United States the victory of bi-metallism is already assured, and mono-metallism is among the things of the past; and I believe the whole people of the United States will rejoice with exceeding joy when the great powers of the world unite in an agreement for a fixed rate between the two metals, and for their free and unrestricted coinage. Your proposed association will play an important part in the speedy advent of that day, and I shall be glad to co-operate with you in bringing about their desired consummation I am very truly, your obedient servant,

A. H. Buckner.

Save Money.

One of the reasons of the uncertainty of the law is because its rules are scattered in so many books that no ordinary business man has the time to hunt them out. Hence, one would think that the business men and farmers in our State Legislature would gladly vote for a Civil Code, which, like the Code Napoleon in France, should plainly state in language all can comprehend the settled rules of law in relation to property, real and personal. Such a code was carefully prepared by Alexander Bradford, Wm. Curtis Noyes and David Dudley Field, commissioners appointed for that purpose, and reported to the Legislature away back in 1865, and it has been in the hands of lawyers and judges and has been before the various Legislatures ever since. We ourselves have had a copy which Alexander Bradford gave us in 1867, as a reward for careful attention to the details of a lawsuit, and we have constantly used it since, finding it a mine of wealth for succinct, correct statement as the law is upon the subjects aforesaid. Now that code is again before our Legislature as Senate Bill No. 87, and if the people of this State understood what is to their benefit, they would from every quarter insist upon the passage of this bill; it would put a clear statement of the law in the hands of every man, and prevent thousands of lawsuits annually; for this reason it is supported by that better class of the bar who are glad to aid in everything that is a real benefit to the community. Some differences of opinion exist as to some of the details, but as a whole it is a monument of the knowledge and industry of David Dudley Field, and is a correct exposition of what every man might and ought to know to his great profit. There is no more reason why a merchant should be obliged to hunt through a thousand volumes of reports to find the principles of the law (or pay a thousand dollars to a lawyer to do it for him), than there is that the Register's and County Clerk's offices should be kept as close corporations, throwing away uselessly on those officials over $100,000 annually when a simple locality index and the preservation of searches once made would save that large amount, which is wrung as a tax from the transfer and mortgage of our real estate. But merchants will not take the trouble to see that the Civil Code becomes a law, nor will property owners support a movement to lessen the expense of searches; they would all rather throw away their money, and grumble.

Our Prophetic Department.

Operator—What is the outlook now, Sir Oracle? Has not the bull campaign run to emptyings? How soon will the bears be again in the ascendency?

Sir Oracle—Their time will come in the spring, but is not due just yet; the bulls have control of the market, and while they may not mark up prices they will prevent the bears from making any violent raids. Some weeks ago, in January, when the prices were at their lowest, I confidently predicted that there would soon be a turn for the better. I reasoned that the difference between Government 3 per cent. and the 8 per cent. stocks was too great to last long. Either Governments were not worth par or the dividend-paying stocks were selling for less than their value, for I believed that values would affect the market price in time. Since then we have had an advance, but I really think that the great dividend-paying stocks are still very cheap, and that there is a large margin of profit for those who invest in them. If New York Central, Lake Shore, Rock Island and Western Union were paying only 6 per cent. they would be cheap at the present market prices.

Operator — How about special stocks, like Pullman Car Company?

Sir O.—That company earns a great deal of money, and so long as Mr. Pullman lives will continue to pay its 8 per cent. dividend. But in so complex a business I should be doubtful about the value of its shares when the head which organized the corporation is no longer in its service. Pullman cars are found on many different lines and are a part of not one but of many systems of railroad. Then it is a manufacturing company, and, finally, it owns a town and collects rents for the occupied houses. See what a chance there is for waste and mismanagement in an organization which has so many duties. All manufacturing enterprises in time come to grief.

Operator.—All the newspaper writers seem to agree that the market is manipulated, and that if left to natural causes prices would continue their downward course.

Sir O.—Undoubtedly the organization of which Gould is the head intends to maintain prices. Union Pacific, Louisville & Nashville and Lackawanna have in turn been employed to stiffen the market. But the bulls have had the advantage of very low figures to start from. Undoubtedly stocks afford a better opening than does general business, and hence I expect to see a steady withdrawal of good securities from the "street."

Observer.—How about wheat and cotton?

Sir O.—I have been a bear on wheat for the past year. The visible stocks were so large as to show that the consumption could not overtake them until it was known what the new crops would amount to. I think pork is altogether too high, and there is very little money in the bull side in cotton. Set me down as a bear on food products, animal and vegetable, and a moderate bull on A 1 securities, such as stocks and bonds.

Operator.—Will general trade improve?

Sir O.—There will, I think, be some revival in business up to the gathering of the crops. Iron has gone up in price; production has been checked so that consumption has nearly overtaken it. New enterprises are being talked of. It is now certain that there will be more building in New York than seemed likely in early January. There may be some very unexpected disaster, but, barring that, I am inclined to be hopeful.

Over the Ticker.

THE Manhattan-Metropolitan imbroglio is said to be substantially settled. The committee representing the non-belligerent directors of the two companies have had repeated meetings, and have arrived at what they consider a fair solution of the matters in dispute. But they have not been able to shake off the lawyers, who insist that certain suits must have a legal settlement before a final adjustment is arrived at. This accounts for the recent rise in Manhattan.

A VERY good symptom is the partial revival of the iron industries. The glass-blowers and iron workers of Pittsburg are again busy. The spring trade has opened, and altogether the outlook is more cheerful than it was. Trade is depressed compared with what it was, but there seems to have been a check to the lowering of prices. There is more demand for cotton goods, and unless something untoward occurs the spring business will be better than the fall trade. These favoring circumstances will react on real estate should they continue.

THE market is still held well in hand. This is by all odds the most skillfully manipulated bull campaign ever inaugurated. It cannot however last always.

STILL the fact remains that good stocks are cheap for what better can an investor do than purchase a security less than par which pays 6 per cent. and 7 per cent. interest?

READING looks high at 60, but then when the line is completed which connects its coal and iron property with the Vanderbilt system it ought to advantage Reading very greatly. Its property in coal and iron is potentially the most valuable of any in the Union.

PACIFIC MAIL is being skillfully worked and its friends say that dividends will surely be forthcoming in April, but the stock has been a very treacherous one for all outsiders.

IF wheat would go down some ten points perhaps we would not need to ship gold. We shall retain our wheat until next year unless there is a serious drop in its present price.

PETROLEUM operators have had a hard time of it lately. It is slippery stuff to deal in, and no one makes money in it except the insiders in the Standard Oil Company, who gamble in this oleaginous substance with marked cards.

NOTWITHSTANDING the disfavor in which mining shares are held, there are still some good properties on the market, and some that are promising. Among these may be mentioned Ontario, Standard, Iron Silver, Father De Smet, Chrysolite and Sierra Grande. Bulwer is good but is selling too high and Bodie, which has value, is handled by a sharp.

Besides the Civil Code, of which we have spoken elsewhere, the Legislature ought to pass the final codification of the statutes at large, that is, of what is left of them since the Code of Practice (civil procedure), the Penal Code, and the Criminal Code have been adopted; these various bits and remnants have been gathered together and systematically arranged in one volume by that industrious Commissioner, Montgomery H. Throop (author of our present Code of Practice), and by him reported last week to this Legislature. When these remaining codes are adopted, the seven or eight volumes of the statutory codes of the State will contain all that every private citizen desires ordinarily to know about the rules of law, and they will save him many a fee and many a loss.

Bismarck's snub of our American Congress ought to be a warning to the latter body. It is pure demagoguery to pass resolutions merely to please Irish or German voters, and by doing so wounding the susceptibilities of foreign governments. Lasker made an able and brilliant fight against Bismarck's system and got worsted, and there was nothing in his career to justify our Congress in going out of its way to compliment him, living or dead. It behooves us also to be careful for another reason. The United States is the most defenceless nation on earth. Any third-rate naval power could seize all the cities on the Atlantic coast within six weeks after a declaration of war. Bismarck could force as large an indemnity from the United States as he obtained from France. We have no navy and no defences, nor any possibility of having any for five years to come. According to the report of the Ordinance Board it would take three years to secure the necessary plant for casting the great guns needed to protect our harbors. We have not got the guns and could not purchase them in case of necessity, nor could we make them within three years unless we commenced securing the plant, which will not be given us by Congress for several years to come, if ever. Ours is a great nation potentially, but as a military and naval power it stands in the lowest rank. We cannot afford to indulge in "bunkum" at the expense of any European power, for, however grossly we may be insulted, we are so pitiably weak that we could not resent the affront.

Concerning Men and Things.

The daily press are all eulogizing Gilbert and Sullivan's latest production, "The Princess Ida," but it is easy to predict that it will not long keep the stage. The costumes are pretty, and that is about all that can be said in its favor. There is no characterization, no novelties in the way of business, while the music lacks "go." The names of its author and composer will carry the piece for a while. There are splendid chances for making a bewitching parody of Tennyson's Princess, but they were not taken advantage of in "Princess Ida."

Wendell Phillips had an adopted daughter who was married to George W. Smalley, the London correspondent of the Tribune. Mrs. Smalley will inherit Wendell Phillips' fortune when Mrs. Phillips dies. Smalley has lived so long in London that he has imbibed all the violent prejudices of a certain set of English Liberals with whom he has consorted. He reflects their admiration for Mr. Gladstone and their detestation of Lord Randolph Churchill, who is the ablest debator and the rising man of the Tory party. He is malignantly unjust, also, to Mr. Parnell, the great Irish leader. Although he puffed the disreputable Langtry because she was the associate of people of high birth, he does all he can to discredit Mary Anderson. Her character being unassailable this Anglicised-American "cad" does all he can to discredit her as an artist. It is surprising that the editor of the Tribune, who is a liberal-minded gentleman, tolerates this prejudiced and mean-spirited correspondent.

"Lady Clare" has made a hit at Wallacks, and will probably save what promised to be a ruinous season; yet it is only a fairly good piece very well acted, and beautifully set and costumed. A feature of the piece is the love-making between a boy of seventeen and a girl of fifteen, which seemed to please the audience mightily, but which would be anything but pleasant if it occurred in a private family. Boys and girls are not usually encouraged to talk about love and marriage and to embrace and kiss in such a manner as would engage lovers of mature age. The girl would probably be sent to bed supperless and the boy whipped, if not forbidden the house. But it is strange to see a Wallack audience keenly enjoying these very reprehensible scenes. Mr. Wallack, it is said, is not as well off as he once was; he has made no great successes for several years, and his expenses are heavy.

"Separation," at the Union Square, is a well constructed piece and very well acted, and is likely to run longer than "Lady Clare." Mr. Bartley Campbell can fairly claim to have conquered success. He has unquestionable dramatic ability, but that would not have availed him had he not great persistence, a faculty acquired early, probably, in his career as a newspaper reporter.

New Yorkers are willing to put up money to support an unprofitable opera. It is now very certain that the Metropolitan Opera House will never pay expenses. Its owners will have to guarantee to pay a subsidy, and a large one, to whoever will produce grand opera in a befitting manner. The assessment this year will be over three thousand dollars each to the various owners of the stock. Why not a dramatic temple in New York similar to the Theatre Francais? It would be a school of dramatic art where none but first-class plays would be performed. This would elevate the whole dramatic profession. America is already rich in dramatic artists, and when the close of the century finds us with a population of nearly eighty millions we will have developed a vast field for theatricals. But we lack training schools and especially a great theatre which will be a model to all other theatres in the splendor of its appointments and the perfection of its acting. Such an establishment as this would be one of the attractions of the metropolis, and it might pay some of our large real estate owners to inaugurate it.

Tom Ochiltree is a sport and a reputed gambler. He has one great ambition, that of being considered the greatest liar on earth. His public career was rendered possible by Rigolo, of the Sun, who wrote him up in that paper and advertises him widely in the Hour. Ochiltree has red hair, is short and squot in figure, and, in company, is much more of a butt than a wit. By a strange irony of fate, this common-place liar and alleged gambler has achieved a certain distinction by his resolutions concerning Lasker, the Jewish agitator, which was allowed to go through the House of Representatives when that body was in a buncombe mood. Resolutions to please the Irish or German vote are easily got through Congres, and Bismarck was quite right in giving this country a slap in the face for following the lead of such a fellow as Tom Ochiltree.

The Dial is the name of a new evening paper, which will have some novel features. All of its important articles are to be signed by the names of the writers. Geo. Crouch, well known in Wall street as well as in journalistic circles, and J. C. Hancock, formerly of the World newspaper, will be the editors. So far we have only one good evening paper, the Post. There have many new ones started recently without making any impression upon the public. Geo. Crouch is a fighter, and will make things lively for the leading Wall street people. The Dial will indulge in pictures sometimes.

Startling, If True.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 21, 1884.

[From an Occasional Correspondent.]

I understand there is real alarm in the State Department at the beligerent attitude of Germany, although that nation is not seriously in debt, it is a poor country and needs more money than it can raise, to support its military establishment. It is an open secret that for years Bismarck has been anxious to extend the naval power of Germany, for he believes that without a foreign commerce Germany will never be able to take the position in Europe which her statesmen are anxious she should occupy. Bismarck would like to conquer Holland and Belgium, at least so much of them as lies upon the east bank of the Rhine. But that would involve a great European war, in which Germany would have no allies. France, Russia, England, Sweden, Norway and Denmark would enter the field against her as well as Holland and Belgium.

Bismarck, it is now alleged, has made up his mind to pick a quarrel with the United States. The exclusion of our pork products was the first step in that direction. The harmless Lasker resolution, which was not worth noticing, has been made the pretext for affronting the United States. Minister Sargent reports that Bismarck snubs him on every occasion. The next step it is said, will be the annexation of some West India islands, and a recognition of European control over the Panama Canal—in short, a contemptuous defiance of the Monroe Doctrine. The fact is now recalled that German naval officers have recently visited this country incognito, and made a thorough investigation of the harbor defences of the great cities on the Atlantic seacoast. All military and naval authorities here agreed that within six weeks after a declaration of war, by a power as strong in iron-clads as Germany, that Portland, Boston, New York, Philadelphia, Baltimore, and probably Washington would pass into her possession. We are absolutely defenceless, and it would take at least three years to build the necessary batteries and forts to defend our harbors. Our chief want is great guns. These we could not have in sufficent quantities of our own make in less than five years, and neither France, England, Italy or any other power which has modern appliances of war could sell them to us, as that would be an act of war against Germany.

But it may be asked, why should Germany wish to humiliate the United States? But the reasons are obvious. Germany is poor and could force the United States to pay an enormous subsidy to fill the impoverished treasury of the German Empire. Then Bismarck wishes to test the value of his iron-clad fleet and gain distinction for his country as a naval as well as military power. He wishes also to stop the emigration from Germany to the United States, as well as to check for a while, at least, the flood of socialistic literature and correspondence which is sent from the United States to the Fatherland. OBSERVER.

The Committee of the Stock Exchange, which advertised for a site for a possible new Exchange, say they have received many eligible offers which are under advisement, but of course as yet they do not care to let it be known what selection they are likely to make, if any. It seems they wanted to purchase the adjoining corner on New street, corner of Wall, as well as the corner on Broad street and Exchange place, including Delmonico's. The figure demanded for the latter was so exorbitant as to be out of the question, and the Mortimer estate on Wall street could not be purchased in fee, but a lease would have been given for ninety-nine years. The Stock Exchange would have nothing to do with leases, and the estate in question will therefore build on the site an eight-story edifice, as has already been announced.

The circulation of THE RECORD AND GUIDE is steadily increasing and its influence widening, not only in the large circle of our home subscribers but abroad as well. It is pleasant to be appreciated, especially when the evidences come in as tangible a form as the letter we received this week from Mr. Wm. Jose, of Fries, Rheinish Prussia, who says, in inclosing his check for another yearly subscription, "I have promptly received it here for the seven months past, and I keep reading it with as much interest as I did when in my old quarters in the Bible House."

ALBANY, February 21.

There has been plenty of talk this week on matters affecting realty in New York, but little accomplished, except to pave the way for work hereafter. Two or three delegations have been here to press upon the committee the bill for new parks in the Twenty-third and Twenty-fourth wards, some of them distinguished and influential parties. No action has as yet been taken by the committee.

A large delegation has also been here to discuss the new building law, including a number of prominent builders. Fire Commissioner Purroy, Superindent Esterbrook and several well-known architects. The fact has been developed this week that the principal advocates of the bill do not care whether the Building Bureau is made a separate department or not. They desire the other provision. It may be considered settled that the Building Bureau will be retained in the Fire Department, and that there will be several other changes made in the bill before it is reported. There is to be another hearing on the bill next week.

The holders of property on the upper end of Manhattan Island have been in Albany in large numbers this week, appealing to the Legislature to pass the bill extending the time of the Rapid Transit Commission for the completion of its work. They called attention to the numerous disappointments in securing legislation that will enable the construction of roads to that part of the island, and how its development has been retarded thereby. They appealed for the passage of that bill or some other that will give them facilities for reaching that part of the island cheap enough to be within the reach of the masses of the people. The arguments presented were applicable to the proposed cable plan, the pending general street railroad bill, or the arcade project. They demanded that the appeal for authority to construct more roads of some kind should not be longer refused.

The agreement before the committee to relieve the streets of New York of the unsightly telegraph poles and the buildings of the net work of wires, by providing that they shall be laid underground, has removed the main plea of the opponents of the bill. Burtis Harrison, who has been here before on the same subject, repeated his statement that the scheme of placing the wires underground is impracticable, and that they could not be worked on that plan. A gentleman from Pittsburg stepped forward with the evidence that wires had been placed underground in that city eighteen months ago; that they have since worked better and with less obstruction than those elevated on poles. The companies are left with nothing but the expense as an excuse for not placing the wires underground.

The bill to concentrate power and responsibility in the Mayor, by relieving him from the incubus of the Board of Aldermen in making appointments, has passed the Assembly. It has yet to run the guantlet of the Senate and the Governor. It does not take effect until next January, and, therefore, if it becomes a law, Mayor Edson will have to submit his nomination for Comptroller, Corporation Counsel and Commissioner of Public Works next fall to the Aldermen for confirmation. The Mayor who succeeds Mr. Edson will only have the appointment of one Park Commissioner, one Dock Commissioner, one Tax Commissioner, one Fire Commissioner and two Police Commissioners. In neither case will he be able to appoint a majority of any board. The millenium will not be reached under that bill for some time to come.

The bill for the improvement of Paradise Park at Five Points has passed the Senate and gone to the Governor.

The bill establishing a park at Corlears Hook, at Cherry and Jackson streets, to embrace ten acres, has been ordered to third reading in the Senate, and the bill to enlarge the boundaries of Gansevoort Market, by adding another block to it, has passed the Senate.

Governor Cleveland has vetoed the bill to prevent tunneling under Washington Park, on the ground that the present law protects the park from surface roads or interferance, and a tunnel road can be constructed under it without in the least interfering with the surface of the park.

The bill for the improvement of the water front from Eighty-sixth street on the East River, round through Hell Gate harbor to Third avenue on Harlem River, was introduced to-day by Mr. Van Allen. It gives authority to the Dock Commissioners to adopt and establish a permanent plan of the water front from the intersection of Third avenue and Harlem River, along that river and down to Eighty-sixth street on the East River, and makes that when established the sole plan under which wharves, piers, bulkheads, basins, slips, structures or superstructures shall be constructed within the territory, and the sole plan for solid filling, repealing all other laws in reference to plans for that section.

It also provides that the Commissioners of Docks shall determine the water-front on the westerly side of Harlem River, from Third avenue down the river to Hell Gate buoy to Eighty-sixth street, and to ascertain the capacities and requirements of said water-front for adaptation to commercial and other uses. Also to build such suitable bulkheads, wharves, piers or slips in that portion of the territory as they may deem the wants of commerce for that section shall require, and secure the necessary lands therefor. And they shall on or before six months after the plans for said water-front shall be adapted and certified to by the Commissioners of the Sinking Fund, commence proceedings to acquire the necessary lands to build one or more wharves, piers or slips within the district between Ninety-second and One Hundred and Ninth streets, and in case they shall not within that time commence such proceedings, then it shall be lawful for the owner or owners of any lands within said district, fronting on and adjacent to any slip, pier or dock built or laid out, to excavate the necessary ground in front of their lots, build and maintain such bulkheads, piers or slips as are required or permitted by said plans in front of their premises. The owners of any lands on either side of the docks or bulkheads so built shall have and use the lands under water in front, and may extend said bulkheads, piers and slips to the line established by law on said water-front at their own cost and expense in such manner as may be approved by the Department of Docks, and such owners shall have the right to use the same for loading boats or vessels and other commercial purposes, and the right to collect wharfage for their own use or make special agreement with persons permitted to use them as to compensation for such use.

The bill to enlarge the powers contained in the charter of the Broadway Underground Railroad, so that the company shall not be confined to a double-track dark tunnel road, was introduced in both Houses to-day. It changes the name of the company to the New York Arcade Railway, and gives authority to construct a four-track road under what is known as the Arcade plan. The bill provides that the company may excavate to the depth of not less than 16 feet, except at Canal street and one-fourth of a mile above and below that point on Broadway. The company construct all necessary temporary tram ways. It shall have power to remove all sewer, water, gas, steam and other pipes, wires, tubes, &c., obstructing work in the construction of its railways at its own expense and place them in side sub-ways. Within thirty days after the passage of the bill the Governor shall appoint three commissioners as a supervisory board over the proceedings of the company. The bill sets forth the nature of supervisory powers delegated to the commission, the method of condemning and securing necessary property, and engineering details of the work and the necessary safeguards for protection of the rights of the city and adjacent property-holders.

Mr. Campbell has introduced in the Senate a bill to prevent the use of the sheds constructed on the piers and bulkheads for storehouses, for goods, or for any other purposes than that of receiving and discharging freight.

What Rapid Transit Has Done for New York.

Mr. Abram L. Earle, of the Rapid Transit Commission, ventures the opinion that a perfect system of intermural travel would increase the taxable value of New York property fully $100,000,000. What he means by a perfect system is explained in an interview with a representative of this paper which will be found below. The programme of the commission embraces certain cable, river front and elevated roads, the routes of which he explains and which will be connected with every ferry and depot in the city, the charge from any part of New York to another never to exceed five cents.

That the rapid transit roads now in existence have added enormously to the taxable value of New York is shown by the two tables given below. One shows the yearly increase in values before the elevated roads were constructed, and the other the annual increase since they have been in operation. It will be noticed that the greatest increment of values is at the two ends of the island—below the City Hall Park and above Fifty-ninth street.

A representative of THE RECORD AND GUIDE recently had an interview with Mr. Earle.

"Why," asked the writer, "was an application made to the Legislature to extend the time of the commission? A correspondent of ours said there was no need of this application as the Mayor could re-appoint the commission when their present term of office expired. The correspondent further said that the president of the commission was unaware of the application."

"I believe that is true," said Mr. Earle. "Mr. Shaw, the counsel of the board, moved in the matter without consulting us. You see the law is very defective. It divides the time in which the commission can set into four divisions, thirty, sixty, ninety and one hundred and twenty days each, assigning special work to each division. The most difficult part of our work came within the sixty and ninety days. Fearing legal complication Mr. Shaw tried to get the Legislature to extend the periods."

"Pray why did the commission provide for cross roads on Thirteenth and Twenty-secondstreets, when there are already lines of cars on Fourteenth street and Twenty-third street? Does not this look like needless competition?"

"This will be readily understood," said Mr. Earle, "when our complete plan is before the public. Our aim is to give a passenger on New York island a ticket for five cents for which he can go to any other part of the island. All our contemplated down-town across-the-city roads end at the ferries upon the North and East Rivers. Now we wish the passengers to be able to buy at every ferry a transfer ticket which is good on the trunk line roads as well as the cross-town roads, which begin or end at every ferry. One of our trunk roads would be down Lexington avenue, and would continue from the Harlem River to the Battery. As we cannot control any of the Twenty-third and Fourteenth street car lines we provided for new lines on Twenty-second and Thirteenth streets, so as to make good the proposed transfer tickets. Of course if arrangements are made with existing cross-town lines, there will be no necessity for tracks on Thirteenth and Twenty-second streets."

"Where was the necessity for the Lexington avenue line?"

"The commission found," said Mr. Earle, "that the two elevated roads and horse-car lines had built up the east side of the city very compactly, so much so, indeed, that the travel overtaxed the facilities offered. We also found on the west side north of Fifty-ninth street there were vast vacant spaces which were without proper horse-car accommodations. But a cable road would not pay for some years, owing to the want of population, hence we provided for a new line on Lexington avenue, but would not permit its construction unless the same company built a cable road on Tenth avenue. We also made provision for a road on West street to be built as far as Seventy-second street, there to connect with the Hudson River Road. This would be a great accommodation to the towns on the river front, for this elevated structure would not only convey passengers down town but freight to the elevators and the St. Johns' depot."

"How about this proposed Lexington avenue road?"

"It is to be a cable road from the Harlem River down and will cut through Gramercy Park. On reaching Fourteenth street it will purchase its way through to Fourth avenue; from Bleecker street down to the Battery it will be an elevated road."

"Suppose," said the writer, "there is trouble with the cross-town roads, can the longitudinal roads be constructed without reference to them?"

"Certainly," responded Mr. Earle. "Under our present laws we are distinctly prohibited from building across-town roads between the Battery and Harlem River. The act of May, 1875, provides that horse-cars shall not cross Fifth avenue or Broadway below Fifty-ninth street nor any across Fourth avenue above Forty-second street. Then it is further provided that no elevated roads can cross the tracks of the present elevated structures. These laws must be blotted from the statute books before New York can have a complete system of intermural travel."

"May I ask, Mr. Earle, if the money can be raised to put this immense network of rails in operation?"

"I cannot answer that question officially," was the reply, "but the books are soon to be opened for subscription and that will tell the story. If our plans are carried out, New York would have the most complete and cheapest system of local travel of any city in the world."

"You will have opposition, of course."

"I have no personal interest in the matter, but you can readily understand that the elevated roads and the existing horse-car companies, as well as the omnibus and hack owners, will all oppose this comprehensive system of cheap local travel."

Some Suburban Architecture.

A taste for the Queen Anne style of architecture seems to have pervaded Staten Island like an exhalation from the soil. An intricate landscape combination of ridges and ravines, with sloping hill-sides, valleys and wooded peaks, the island offers every opportunity for a picturesque display; and whatever opinions may be held on this style of construction, when illustrated on graded streets and among carefully aligned buildings, its adaptability for rural or suburban cottages, where the surrounding scenery is favorable, is beyond question. The people of Richmond County have been quick to discover its appropriateness, and some of the finest specimens of the style to be found anywhere in the suburbs of New York are to be seen in the town of Castleton. They stand singly and in large groups, and nestling among foliage, or relieved against a back-ground of trees or precipitous hills, there are few instances where the treatment is not in a high degree effective.

The largest and finest of these groups is probably to be found on the block bounded by Lafayette and Clinton avenues and Second and Fourth streets, at the foot of the bluff, in the village of New Brighton. There are ten dwellings in this group, seven of which were built last spring by Mr. John C. Henderson, after designs by Messrs. Lamb & Rich, of this city. The new buildings are in the English style, pure and simple, with large exterior chimneys, rendered picturesque in the treatment, projecting porches, gables and heavy sloping roofs. The coloring, one of the first features to attract the attention, after the quaint and characteristic forms, may be pronounced highly successful, made by a tasteful mingling of russet, green, orange and brown, to represent an effect of autumnal foliage. Looking at the buildings from the exterior one would be led to doubt if the rooms could be made capacious and well lighted and ventilated. Investigation into the interior, however, will show on all sides an abundant capacity for the admission of sun-light and air. One building only can be described. An octagonal turret of large size, sufficient in the interior for a considerable room, ornaments the corner of this dwelling, and entering, the visitor finds himself in a spacious hall of which the oriel forms a part. A wide doorway opens to the left into the parlor, also sufficiently spacious and decorated in mantels and all other ornaments in strict keeping with the general design. The stairway, though perhaps a trifle too obtrusive, is not deficient in a certain suggestion of quaint beauty. It is the distinction of the Queen Anne architecture, that it utilizes all corners and makes them attractive, and in this hall, the merit is manifest in a very marked degree. From thence a doorway opens into the library, a cozy room opposite the exterior entrance, while even the dining-room may be reached from the same point without passing through any other room. The arrangement seems very complete for securing convenience. The second floor is equally well arranged with the first in its exits and entrances, and throughout the building the impression is conveyed that every inch of space has been utilized. Equally suggestive upon this point is one of the other buildings. On entering the hall from the exterior, the visitor finds himself confronted by a Moorish arch at the opposite side of the room, an artistic intrusion, it must be confessed, but so treated that there is no suggestion of incongruity. Beyond this arch is an alcove three or four feet in depth, sufficiently large for quite an extensive library. Throughout all the dwellings a liberal and artistic use of the old-fashioned fire-place with andirons, or hanging grates filled with flaming coal, gives an air of comfort very agreeable at this season of the year. Over all, too, is shed the light of colored transoms relieving the atmosphere of any suggestion of coldness. Critically, it might be said that there is a slight tendency to carry the style to a highly idealized or even fanciful extreme, but feeling in architecture, as well as in all art, tends to an exaggerated expression.

With regard to the constructive improvements, which are of no style but of great utility, it is claimed for these dwellings that they will compare favorably with the most highly perfected of our city homes. The plumbing is equal to the best, bath-rooms are provided liberally, and, thanks to the great head and capacious flow of water from the New Brighton Water Works, stand pipes provided with a sufficient length of hose to reach every room, give protection from the danger of conflagration.

But in commending these dwellings, architecturally and otherwise, it is not to be forgotten that they are not precisely the class of buildings needed for promoting the growth of Staten Island in population. To be rented profitably, they demand a rent of $800 to $1,000 per year. It will be a satisfaction to people in humble circumstances, therefore, who wish to make Staten Island their home, to know that Mr. Henderson contemplates the construction of other buildings that may be offered on very much easier terms.

The South Ferry & Seaside Direct Transit Railroad.

Various causes are at work to retard the success of rapid transit enterprises in Brooklyn. First, the location of the city, with its streets radiating from the ferries like the spokes of a wheel, brings a majority of the population within such an easy distance of the river that rapid transit would save only a few minutes of time in a trip to New York. This is the first cause for apathy; and a sly notion on the part of Brooklyn tradesmen that a too great facility for reaching this city, offered to people living in the outlying wards, might not inure to the benefit of local trade, serves, possibly, to increase the indifference. But still another and very potent obstacle is probably found in the secret opposition of the almost countless horse-car companies which have gridironed the city in every direction, and now hold the streets under a sort of slow transit monopoly. In New York we know how it was ourselves with this sort of opposition to improvements, and the horse-car companies are relatively much more powerful in Brooklyn than they were in this city. Other reasons for the slow progress of the rapid transit movement might be mentioned, but the three given are sufficient to account for the fact that the people of Brooklyn do not seem to display their wonted enterprise and energy, when it is a question of despatch in moving from point to point in different sections of the city.

There is one rapid transit plan, however, against which none of these obstructions should be found to press very heavily. The South Ferry & Seaside Direct Transit Company have projected a line which runs not very far from the water front through South Brooklyn, and, passing to the left of Fort Hamilton, reaches the sea across the bay northeast of Coney Island. This route, it will be seen, opens a district from which, within the city of Brooklyn, there is no short cut to New York. Were it not for the unfortunate Gowanus Canal the line might have been better located; but the selected route is not objectionable, and it penetrates a district soon to be filled with a teeming population as far southward as Bay Ridge. It is conceived, too, after a plan to render it in the least possible degree objectionable. Following a tunnel under Atlantic avenue, the tracks are to be depressed from the point of divergence from that thoroughfare sufficiently to permit the passage of trains below the grade of the streets. This is a recommendation which should disarm all opposition, or at least all opposition that comes from a more disinterested source than the director of a horse railroad.

The principal recommendation for this railway, however, is not in its prospectus as already published, but in its possibilities. The line is to pass in the immediate neighborhood of the Narrows. This fact is in itself suggestive; for the Narrows is the point where the city of Brooklyn must eventually make her connection with the railroad system of the country, thus ending her career as an insular town, and turning all her commercial advantages to account. Under the Narrows and across Staten Island is a straight and short cut to Philadelphia and the entire West and South, and whatever step is taken over this route is a step in the right direction. But the South Ferry & Seaside Road is to be also a depressed road. Here, again, the builders are building, if not more wisely than they know, at least more wisely than they have claimed; for a depressed road will have secured from the start a part of the descent which will be necessary to carry it down below the bottom of the channel, 70 feet deep at the deepest point, which will separate the tracks of the new road from their adjacent connections. Altogether, the South Ferry & Seaside Railroad seems to be an enterprise which should meet the enthusiastic approval and co-operation of the people of Brooklyn, whether capitalists looking for a good field for investment, or citizens only intent on the prosperity of the city.

It is very absurd when you think of it that Brooklyn, a city with a population approaching three-quarters of a million, the third city in the Union, should be content to lie quietly aside unable to dispatch trains to any point of more importance than some seaside watering place or suburban village. It is absurd, too, that the entire surface of Long Island, a region of illimitable commercial possibilities, should be permitted to run to waste for want of an improvement which would cost little, and pay handsome dividends on the investment. The trade of Brooklyn suffers to the amount of millions of dollars per year through the want of a ready, swift and inexpensive means of communication with the mainland. The loss is not to be fully measured, either, by the cost and delays of handling merchandise. The independent commercial growth of the city is retarded by its unnecessary isolation; its enterprises are checked, and its water front improvements hindered from making their best possible returns for the money and labor which they have cost.

This South Ferry & Seaside Direct Transit Road should be pushed outward from its starting point with the least possible delay, and by the time it is completed as far as the Narrows it is to be hoped that the directors will see that the best returns for all further expenditures will be found in diverting the tracks to the westward, and securing connections on the other side of the channel. Long Island probably possesses a sufficient number of summer roads, but it is greatly in want of a continuation of the trunk line system. A tunnel under the Narrows to secure this terminal advantage will not be by any means an expensive undertaking. The approach in the village of Edgewater, on Staten Island, would cost more than the corresponding work in the strictly rural town of New Utrecht; but the population is not yet very dense on either side of the obstruction nor property very costly. Probably one fourth of the money which the Hudson River Tunnel will cost would fully equip for service a tunnel under the Narrows, and, when completed, the latter work would be of much more utility and greater profit.

In this view of the subject, however, it will be seen that the proposed road from South Ferry has not been given precisely the right title. It would be called, more properly, the South Ferry & Bayside Railroad, and under this title it should comprise also a surface branch for freight trains. This branch located on a line which would maintain close communication with the warehouses along the water front, should be extended on a bridge of piles provided with a draw across the mouth of Gawanus Bay, and carried as far to the northward, past Fulton street, as the service of terminal transportation demands.

Real Estate Department.

There is not much to be said about the sales during the past week. Business has been dull but prices firm. Only a few large sales are reported and but few parcels were offered at the Real Estate Exchange. Some of them would have attracted a good deal of attention, but they were not properly advertised. Auctioneers are often remiss in not demanding a sufficient sum from their clients to make the facts of a sale known to would-be customers. Still there are a good many people who constantly attend the sales, and a noticeable feature is the larger attendance of women than has been usual. In the fitting up of the Liberty street site it is to be hoped that provision will be made for ladies who wish to attend important auction sales. There is but little doing in renting as yet. That business will commence early in March.

The warehouses on Water and Cherry streets offered on Tuesday were all withdrawn. Nos. 530 and 532 Water and 277 and 279 Cherry, on a bid of $16,000; Nos. 536 to 540 Water, on a bid of $33,000; Nos. 542 and 544, on a bid of $18,000, and 546 and 548, on a bid of $15,000. On Thursday two four-story dwellings, each 16.8x55x75, on the northwest corner of Fifty-fifth street and Park avenue, were sold for $20,400 and $19,900 respectively. They were held for $50,000 at private sale.

Among the plans filed during the week are three for dwellings on West End and Tenth avenues and One Hundred and Fifth street. The dwelling on the first named avenue will be two stories in height, of brick and Scotch sandstone; the two others will be four-story brick, stone-trimmed apartment houses, and cost $40,000 and $35,000 respectively, also one plan embracing five dwellings to be erected on West Seventy-first street for Edward J. King.

The comparison of the number of transactions recorded at the Register's office for the week from Febuary 15 to Febuary 21, inclusive, with the corresponding period in 1883, shows a remarkable increase in the number of Conveyances and an unusual falling off in the amount involved in the Mortgage loans recorded. As will be seen by the figures published below, the Conveyances show an increase that although slight in the number of actual transfers the aggregate amount of the considerations is more than 100 per cent. in excess of the same period for 1883. This showing is more than satisfactory, it is encouraging as a probable forecast of the predicted large business of 1884 in realty.

Sreibegh, for $24,000.

The Union Club contemplate the purchase of the Dix property on Twenty-first street, adjoining their club house. If the members should elect to buy the premises they will make extensive alterations that will enable them to greatly add to the comforts of their establishment.

On motion of Frank R. Lawrence, counsel for James H. Coleman,

Judge Donohue on Saturday granted a decree against William H. Guion, directing the sale of fourteen lots situated 100 feet east of Ninth avenue, on the north side of Ninetieth and south side of Ninety-first streets, eight of them being on the south side of Ninety-first street. Being subject to a first mortgage of $28,000, the lots will be sold in one plot. The amount due Mr Coleman for damages and costs is $39,321.65. It is expected that the property will bring $98,000.

Brooklyn.

In Brooklyn we hear there is a great demand for two-story houses. There does not seem to be enough of them in the market. Would-be house owners actually prefer them to three-story houses and will pay almost as much for them. Property in the Ninth Ward, east of the Brooklyn Park, is to-day a purchase at the price at which small parcels can be picked up; large owners who can hold will not sell. The so-called East Side Park lands have long been an incubus upon the whole region from Washington avenue to Bedford avenue, but before long the question of title must be settled, and without doubt this land must be taken into the Park for which it was condemned. Then this section, one of the finest in Brooklyn for residences, must be improved, as first-class houses are being built up to it both from the east and the west.

Mr. John F. Doyle, of New York, has recently negotiated the sale of eleven blocks, commencing at Twenty-eighth street and Third avenue and running southerly about 2,860 feet, including over half a mile of water front on Gowanus Bay, at a cost of from $30,000 to $40,000 per block. The purchasers are a company of capitalists who intend building a series of immense stone warehouses and drydocks on a scale of magnitude commensurate with the importance of the project. Operations will be begun in the course of two or three months. It is also proposed to establish a ferry from the foot of Thirty-sixth street, Brooklyn, to the Battery, New York. This will connect with one of the Coney Island railroads, and thus furnish additional facilities between the great metropolis and Brooklyn's great seaside resort. There will probably be built a freight railroad from the warehouses to Hunter's Point and from there, by means of scows, cars will be transferred to the great trunk lines. Among those interested in the company are the Schermerhorn estate, J. W. Ambrose, Dr. D. Ambrose and R. Fulton Cutting. The capital is $2,000,000, already all pledged.

Ralph L. Cook has sold the three-story brick dwelling, 20x42x100, No. 408 Cumberland street, west side, near Atlantic avenue, for $6,000, and the three-story frame cottage, with plot 51.4x120, and known as No. 284 Clinton avenue, west side, near De Kalb avenue, for $35,000.

Charles H. Moses has sold to Martin Byrne the northwest corner of Franklin avenue and Greene avenue, 85x100, for $11,000. Mr. Moses has also purchased the southeast corner of Bergen street and Washington avenue for $1,000, for a New York capitalist.

W. F. Corwith has sold for Eliza W. Billings the three-story and basement frame dwelling, No. 581½ Lorimer street, to Charles L. Bertau for $5,500.

R. Spitzer & Co. have sold for C. V. Hart eight lots on Stockton street, between Lewis and Stuvesant avenues, to Grau & Hartman, for $6,000. The same firm have sold for Mr. Wellenberg the three-story frame dwelling, with plot 131x93x90, on the northwest corner of Myrtle avenue and Ditmars street, to J. Z. Lucas, for $12,500; and a two-story frame store and dwelling, with lot 25x about 75, No. 56 Montrose avenue, for Andrew Wils to Peter Zimmer, for $2,950.

Bulkley & Horton have sold, for G. Whitman, the three-story brick dwelling, with lot 20x100, No. 83 Ryerson street, to Thomas S. Shortland; also, for Anna L. Wilson, the three-story brick dwelling, with lot 20x75, No. 132 Vanderbilt avenue, to William R. Townsend, for $4,500; also, for Thomas W. Hall, the three-story frame mansard roof dwelling and stable in rear, with plot 75x200, on Clinton avenue, near Willoughby avenue, to William H. Beard; also, for Thomas P. Cooper, the three-story brown stone dwelling, 16.8x58, No. 50 St. Felix street, to Edward M. Ackerson, for $6,500; and, for Joseph H. Colyer, the three-story English basement brick dwelling, with lot 20x100, No. 114 Ryerson street, to John Anderson, for $4,100. This dwelling was purchased in January last by Mr. Colyer for $3,250.

George Bechtel, the brewer, has bought the water front at Stapleton, known as the Stapleton Flats, paying $45,000. The property extends 1,300 feet along the shore of the Narrows, near the second ferry landing. Mr. Bechtel recently bought a large strip adjoining, on which he built wharves which are now occupied by yachts, pilot boats and sailing vessels. He will spend $75,000 in building basins and wharves.

Out Among the Builders.

William Hall's Sons intend to build a large one-story brick lumber room on the north side of One Hundred and Fifth street, between First avenue and Avenue A, size 70x70. The plans are being drawn by Bart. Walther. The same architect has the sketches for a two-story and frame house, 20x70, to be built on the southwest corner of Third avenue and One Hundred and Forty-fifth street.

John Brandt has the plans under way for six four-story brick tenements, 25x60 each, to be erected on the southeast corner of Eighth avenue and One Hundred and Twenty-eighth street, four on the avenue, with stores on the first story, and two on the street. Cost to the owner, Lorenz Welher, about $90,000.

John C. Burne is the architect for a four-story tenement, with store, 25.5 x52x56, to be erected for Thomas Regan on the north side of Fifty-second street, commencing 50 feet west of Third avenue.

John A. Stevens, of the New Park Theatre, told a reporter of The Record and Guide that the new theatre to be erected by him on the Bowery, near the site of the old Windsor, will be pushed forward with all possible speed, and that it will be opened to the public on August 15th next. It will have a frontage of 75 feet and a depth of 185 feet. The front will be of marble. The new theatre will be named the "Windsor." It will have a seating capacity for an audience of 2,200 persons, and the total cost will be about $225,000.

William A. Martin intends to build a hotel on the site of the old Windsor Theatre recently destroyed by fire.

Morris & Cahill intend to build a stone yard on the eight lots purchased by them on the south side of Eighty-first street, 123 feet east of Avenue A.

Philip Braender intends to improve his two lots on Eighty-fourth street, between Fifth and Madison avenues, by the erection of two handsome, 25x90, private residences.

The New York Steam Company intend to build a number of stations in addition to that reported by us last week. The president, Mr. W. C. Andrews, informed a reporter of The Record and Guide that the company had purchased sites for ten stations, to be erected in different parts of the city, which it was eventually intended to cover completely. The structures would be erected on the following properties owned by them: Station "A," at Nos. 13, 15 and 17 Front street, 65x100, now used for storage purposes; Station "D," at Nos. 43, 43½, 45 and 47 Elizabeth street ("Big Flat"), running through to Mott street, 74.10x188 6; Station "E," at Nos. 57 to 63 Thompson street, running through to Sullivan, having a frontage of 115 feet; Station "H," at Nos. 512 to 526 East Nineteenth street, 200x184, running through to East Eighteenth street, now used for the manufacture of fittings and other necessary devices for steam heating; Station "J," at Nos. 146 to 154 West Thirtieth street, 115x98.9; Station "K," on the East River front, from Thirty-second to Thirty-third streets, occupying eight lots and two bulkheads; Station "L," at Nos. 319 to 325 West Forty-seventh street, 75x100; Station "M," on the south side of Forty-ninth street, between First avenue and East River, 100x100; Station "N," from Avenue A to East River, between Fifty-sixth and Fifty-seventh streets, six lots. This is exclusive of Station "B," already built, at Nos. 170 to 174 Greenwich street, and Station "M," on East Forty-ninth street, as reported in our last. There will thus be ten stations altogether, each of which will be four stories high and thoroughly fire proof, and containing each 20,000 to 30,000 horse power. Mr. Andrews estimates the total cost of the buildings when completed at about $10,000,000. The stations will cost on an average from $750,000 to $1,500,000 each. The outlay for building purposes alone will altogether amount to between $3,000,000 and $4,000,000, the remainder being for machinery. The company has its own architects and engineers, and the plans are all executed under the superintendence of the engineer-in-chief, Mr. Charles E. Emery. The company intends to extend the steam mains as fast as possible to cover 250 miles of streets.

Messrs. Berger & Baylies have the plans for the alteration of the brown stone private dwelling, No. 148 Fifth avenue, for business purposes. There will be a new front on three stories. Work will commence on March 1st. Owner, N. E. Mead.

The easterly half of the new Washington Market is finished except the flooring, for which no provision has as yet been made. The plans for the western portion are about completed, and as soon as they have been examined, the Comptroller will advertise for bids. The new contract will include the flooring of the entire market and the building of the sidewalk stalls and iron sheds on Washington, Fulton, West and Greenwich streets. The first work done will be to lay the flooring in the completed part of the building.

Brooklyn.

Mercein Thomas has the plans for a three-story brown stone dwelling, 20x40, to be erected on Greene avenue, between Bedford and Nostrand avenues, for Mrs. M. A. Keyes, at a cost of about $7,000, and for a three-story and basement extension, 25 x about 40, on the north side of Lafayette avenue, 100 east of South Oxford street, at a cost of about $5,000.

Th. Engelhardt has the sketches for a two-story frame stable, 15x27, with pavillion, bathing houses, etc., to be erected at Far Rockaway, L. I. Cost, about $1,800, and for extensive alterations to the premises corner of Ewen and Varet streets, for F. Kempf, at a cost of $2,000.

Robert Dixon has plans in hand for a three-story frame ladies' restaurant and bar, 68x65, to be erected at Sheepshead Bay, L. I., for the Coney Island Jockey Club, at a cost of about $10,000.

Geo. W. Springsteen has the plans for two two-story and basement frame dwellings to be erected on the south side of Conselyea street, 125 feet west of Leonard street, at a cost of about $6,400.

Notes and Items.

A resolution, by Alderman Grant, that Boulevard lamps be substituted for the ordinary street lamps on Riverside avenue, from Eighty-sixth to Ninety-sixth street, was referred to the Committee on Lamps and Gas.

The Board of Street Opening and Improvement gives notice of its intention to alter the map or plan of the city by laying out, opening and extending certain new streets and avenues in the district between One Hundred and Twenty-sixth and One Hundred and Thirty-seventh streets, west of Eighth avenue, and the proposed action of said board has been laid before the Board of Aldermen.

Notice is given that a petition of property owners with map and plan for changing the grade of "Sixty-ninth street, between Eighth and Ninth avenues," is now pending before the Common Council. All persons interested in the above change of grade, and having objections thereto, are requested to present the same in writing to the Commissioner of Public Works, at his office on or before Wednesday, the 5th day of March, 1884. The maps showing the present and proposed grades can be seen at Room 7, No. 31 Chambers street.

Dwellings for artisans are at present built on an improved plan at Hornsey, England. They are erected on plots 15 feet 6 inches wide by 80 feet in depth, and differ from the first class merely in having one bedroom less and one water-closet only on the ground floor. The rental is not more than $2 a week.

Contractors' Notes.

Sealed proposals for furnishing the materials and labor, and doing the work required for constructing a house on the north side of 104th street, commencing 175 feet west of 3d avenue, for Engine Company No. 53 will be received by the Fire Commissioners at Nos. 155 and 157 Mercer street, until ten o'clock A. M., Wednesday, March 5, 1884.

Bids for laying water-mains in Marion, Railroad, Eighth, Seventh, Morris, Sedgwick and in Tenth avenues, and in Morris street, Kingsbridge road, Riverside Drive, Orchard street and in One Hundred and Seventy-fifth street; also for furnishing the materials and painting the seven free floating baths known as Nos. 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8 and 9, will be received at the Department of Public Works until Thursday, March 6, 1884, at 12 o'clock, M.

The Real Estate Owners' and Builders' Association meets at the Grand Union Hotel on Wednesday evening to hear the report of their committee, which presented its views at Albany before the Committee on Cities of the Senate relative to the proposed building law.

Hotel Furniture from the West.

A. S. Herenden, of Cleveland, furniture.—The manufacture of hotel furniture has become a great Western industry. The manufactories must be located where the best lumber is to be obtained most cheaply. Michigan is becoming a great furniture manufacturing State. We have the agency for several factories. I got the idea of extending trade to New York. Since July I have sold $150,000 worth of hotel furniture here, furnishing the St. Marc, Wellington and Hamilton. I have also furnished some houses, notably those of W. C. Andrews and H. L. Terrill. New York is the place for New Yorkers to buy house furnishing, however, because then they can inspect samples. But in the hotel furniture it is simply a question of who talks pretty, and in that line the Western man is generally as good as the next.—N. Y. Tribune.

The prestige of Coney Island as a great summer and bathing (and, let us add, gambling) resort stands an excellent chance of being maintained without either the atmosphere or the waters being polluted with sewer gas or house refuse. A sewerage system has been submitted to the authorities and approved, and work already commenced, which will, when completed, save it from reproach of other watering places. The system adopted provides for the pumping of the sewage into a cesspool at the western end of the island, where it is to be thoroughly deodorized and then pumped on to a drying shelf. The liquid, which, it is claimed, will be perfectly innocuous, will be turned into Gravesend Bay, and the solid matter remaining will be subject to a drying process, which will convert it into a first-class fertilizer, which may be packed in bales and shipped to any part of the country. This is turning things to profitable account.

Special Notices.

Architects, builders and owners who wish to secure the finest cabinet work should visit the new five-story factory of Messrs. Beaudet & Blumenthal, at the corner of Second avenue and Ninety-ninth street, which they have just equipped with the most modern and approved machinery. They now have first-class facilities for supply the very best quality of hardwood doors, trimmings, mantels, &c., at the lowest figures, and with the utmost dispatch. Estimates can be obtained from them by personal or written communication at the above address. All orders entrusted to them are executed with promptness and under their personal supervision. Their factory is within one block from the Third Avenue "L" Road station at Ninety-ninth street.

The property belonging to the heirs of the late Albert Ward, on Staten Island, is regarded as among the most desirable real estate to be found in the vicinity of New York. It comprises about eighty acres lying in a most sightly situation on the slope of the hill at the northeast corner of the island, and is within little more than twenty minutes ride from the Battery. It is in a location, too, where property is destined to increase rapidly in value. Drainage, air and landscape are alike excellent; and for building sites the property is unsurpassed in this vicinity. It is at present in the hands of the trustee of the estate, Mr. Geo. H. Daley, of the firm Devlin & Co., and some of the lots will be offered for sale during the approaching spring. It is good property either for immediate improvement and resale or for permanent investment.

Henry D. Powers, carpenter and builder, of No. 142 East Twenty-fifth street, will be happy to give estimates to architects for all kinds of building and carpentry work. He was formerly with Jesse W. Powers for thirty years, a high recommendation in itself. He makes a specialty of stores and office work.

Plain and ornamental plastering of a first-class character is done by John Dewhurst. He has been in business for many years, and specimens of his work can be seen at his place of business, No. 160 West Forty-ninth street, near Broadway.

We have much pleasure in calling attention to the card of Messrs. Peck, Martin & Co., masons' building materials, which appears on the back page. This firm is one of our oldest advertisers, having had their card in THE RECORD for the past sixteen years. It is gratifying to note that their business has increased year by year. They have now five yards altogether in different parts of the city—on the North, East and Harlem Rivers, thus giving the best facilities to their customers.

BUILDING MATERIAL MARKET.

BRICKS.—Matters have not improved on the market for Common Hards, indeed appear to have grown worse, and the current feeling shows a slight touch of demoralization prevailing. The entire trouble is an excess of supply over demand, present and prospective. The very close weather of the past winter so retarded the operations of contractors as to confine actual consumption to a very small limit, and the result is that large amounts of stock are still piled at the jobs or in dealers' hands instead of having disappeared as expected, and wants are just so much reduced for several weeks to come. The same influence also prevented the movement of a large amount of stock in first hands upon which holders had expected a winter trade, and now, as the means of bringing it forward are presented, the outlet is wanting and sellers find themselves at a decided disadvantage. The supply particularly referred to is accumulated at points in New Jersey, Staten Island and Long Island, and it is estimated that in the neighborhood of fifty million brick are in hand on which owners are anxious to realize. To make matters still worse for the selling interest, the condition of the Hudson has finally become such as to permit of the resumption of navigation to Haverstraw Bay, and about one million bricks have come down this week seeking a market, and failing to secure the attention desired. In fact, nearly all receivers complained of more stock than they knew what to do with, and appeared to be in much perplexity over its ultimate disposition and the rates they would be compelled to accept. It is believed that the decline in price and slow sale of goods will have the effect to stop further shipments from the "Bay" at present, but these less favorable indications from other sources, and with really nothing cheerful in the immediate outlook for the demand, it is altogether a pretty hard market. On prices it has become a very difficult matter to decide upon any line of figures of a reliable or positive character, and we still claim the privilege of calling the basis of quotations nominal. Commencing early in the week sales were made at $8@$7 50@$7. 5 for Haverstraws, Long Islands and Staten Islands, respectively, but since then we have had the assurance of receivers that they would shade the above 25@50c. per M, and possibly more in order to secure customers. Jerseys sold at $6.50@$6 75 per M, and now it looks as though $6 was about all that could be depended upon in the ordinary form of negotiation. Pales quoted tame also, and it would have to be something extra attractive to exceed $4.

LATH.—A considerable quantity of stock has come to hand since our last, and that not already disposed of before arrival found customers ready to take it in full confirmation of previous expectations of receivers. The ruling price was $2.50 per M, and this, according to latest reports, was maintained without much difficulty. We understand a sale has been made for less money, but only because the vessels bringing the lath was discharging timber as part of cargo at a berth where it was really more in the sellers pocket to make a small concession and unload the entire cargo than to seek customers who might offer much poorer accommodation. It is reported that no additional shipments have been made from the Provinces this week.

LIME.—The market for Rockland has undergone a fair test of late and shows a continuation of old firmness. Some twelve or fifteen cargoes came to hand, but about as fast as offered found customers in waiting and were quickly disposed of on basis of old rates, say $1.00 for common and $1.20 for finishing. State lime quoted "about as before," but is really nominal in the absence of fresh supplies.

LUMBER.—It is rather amusing to find some parties who have three or four times since the commencement endeavored to talk up and write up a mild sort of a "boom," now calling the market some very hard names and deploring the miserable condition of trade. The trouble was, they expected too much and too rapid an improvement, and constant disappointment has finally worried them into a grumbling frame of mind. Lumber certainly has not made an improvement of a marked character on any grades, but it is quite as certain that sellers have seldom lost important ground on prices, and, all things considered, the distribution has been fair. The export movement to date is very little below last year, and then it was exceptionally large, and while the amount taken into home consumption proves somewhat limited, the unfavorable weather and great difficulties in the way of transportation were for a long time the main cause of the latter feature. Supplies, however, are wanted, and must ultimately be called for, and this will infuse more life, though not likely to greatly stimulate values. Indeed, lumber seems to be like a greater majority of other commodities, entirely indifferent to all apparent buoyant tendencies, and careful operators are working on the theory that the only safe and proper course to pursue is to let all goods go out whenever a clear margin is shown upon them, and occasionally it is well to accept any bid not showing positive loss.

Eastern Spruce so far as an open, natural demand may be concerned, would find considerable neglect, as dealers who could handle cargoes readily at the moment are not in want of stock and naturally manifest considerable indifference. Yet on the other hand the current unquestionably low rates, if backed by anything in the way of attractive stuff, are more or less of a temptation and a great many buyers have taken the odd arrivals of the season mainly because they were "cheap and handy to have in the yard." The distribution promises greater volume at an early day and there is little doubt considerable consumption will take place the coming spring. Some few specials have been ordered though hardly up to the expectations of manufacturers. About $13 50@$16.00 covers the entire range of valuation as at present existing except for extra sizes and specials.

White Pine still meets with a moderate local call, though hardly to the extent hoped for, and business in the way of home distribution is disappointing to many of the trade. Some indeed appear a little anxious to move stock and we hear hints of quiet offerings at somewhat modified terms. The shipping grades are steady as their sale, past, present and prospective, has been sufficient to keep the supply in very fair motion and afford holders of the remainder a fair degree of advantage in supporting old rates but gaining no advance. Remaining accumulations fair and holders generally willing to sell when opportunity admits. We quote $18.50@22 00 for West India shipping boards; $28.00@30.00 for South American do.; $17.00@18.00 for box boards, and $18.50@19.00 for extra do.

Yellow Pine finds an occasional call on local account, either for building or manufacturing purposes, but does not become at all active, and sellers find no grounds for advantage. Indeed, some sales have of late been made at pretty low figures, but exactly upon what basis it is impossible to ascertain. The trading in parcels for export continues to some extent and many agents have been enabled to send out orders sufficient to keep mills busy for some time ahead. Yard stocks are few and rather fuller than usual if anything, and this in a measure accounts for the smaller run of orders for spring delivery. We quote as follows: Randoms, $20@22 per M; Specials, $21@23 do.; Green Flooring boards, $24@25; Dry do., do., $25@26; Step Plank, $30@35 do.; Cargoes f. o. b. at Atlantic ports, $14@16 for rough, and $19@21 for dressed. Cargoes f. o. b. at Gulf ports, $13@15 for rough, and $18@20 for dressed.

Hardwoods have sold very fairly, all things considered, and anything in the way of good car lots of stuff, but more particularly ash, cherry or walnut, can find a customer without much difficulty. Some of the recent arrivals have been in very poor condition, however, with the cut on price severe, and if the manufacturers prefer sending undesirable supplies with the above certain results, well and good. They cannot complain of an absence of warnings. There has been a great deal of trouble over whitewood for some time past and a few extremely low sales made, but the feeling now seems more hopeful. On export orders, the movement is not free, but a little goes out every week. We quote at wholesale rates by car-load about as follows: Walnut, $65@110 per M; ash, $35@40 do.; oak, $30@55 do.; maple, $20@32.50 do.; chestnut, $25@30 do; cherry, $40@75 do.; whitewood ½ and ⅝ inch, $25@30 do., do., and do. inch, $28@38; hickory, $45@55 do.

GENERAL LUMBER NOTES.

THE WEST.

The Northwestern Lumberman as follows:

The 10-cent rate from Chicago to Missouri River, and a corresponding low rate from northern points to the Southwest, have given a great impetus to shipments from wholesale stocks. Some kicking is being done on the Mississippi, because it is thought that the rate from the Mississippi River points to the Missouri are relatively higher than from this city or northern points. The competition between rivals for western trade is very sharp, and a large amount of lumber will go forward into Kansas and Nebraska within the next few weeks if the rate holds at the present figure. Fears are entertained that such close competition will tend to lower prices on common stock. Owing to the dullness of trade during December and January the stocks on hand at all points are large. Added to this is the certainty that the crop of logs will be greater than was intended when operators went into the camp. Evidence of this accumulates every day. The weather has been fine for logging and operators have been fairly forced to rush in the sticks, until in many cases they have secured many more than they purposed to put in. But this can be said in favor of the present log crop; it has cost considerably less than the previous one, owing to cheaper labor and supplies, so that manufacturers, if they are compelled to sell lumber made from their winter's crop at reduced prices, they can better stand it than if the lumber were cut out of the crop of 1882–83.

The conditions thus indicated tend to impress lumbermen with the belief that common lumber will slightly decline in value this season. It is impossible at the present time to see how prices can advance, and it is hard for them to remain firm and stationary under existing conditions. Yet predictions at this early stage are out of order, because the extent of the demand, taking the country over, is yet undeterminable.

The floods in the Ohio River have caused great loss to the hardwood interest along that stream by the washing away of piles, the destruction and damage of mills, and the interruption of communication. The extent of this loss cannot be ascertained until the water subsides. White pine shipments to the river, and yellow pine shipments from South to North, will also be somewhat interrupted.

CHICAGO.

AT THE YARDS.—The indications of revival in demand and movement noticed in our report last week have been fully justified since. There has been a marked increase in shipments, and the district presents a busy appearance. The yard railway tracks are generally crowded with loading cars, and trains are being constantly run in empty, or out loaded. The aspect of affairs is nearly as lively as in the busiest spring or fall season. Traveling salesmen are generally out on the road, and are sending in orders freely.

Among the loggers work is still progressing favorably, although on some streams the recent snow falls have slightly retarded operations. We do not hear of a single case where the anticipated cut will not, without a doubt, be made.

We are able to give a somewhat more favorable report of the demand for hardwood lumber than we could in our last issue, of the trade for the first week in February, but still the improvement does not come up to expectations and the hardwood men, in consequence, show a degree of despondency that is depressing to the spirits of the most disinterested spectator.

Oak and ash are still in ample supply in the country for the requirement, though occasionally yards have to do some looking around to fill orders for certain sizes. All sorts of prices are paid, the tendency being to firmness.

Cherry seems in better supply, owing to a temporary lull in the demand, while stocks have continued to arrive.

ENGLAND.

Commenting upon a recent London sale, the Timber Trade's Journal says:

As illustrating the uncertainty that surrounds public sale prices, we may mention the broad pine, first quality, which ex Moss Brow, from Quebec, went as high as £27 5s., while similar quality and sizes (Michigan) ex Prinds Leopold, expected by some experienced in the trade to realize £28, with difficulty found a buyer at £ 5 5s. Spruce hardly appeared to meet with so much favor as it did on a previous occasion. Though there was quite a rush to bid for the parcel of Quebec third regulars, ex Crane, in no instance did the price exceed £7 10s., the 13 ft. going 5s. below this price. At the previous week's sale Quebec thirds 10-1 ft. 3 i. 9 went from £7 5s. to £8 5s., 12 ft. realizing £7 10s. There is no movement to be found in values from these comparisons, and taken all round anyone would have to draw liberally on their imagination to come to the conclusion that things were improving.

At Liverpool, by auction, a Mobile cargo, of good quality and manufacture, sold as follows: Hewn timber—60 to 69 feet, 20 to 24 inches deep, 28½d. per foot; 62 to 69 do., 19 do., 22½d do.; 60 to 81 do., 18 to 19 do., 23¾d. do.; 60 to 63 do., 18 do., 19½d. do.; 61 to 68 do., 18 do., 18½d do; 60 to 67 do., 18 do., 19¼d. do.; 60 to 77 do, 17 to 18 do, 25¼d. do.; 60 to 64 do., 17 do, 17¼d. do.; 63 to 82 do., 17 do, 24¾d. do.; 60 to 69 do., 16 to 17 do., 18½d. do.; 60 to 68 do., 16 do., 17d. do.; 28 to 50 do., 24 to 27 do., 23¼d. do.; 36 to 52 do, 23 do., 22d. do.; 39 to 55 do., 22 do., 20¼d. do; 39 to 58 do., 22 do., 20d. do; 47 to 56 do., 21 do, 20½d. do; 48 to 56 do., 21 do., 19¼d. do.; 39 to 47 do., 21 do., 19 d. do.; 48 to 58 do., 20 do., 20d. do.; 40 to 57 do, 20 do, 18¾d. do.; 49 to 55 do., 19 do., 17¼d. to 18½d. do; 41 to 48 do, 20 do., 18¾d. do.; 45 to 58 do., 19 to 20 do., 18¼d. do.; 49 to 55 do., 19 do., 17¼d. to 18½d. do; 51 to 59 do., 18 do, 18d. to 18¼d. do.; 46 to 56 do., 18 do, 17d. to 17½d. do.; 47 to 56 do, 18 do, 16¾d. do.; 50 to 59 do., 17 do., 16¼d. to 16½d. do.; 50 to 53 do., 17 do, 16d. do.; 48 to 59 do., 17 do., 15¾d. do.

Pitch pine deals—4, 5 and 6 inches, 9 to 11 inches wide, 15¾d. per foot: 4 do, 11 do., 16d. do.; 4 do., 9 to 10 do., 14¾d. do; 3 do, 9 to 14 do., 14d. do.

There was also sold at Liverpool about a quarter of a million feet of mahogany and cedar, chiefly Tabasca wood, but as most of it was of small to medium sizes only, prices were somewhat lower for inferior wood, though good to large dimensions fetched about the rates which were recently obtained; thus the average prices may be considered satisfactory. The details are as follows:

METALS.—COPPER—Ingot has not been very active and most of the business was in small jobbing lots. Offerings, however, proved careful, and with the companies quite indifferent operators' values were firm at some improvement on the best stock, Lake worth about 14¾@15c. and other brands 14@14½c. Manufactured meeting with a better demand and showing greater firmness on most descriptions. We quote as follows: Brazier's Copper, ordinary size, over 16 oz. per sq. foot, 26c. per lb; do. do. do., 16 oz. and over 12 oz. per sq foot, 28c. per lb.; do. do., 10 and 12 oz. per sq. foot, 30c. per lb.; do., do., lighter than 10 oz. per sq foot, 32c. per lb.; circles less than 54 inches in diameter, 28c. per lb.; 84 inches in diameter and over, 31c per lb.; segment and pattern sheets, 28c. per lb.; locomotive fire-box sheets, 26c. per lb.; Sheathing Copper, over 12 oz. per sq. foot, 24c. per lb., and Bolt Copper, 26c. per lb. IRON—Scotch Pig has been "held" with a showing of firmness and openly the offering of stock was moderate. Actual buyers, however, generally found all the supply wanted and could, with a little care, obtain shaded cost. Quoted at $20@22.50 per ton, according to brand. American Pig has sold slowly and in small lots, with the general market showing a pretty dull tone at times. Indeed operators generally have complained of the small run of custom and the difficulty experienced when attempting to stimulate buyers. Offerings on the whole, however, have been moderate and no actual concessions on cost allowed. Supplies are fair and well assorted, but remain under control. We quote $20.00@21.50 per ton for No. 1 X foundry, $19.00 @19.75 for No. 2 X do do., and $18.00@19 00 for gray forge. Rails have met with very limited attention, and while most of the mills are busy on contracts, they find it difficult to increase orders. The quotations remain at $34@35 per ton, according to delivery. Old rails have been dull and unsettled, and scrap quite slow, with values somewhat nominal, though generally favorable to buyers. We quote at $20.50@22.00 for tee rails, $24.00@25.00 for double heads, $22.00@22.50 for No. 1 wrought scrap ex ship, $23.50@24.00 for selected do., $18.00@19.00 for old car wheels, and $22.00@23.00 for crop ends. Manufactured iron is meeting with rather more demand. Parcels go out from store to a considerable extent, and contracts are becoming more numerous, the latter including a good proportion of agricultural shapes and sizes. We quote Common Merchant Bar, ordinary sizes, at 2.2@2.5c. from store, and Refined at 2.4@4c.; wrought beams at 3.5@3.6c. Fish plates quoted at 3.0@3.1c.; track bolts and nuts, 3¼@3⅝c.; railway spikes, 3@3½c.; tank, 3@3½c.; angle, 2.5@2.7c.; best flange, 4¼@4½c.; and domestic sheet on the basis of 3¾@3⅞c. for common Nos. 10@16. Other descriptions at corresponding prices, with 1-10c. less on large lots from cars. LEAD—Domestic Pig did not of late go out with much freedom, as buyers appeared inclined to move with a great deal of caution and not invest, except as a matter of necessity. Stock, however, remained well in hand, with owners quite indifferent about offering, and prices firm throughout. We quote at about 4@4½c. per lb., according to brand and the size of invoice handled. The manufactures of lead are steady and quoted: Bar, 6c.; Pipe, 6¾c.; and Sheet, 7½c., less the usual discount to the trade; and Tin-lined pipe, 15c.; block tin Pipe, 45c., on same terms. TIN — Pig was not taken to any extent by consumers, the unsettled condition of the market both here and abroad leading to much caution. Speculation, too, seems to have been erratic and feverish in form, with values to a very considerable extent nominal. We quote at 18½@18¾c for Straits and Australian, 19½@19¾ for English, and 19½@19¾ for Banca Tin plates were at times dull, and again quite active but the latter in the main the result of efforts to realize, as holders did not appear to have faith and offered freely on spot and to arrive. Of late the feeling appeared steadier but without increasing the demand. We quote I. C. Charcoal, third class assortment, $5.35@5.35 for Allaway grade, and $6.10@6.15 for Melyn grade; for each additional X add $1.25 and $1.50 respectively; I. C. Coke, $4.65@4.70 for B. V. Grade; $4.85@4 87½ for J. B. grade; Charcoal terne, $4 75@5.10 for Alaway and Dean grades 14x20; $9.75@10.25 for do. 20x28; Coke terne, $4.50@4 55 for Glais grade 14x20, and $9.55@9.60 for do. 20x28—all in round lots. Spelter meets with a light and somewhat uncertain trade and there is also more or less irregularity on values. Supplies, however, are offered carefully in most cases. We quote at 4¼@5½c. for domestic and foreign, according to brand, quantity, etc. Sheet zinc moderately active and about steady. Quoted at 6@7, according to quantity, quality, delivery, etc.

NAILS.—Beyond natural and moderate fluctuations, both in the volume of demand and the tone of the market, matters appear to have been in fair shape during the week. Regular home buyers were in average attendance and while unwilling to anticipate the future to any extent found current wants requiring some pretty full invoices. Exporters, too, have afforded some relief though nothing of an unusual character. Values remain steady on about the old range of $2.50@2.65 per keg for 10d. to 60d., according to size of invoice.

PAINTS, OILS, ETC.—The improvement in business noted last week continues to make further increase and although the gain is slow it appears to be considered healthful and promising, with strong hopes entertained of further expansion. Buyers show no one kind of stock partiality, but make up a general assortment of standard goods when filling out their invoices. Linseed Oil still in fair demand and the market appears to be well under control, with former rates maintained. We quote at 56@58 for domestic and 58@59 for foreign. Spirits turpentine has sold fairly and maintained a strong position at 37@38c. per gall., according to size of invoice.

PITCH AND TAR.—The demand for all kinds of stock has been moderately active, with the market a trifle stupid, though holders ask former figures in pretty much every instance. We quote pitch $2.25 @2.30 per bbl., and tar $2 50@3.00 do., according to quantity, quality and delivery.

JUDGMENTS.

In these lists of judgments the names alphabetically arranged, and which are first on each line, are those of the judgment debtor. The letter (D) means judgment for deficiency. (*) means not summoned. (†) signifies that the first name is fictitious, real name being unknown. Judgments entered during the week, and satisfied before day of publication, do not appear in this column but in list of Satisfied Judgments.

MARCH 1, 1884.

The real estate outlook is really improving. The transactions, as shown by the official conveyances, is larger so far than last year, while a much smaller mortgage indebtedness has been created. The first few weeks of this year showed a diminution in the number of plans filed for new buildings, but, as our columns for some few weeks past show, the number of new edifices projected are greatly increasing. The most cheering feature of all is the larger attendance at the auction sales and the excellent prices which are given for desirable property. The secret of all this is the ease in the money market, the small return for government's and for money on call; the doubtful character of all stock investments, which forces those who have means into the real estate market.

We have already referred to the three bills forwarded to the State Legislature having in view the cheapening and facilitating the transfer of real estate. They were prepared by the Land Transfer Association, of which Dwight H. Olmstead is chairman. Our Albany correspondent sends word that they are now under consideration in the Assembly. The only one of them, however, which is likely to pass is the one appointing three commissioners to consider the whole matter and report to a future Legislature. All of these commissioners, it is proposed, shall be lawyers. This is a mistake, one lawyer is quite enough. Real estate owners now pay a grievous tax to the lawyers, whose business it seems to be to render titles insecure and make the cost of conveyances heavy. One of the commissioners should be an experienced real estate broker. It is sincerely to be regretted that owners and dealers in real estate cannot be induced to attend to this vital matter. They seem rather to like being plundered by the lawyers.

The Chicago real estate dealers have taken a step in advance of their New York brethren. They have organized a real estate association and make it a point to meet every noon to transact business with one another. They find that sales are made far more readily than when they had to run from office to office to see if they could not buy or sell parcels of property. Transactions are so large just now in Chicago that there is almost a boom in real estate, and this is attributed in a great measure to the daily meeting of all the leading brokers. Messrs. Pierce & Ware and R. W. Hyman were the two firms who consummated the first large transaction at these daily gatherings, and the occasion was celebrated by a "cigar lunch," of which all the brokers partook. These meetings have become so popular that members of the Exchange are looking for a very much larger hall, as they are cramped in their present quarters. Why should not the New York Exchange have a similar gathering every day? Their building will not be ready until late in the fall, but in the meantime they might occupy temporary quarters and copy the Chicago system of exchanging lists, and so expediting transactions in realty.

Has not the time come when a demand should be made for the union of New York and Brooklyn? The interests of the two cities are identical. They are bound together not only by sentimenta ties, but by numberless ferries, and one of the finest bridges in the world. The people who live and sleep in Brooklyn largely depend upon the commerce of New York for their means of subsistence. In both cities there is a determination to thoroughly reform the city government. The arrangement that might bring the cities together would involve a responsible local government, far superior to anything we have had in the past. Mayor Low has now such golden opinions that he might be made the first Mayor of the United Metropolis. Half of the Common Council could be chosen on a general ticket, and the rest from single districts. Great economies would result from the unifying of the departments of the two cities. The union has got to come some time or other, and ambitious young politicians could make a name for themselves in entering the field to unite the component parts of the great metropolis of the western world.

The New York Arcade Railway.

The bill now before the Legislature empowering the construction of an arcade road under Broadway instead of a tunnel is of the first importance to owners of property on that great thoroughfare, as well as to the entire population of New York city. We present our readers this week with the report of Chief-Engineer Wm. J. McAlpine, in which an exhaustive comparison is made between the proposed arcade road and the underground railways of London. From this it will be seen that the engineering difficulties presented by the former are not by any means as great as those encountered in the English capital. The value of the arcade road to New York cannot be over-estimated. It will practically create a second Broadway. Every building along which the railway will run will have a new story added to it. This will be effected by changing the useless cellars into basement stores at a small outlay to the owner, thus yielding a substantial rental where there is now no derivable income. The arcade will be well lighted, while the atmosphere will be pure and the ventilation perfect. The company will have the power to construct sub-ways for the accommodation of sewers, steam, gas and water pipes, as well as telegraph and telephone wires and pneumatic tubes. These will all be easily accessible, and so obviate the necessity for the streets being continually torn up. During the winter the arcade will be a pleasant retreat from the inclemency of the weather, and in the summer will afford escape from the scorching rays of the sun. Ladies especially will be benefited, as they will be able to do their shopping despite climatic adversities.

The arcade will be a four-track railway, with passenger and freight trains, way and through, running every two minutes. Merchants, importers and the various business houses on Broadway and the adjacent streets will be able, at their very doors, to ship and receive goods to and from all parts of the United States. The experience of the past has invariably shown that wherever the greatest facilities for transportation exist there trade concentrates and property increases in value, and when the arcade road is built such a centralization of business will follow on its track as to make the real estate through which it runs incomparably more valuable than at present. There will be no interruption to travel during the construction of the road, as will be seen from one of the pictures on another page showing the two iron bridges over which passengers and traffic will pass, and under which the work of construction will be proceeded with. The engineer's report states that the street in front of an ordinary building will be occupied by the bridges for about one month. Property-holders have the further assurance that the bill now at Albany provides for a commission of three, two of whom will be civil engineers, whose duty it shall be to see that the work is properly conducted, and that there shall be no unnecessary interference with or damage done to property.

The cost of the arcade road and the revenue derivable therefrom are no doubt questions of vital importance to the success of so great an undertaking. But we have the experience of London before us. The citizens of that great metropolis fully understand and appreciate the value of an underground railway, as they have benefited by its use for many years past. Indeed it is stated that preliminary arrangements have been made with London capitalists for the money for either the arcade or tunnel road. It would be singular should this New York railway be constructed with funds furnished on the other side of the Atlantic. This is no Northern Pacific road running through sparsely populated and uninhabited territories, but a railroad traversing the most densely crowded city on the American Continent, destined ultimately to overtake in population the great English capital itself.

There is but one barrier to the accomplishment of the more perfect road, and that is a modification of the charter granted in 1881 authorizing the building of a tunnel, so as to permit of its construction on the arcade plan. Broadway is now crowded with drays, carts and vehicles of every description, making it impassable at most parts of the day. Besides, rapid transit is urgently required, so that the tens of thousands who travel daily to and from all parts of Broadway and the city should be able to do so expeditiously. It is absolutely necessary, therefore, that some relief should soon be afforded by a cable, elevated or underground railway. It is contended that the first would probably be too dangerous to life and not give sufficient speed, while the second is objectionable and ruinous. There is only the one road left, and it is for the people of this city to pronounce whether this shall be a dark, stuffy tunnel, which will scarcely supersede the requirements of a single generation, or a handsome, light, airy arcade, which shall increase the value of the property on its route, and afford transportation facilities for passengers and freight of almost unlimited capacity. The press of New York city has over and over again spoken favorably of this magnificent enterprise which will make Broadway the greatest street in the world, and there can be no doubt of the verdict of the people. Should the Legislature fail to authorize the arcade plan, there will be nothing left for the company but to reluctantly proceed with the tunnel. It is imperatively necessary therefore that the press of this city and the property owners interested should see to it that New York shall receive the advantage of an arcade railway which will increase the value of realty and give New York a road unequalled in history, instead of a tunnel which will neither enhance the value of property along its route nor permanently meet the wants of our great and ever-growing metropolis.

Some Commercial Buildings.

Back of Broadway, on the west side, the streets parallel to that highway, below Bleecker, are gradually filling with commercial buildings, to the great benefit of public decency. Down near Canal most of the buildings are of iron, cast to imitate palatial magnificence in carved marble. This is the lowest point to which architecture in New York, or anywhere else, ever sank. Architecturally it is a matter for unmixed congratulation that the fires of Chicago and Boston showed that this construction was as untrustworthy practically, as it was horrible architecturally. The efforts of a few artistic architects to treat the cast-iron front only served to show how intractable the material was. The substitution of brick for the main structure of members made it impossible to play such pranks as could be played with impunity in cast-iron and compelled a treatment which deferred to the material. If now we could secure the abolition of the monstrous tin cornice and the standing of brick walls upon supports of masonry our warehouse architecture would be still further improved, since it is almost as difficult to make a building positively offensive out of bricks alone as it is to make an inoffensive building out of cast-iron.

Among a collection of iron fronts in Greene street, between Prince and Spring, there is a brick warehouse on the west side which derives a comparative respectability from the mere fact that it is of brick, treated like brick. It has not the appearance of having been done by an artist, but it does look as if it had been done by a workman. It is a brick front, standing on brick piers, the lines of which are continued upwards so as to divide the front laterally, and the openings are more numerous in the upper story than below. This is all there is of composition, and this is enough to make the front respectable, and even effective, though its effectiveness is dimished by the fact that the horizontal and perpendicular lines are almost equally emphasized and are very frequent, so that the front looks as if a trellis of brickwork had been set up before it after it was done.

The building on the northwest corner of Prince street and Broadway owes its effectiveness, which is considerable, to its magnitude and to a like division by means of powerful brick piers. The corner piers in this building are ample and massive, and when such an abutment is secured at the angles the enclosed front can be made very light and open without compromizing to the eye the stability of the mass, and thus giving it an aspect of weakness and precariousness. But that aspect must always be that of a wall of masonry, standing upon slender supports of iron, where the eye must accommodate itself to two several sets of proportions in order to perceive that the substructure is strong enough to carry the superstructure.

This is the defect, or perhaps it would be more polite to say the misfortune, of a building, otherwise designed with much simplicity and some force, at the northeast corner of Greene and Prince. It is a massive brick wall, that is to say a brick wall of which the openings are neither large nor numerous, standing on slender iron piers. There can scarcely be a real necessity for this treatment, except a prejudice which undoubtedly does prevail among owners in favor of standing a front upon sheets of plate glass with sashes as slight as possible, though these sashes are the supports of the whole building. At any rate this can never be done without weakening the building architecturally so as in a great measure to nullify whatever good design it may have otherwise. The building we are speaking of is about 75 feet on Prince by 60 on Greene, and above this iron basement has three stories in brick. The brick work is painted in two tones of red, by the darker of which are distinguished the arches and quoins of the openings and belts in the first story. Stone, used with a split face, is employed in the sills, and in a course slightly corbelled out on brickwork above the first story.

The composition of the Prince street front is a "survival" of three 25-foot houses, the divisions being marked by wider piers and by the emergence above of brick objects of which it is not clear whether they are chimneys or only rude balusters. Between them is a light parapet of metal. In the first story the central opening of the middle house is enlarged and flanked by narrow slits of windows, with some decorated panels of terra cotta. This treatment so far relieves what would otherwise be a monotonous succession of openings.

The faults of the composition are that the terminal piers, the pieces of wall at the ends of the front, are narrower than the intermediate piers, and that the building is cut in two vertically by the corbelled string course, of which we have already spoken, above the first story, leaving the stories above and the first story and basement below. The first of these may be a misfortune, though it is hard to see what practical harm could have resulted from drawing the openings closer together and leaving a visibly sufficient abutment. The second is clearly a fault. The father of criticism, Aristotle, laid it down as a rule, which his descendants have occasion to apply every day, that a work of art should have a beginning, a middle and an end. Apparently nothing could be more obvious and yet nothing is more habitually disregarded. As applied to a four-story building, with no visible roof, the rule would prescribe that the basement should be one thing, the next two stories another, unless one of these were so predominant as to deserve to be distinguished as one of the main divisions of the building and the fourth story a third, and that they should be differentiated in treatment accordingly. Here there is a beginning, though, unfortunately, being the support of all the rest, it is more slender and less massive than any of the rest. But which is the middle and which the end no man can tell, and the confusion is increased by the belt above the first story.

The basement on Greene staeet is much more massive in treatment than the front, only the massiveness is in the wrong place. The corners stand on iron stilts, and between these is a brick wall pierced with a row of four small openings, with a rough stone transom running through them, which is superfluous and looks like a piece of affectation. Above these, in each story, are three openings, grouped in the centre, one near the north end.

Although we have thus far done nothing but point out faults, it remains true that the building has a good effect. It is, in the first place, above the basement unusually massive for a commercial building, and it could not have this massiveness, which of itself gives repose, if it were cut up, as is the common practice, by slender piers projected from the face of the wall. Then the color, although we should have preferred to see it attained by more permanent means, is very good and sober. Above all, the detail is characteristic of the materials and well designed. The arches of the first story are excessive—five half-bricks, or six, including the label, to span an ordinary window. This, however, is a fault on the right side, and everywhere the metal is treated like metal, the brick like brick, and the stone like stone. What is the best of all is the absence of that pretentiousness which is the common vice of commercial architecture, big and little, and which always gives the note of vulgarity.

Not far above this, on the east side of Greene street, is what looks like the back of a building, but is the front. It is 50 feet or more wide, and six stories high. The peculiarity of the design consists in the employment of flanking towers of brick work enclosing a huge sash frame of iron. If the basement of the centre were also of masonry this would be a good arrangement, and resemble that adopted in the warehouse at Broome street and Broadway, some months ago commended in these columns. For the lack of this connection the front is not tied together, but looks like three separate slices of building. The detail, moreover, is not interesting, and the brick towers are disgraced by the insertion of pediments and lintels of cast iron.

What Does Bismarck Mean?

A correspondent of The Record and Guide ventured to predict last week that Bismarck was trying to pick a quarrel with this country so as to replenish the treasury of the German empire and make that nation respected as a naval power. Our correspondent's argument was that the United States was utterly defenseless, had no navy or modern guns, and that neither could be supplied under three years' time. The cities on our seacoast are enormously wealthy, and in a few weeks after a declaration of war any power with an iron-clad fleet could be in possession of all our seacoast cities. Germany has gained great prestige in its contests with Austria, Denmark and France, and it is aiming to become a great naval power. If Bismarck could get $1,000,000,000 from the United States, Germany would rank with Great Britain as a power on the ocean. To bring about this result our correspondent pointed out the unfriendly acts of Bismarck—the exclusion of American pork—the return of the Laskar resolutions—the empressment of naturalized citizens into the German armies, and finally the insults put on our Minister at Berlin. Doubtless this may seem very wild to all our readers, but the following paragraph which appeared in the Commercial Bulletin last Tuesday seems to show that Bismarck is really up to some mischief:

The indefatigable and restless Bismarck continues in various ways to make vigorous preparations for the next war. Thus, we read in the latest North German Gazette that Parliament is about to be asked for a supplementary credit of 18,000,000 (presumably of marks) for increasing the number of torpedo boats in the Imperial navy and providing them with the necessary service of men and material. The Cologne Gazette likewise hears that two very important measures have just been worked out at the Admiralty—one referring to a grand scheme of coast defense, and the other to the organization of a sort of Grand General Staff for the navy.

Now, why these naval preparations? A war with any continental power would be on land. Germany would not dare to attack Great Britain by sea. May not Bismarck desire to take advantage of our naval weakness and at once replenish the coffers of Germany and get the prestige of having a great navy as well as the best army organized during the present century? Our correspondent predicted that the next move of Bismarck would be the annexation of some of the West India Islands, so as to secure a naval depot near our coast. Well—we shall see.

The Great Debate on the Standards of Value.

So much is being said just now against the silver coinage that it would be well perhaps to state a few facts which cannot well be disputed.

1. When the Bland silver bill was passed in April, 1878, over President Hayes' veto the Eastern press and all the leading banks and bankers of the Atlantic slope predicted that the direst results would follow, that the premium on gold would be increased, our government bonds would fall in market value and the credit of the nation would be injured on all the foreign exchanges, that gold would be driven out of the country and silver would take its place. Every one of those dismal prophecies not only proved untrue but entirely opposite results followed.

2. The Bland bill of 1878 had the immediate effect of reducing the premium on gold so that we were enabled to resume specie payments in January, 1879. At that date the total amount of gold coins and bullion was $278,000,000, on November 1, 1883, the gold coin and bullion had increased to $582,000,000, that is, it had more than doubled although during all this time the treasury was minting $2,000,000 in silver per month. The silver on January 1, 1879, was $106,000,000, in November last it was $242,000,000. Our store of silver had doubled as well as our store of gold in four years' time. During this period it should be recalled we had mined considerably more silver than gold.

3. As our store of gold is nearly $600,000,000, and our store of silver less than $250,000,000, it follows that there is not any—not the slightest—danger of putting our currency upon a silver basis, and the papers which profess to believe that we are running this danger either lack intelligence themselves or regard their readers as fools.

4. France, as Gen. Jourdon has pointed out, has been bi-metallic for over half a century, that is, its silver five-franc pieces, with three per cent. less of the white metal than our standard dollar, circulates at par with gold. The latter has never been at a premium. On October, 1883, its store of silver was $540,000,000, and its store of gold $873,000,000. We quote:

That is to say, France under a bi-metallic monetary system has a per capita silver legal tender circulation of $14.40 with $23.28 of gold, while in Great Britain and Ireland under a gold mono-metallic system the metallic money circulation per capita is but $16.67 with but $2.64 in subsidiary silver. In other words, bi-metallic France not only has silver money to the extent of $14.40 per head of her population, but $6.61 more gold per head than the gold mono-metallic system has given to the British Islands.

At the present writing there is a full legal tender silver circulation in the United States of barely $3 per head of the population, or $11 less than that of the French people, as also less gold per capita by $10.46. Moreover, should our mints continue to coin 2,300,000 standard dollars every month, as at present, it would take no less than fourteen years, or until the 31st December, 1897, to coin enough of such dollars, added to the amount already coined, to be equivalent to the legal tender value of the five-franc pieces held by the French people at this time, with a population of but 37,500,000 souls, whereas, by the 31st December, 1897, the people of the United States will number at least 85,000,000 souls, and the silver circulation will not exceed $6 34 per head, or $8.06 less than the French have this 23d day of February, 1884.

The prosperous commercial people of the Netherlands have to-day a legal tender silver circulation of $13.57 per head, or $7.23 greater than our people would have on the 1st January, 1898, with a continuation of the present rate of standard dollar coinage all the while up to that time. And yet the Netherlands cannot properly be said to be reduced to a monometallism of silver.

Another of the most prosperous states of Europe, Belgium, has as much full legal tender silver as $10.36 per head of the population concurrently with $12 14 in gold. That is to say, $7.36 more silver and $1.02 per head more gold than there is in the United States to-day, and fully $4 per head more of silver than the continued coinage of 2,300,000 standard dollars per month would give to this country by the end of 1897.

With these facts in view what is to be said of the New York press, the treasury officials and the bankers who have professed to believe that our silver coinage would drive our gold out of the country? Our silver has added to the gold in the treasury and the banks, for the white metal has performed many duties usually demanded of the yellow metal, thus allowing the latter to be stored up in banks and treasury vaults. It is only a few weeks since that the assistant treasurer of the United States reported officially to Congress that $70,000,000 of the gold in the treasury represented a similar amount of silver certificates exchanged for the gold. Our silver policy has saved the country from a dangerous panic, for during the last two years of liquidation, had we depended upon gold alone, money would have been scarce and its price high. Fortunately we have utilized our silver as well as gold and money has been cheap, which has saved us from a ruinous panic. Of course the interests of all bankers and lenders of money is to make the commodities in which they deal as costly as possible, and this accounts for the persistent and vigorous misstatements of their organs in the press.

The World sent out a reporter to learn the facts about silver, and this was his report in last Thursday's paper:

Mr. Floyd, Chief Clerk of the Sub-Treasury, who from his long connection with the Assay Office and the Sub-Treasury is regarded as an authority on these questions, said yesterday that he did not believe there was any cause for alarm. There is no scarcity of gold. In the Sub-Treasury to-day there is $74,717,645 in gold coin, which is about $2 000,000 more than at the same time a year ago. Moreover, the reserve held by the government against the currency circulation amounts to $143,293,710, which is $43,293,710 more than the hundred millions required by the law of July, 1882 and over $5,000,000 more than the amounts required by the previous law which provided for a reserve of 40 per cent. of the greenbacks outstanding.

"Why," said Mr. Floyd, "the government could dispose of $20,000,000 of its reserve to-day and still have $23,000,000 more than the legal reserve. The withdrawals of gold coin are not of sufficient magnitude to excite alarm. The shipments of gold I do not think are so very heavy for this season. I notice, however, that banks are taking gold coin instead of gold certificates, and also that they take the 'double eagles,' which is the denomination which is always shipped ahead. This leads me to surmise that many of these withdrawals are for the purpose of giving the impression that the coin is to be shipped abroad, whereas most of it probably is being held by the banks. The receipts from customs duties Tuesday were unusually heavy, amounting to $1,127,000. The day previous the total was $885,000, and on Saturday the receipts were $403,000. About 25 per cent. of the duties are paid in silver, which is not unusual in amount, and is in fact but a fair average."

Does not this show that the clamor about silver is a put up job by the banks, and that they have used our daily papers as vessels of dishonor to mislead the business public? The Herald reporter in Wednesday's issue also told the truth, and flatly contradicted the preposterous rubbish in the editorial columns.

Our Prophetic Department.

CITIZEN—You must have noticed, Sir Oracle, that political activity has greatly increased lately, and what seems to me a symptom that is very encouraging is that voluntary organizations are springing up to induce young men to express their choice of presidential candidates. I do not despair of the Republic when so many people outside of the party organizations are interested in public affairs.

SIR ORACLE—I am sorry I cannot share your optimistic enthusiasm. I notice that all the gatherings of young Republicans are in the interest of special candidates, or directed against some particular candidate or candidates. Now the political needs of our times are not merely good presidential aspirants, for the various lawyers spoken of are all reasonably good men. The country will be perfectly safe for another four years if Arthur, Edmunds, Lincoln or Logan were chosen on the Republican side, and it would be equally safe if some such Democrat as Tilden, Hendricks, McDonald, Morrison, Carlisle or Hewett were chosen on the Democratic side. So all this hal-a-balloo simply means the offices, and these ardent young men who want to reform and remodel the machines are merely looking out for No. 1.

CITIZEN—What would you have our active-minded young politicians do then? Their ambition to take part in public affairs is creditable to them; for when voters neglect their political duties, farewell to the Republic.

SIR O.—All that is true, but why do not our young reforming politicians enter into organizations which represent some better programme of party action. The vice of our political organizations is their want of purpose. Both parties are split up, for instance, on the question of tariff reform as well as on all salient questions. I would like to see formed free-trade clubs, home industrial protection societies and similar organizations. Our federal constitution needs vital changes, but I cannot see in any direction a public-spirited effort to improve our complicated system of government, or make our party machinery better represent the interests of the community at large.

CITIZEN—Do you still think that Chester A. Arthur will be the nominee of the Republican party for the presidency?

SIR O.—His chances seem to me to be improving every day. The American people don't like showy, brilliant speakers or lawyers for chief magistrates. President Arthur is just to their taste. Good generals are popular candidates, that is if they are not orators, or eccentric in their conduct. This is why men like Generals Taylor and Grant were more popular than General Sherman will ever be.

CITIZEN—I see that Roscoe Conkling believes that the next President will be a Democrat.

SIR O.—That conundrum I give up. All that we can be really sure of is that he will be a lawyer, and that he will hedge on the tariff question.

A compromise between the parties interested has been effected by which west side property holders will get the benefit of surface cars on Tenth avenue from the lower end of the Park to the Harlem River. The horse-car company will continue its work to Bloomingdale, but from that location to the Harlem River a cable road will be made. There are also rumors of a cable road from Eighty-sixth street, along Madison avenue, to the Harlem River. The work on Tenth avenue will be completed before next summer. West side property holders are to be congratulated in view of the fact that, in spite of the entire daily press of New York, they have at length succeeded in getting the much needed surface transit. We believe the arrangement eventually contemplates a cable road the entire distance on Tenth avenue, and a connection in time with the Seventh and Sixth avenue and Broadway cars.

The Road to Rapid Transit in Brooklyn.

That the rapid transit question for Brooklyn is essentially different from the question in New York will be seen readily in a glance at the map. The business portion of the former city lies parallel with the water front and continuous along its entire extent, while the lateral distances to the present limits of the thickly inhabited districts are at no point very great It is always possible for a citizen of Brooklyn whose business is in that city to find a place of residence within easy reach of his counting room or work shop, and even to those who must come daily to New York rapid transit is frequently of greatest importance after they have crossed the river and reached the locality of prolonged lines of longitude and short latitude. From north to south the distance from one end of Brooklyn to the other is considerable, but there is comparatively little intercourse among the people of the divided sections, so little, indeed, that the question of rapid transit between the two neighborhoods has never been considered.

But it is a question, after all, if a quick transit railway through the centre of the city from north to south will not, within a few years, be found an indispensable object. In its future growth Brooklyn must follow the water front. It is suburban New York only that pushes its enterprises in the direction of Jamaica Bay. All local commercial and industrial influences combine to hold population near the shore; and the city is destined to extend all the way from beyond Astoria to the Lower Bay, passing Bay Ridge, and, eventually, even Fort Hamilton. With this prospect in view it is easy to see that a north and south quick transit railway must form the indispensable tie that will unite the two widely separated districts, even now so far divided that were it not for politics they would seem almost foreign to each other.

But this north and south quick transit railway should be also a terminal railway. It is the good fortune of Brooklyn that she will be able to kil two birds with one stone; and after having formed connection with the great lines of transportation by passing under the Narrows and across Staten Island, she can serve all the ends of local traffic over the same tracks that conduct passenger trains into the city from all parts of the country. The highest engineering conception will have been realized when the city can point to two tunnels, one under the East River at the point of its discharge into Flushing Bay, and the other under the Narrows, both connected by a depressed or tunnel railway passing in the neighborhood of the City Hall, and moving passengers freely from one end of the city to the other. A surface railway for freight will be needed also along the water front, passing in some places over the tracks of existing, but not very profitable, horse railways, and at other points over new ground opened for the purpose of completing the system.

The plans of the South Ferry & Seaside Direct Transit Company seem to have resulted from a sort of inspiration. In conjunction with the plans for the rapid transit road across Staten Island, upon which work is to be immediately begun, they represent the inception of precisely what Brooklyn needs to overcome the disadvantages of its insular position, and to render it one of the most convenient of cities either for business or residence. For the present the main purpose of the company should be turned to the construction of their road from Atlantic avenue to the Narrows, and to the opening of communication with the mainland at Elizabeth and Perth Amboy. These are the two strategic points in the campaign for commercial success, and when they have been secured it will be surprising to see the facility with which the final battles may be won. When passenger trains can leave Atlantic avenue for all points of the West or South, the demand for the extension of the road northward through the city will become irresistible. Then, too, lateral roads, depressed or elevated, according to the best judgment or resources of the time, may be extended from all the ferries, and made to reach as far into the suburbs as they can be rendered profitable.

Whether rapid transit railways in Brooklyn, built for the accommodation of local travel alone, can be made to pay good dividends on the investments necessary for their construction is a question upon which the opinions of one man are about as good as those of another, and not good for much whichever side of the argument is maintained. An approximate estimate of the number of passengers to be carried might be made were we to search through the directory, and learn, not merely the number of people who go to New York daily for business, but the distance of their dwellings from the ferry slips, and their proximity to the proposed lines of transit. But at this point we should have to suspend all calculation. At no hour of the day could a higher fare than five cents be charged with any chance of securing traffic, and even this charge might be met by a cut in rates on the surface roads. The horse-cars, made comfortable in winter and pleasant in summer, pick up passengers at almost any corner, carry them in every direction, and serve all the purposes of intercommunication within the city limits without leaving an interval for saving more than a few minutes' time between any two very thickly populated districts. What proportion of the strictly local travel could be secured by rapid transit railroads would be an entirely problematical question, and it is a dangerous subject on which to make guesses for future demonstration.

But there is no question to cause uneasiness, when, with rapid transit, you combine also the subject of general railway traffic and transportation, and offer to place Brooklyn in communication with the rest of mankind over roads that may be made both terminal and local. Several miles of warehouses within the city are loaded with merchandize which can only be shipped to the mainland by slow and wasteful methods. See, also, how clumsily the coal traffic is conducted over the whole extent of Long Island. At great cost of labor and time the coal must be shoveled from the bottoms of boats, within themselves a useless and expensive vehicle of transportation, and loaded into carts. In these carts it must be carted to the coal yard, when anything more than a merely hand-to-mouth supply of stock is contemplated, and there, again, it must be reshoveled into carts for final distribution. Compare this with the process through which Newark, for instance, obtains her supply. A row of elevated coal-bins, say, altogether, 600 or 700 feet long and 50 feet wide, stands along the tracks of the Pennsylvania Railroad. Over the tops of these bins extend tracks, along which coal cars are run and discharged by the almost instantaneous process familiar to those who have seen their operation. Under the bins coal carts in waiting receive their loads through shutes almost as quickly as the drivers can bring their donkeys to a rest, and the coal is then weighed and ready for distribution. This is an improvement on the Brooklyn method of coal-heaving, more cleanly as well as more suggestive of dispatch.

But this is only mentioned by way of illustration. With modifications the same clumsy methods obtain in handling all merchandize in Brooklyn, and it is only due to the excellence of her warehouse system and the still more defective machinery in New York that she has reached her present important commercial position. But her disabilities ought not to last, and it will be a lucky day for the city when she discovers that the best step towards the peculiar sort of rapid transit which she needs will be made over terminal railways.

The Outlook in Real Estate and Business.

"What kind of a market shall we have this spring?" asked the writer, of Mr. Richard V. Harnett.

"I look," was the reply, "to a very good spring business. I know that my own personal business, both as an auctioneer and broker, was never better. I shall have some very large sales before the season is over. One very healthy sign is that sellers have no extravagant ideas. They are satisfied with moderate prices. Although most of my own sales so far were in advance of the figures I expected, yet I sincerely hope there will be no 'boom' in prices. Considering the liquidation in stocks and the depression in business, owners of realty should not hope for extravagant prices. It would kill a good market were they to do so. I notice," continued Mr. Harnett, "what you have said in THE RECORD AND GUIDE about the large increase in Conveyances this year compared with last year. It is a good sign."

"How about the stock market, Mr. Harnett?"

"About that I cannot speak with as much knowledge as of real estate, but several very influential financial men have told me that the tide had changed and that the period of stock depression was over."

Our esteemed contemporary, the Chronicle, tells a somewhat apocryphal story of a car driver at Paso del Norte starting for the Mexican side of the river to El Paso with a Mexican dollar. He procured a drink for 15 cents and got in change an American dollar, which is 15 per cent. discount in Mexico. Returning to the American side of the river, he tenders his American dollar for another drink, and gets a Mexican dollar, which is 15 per cent. discount on the American side. Passing to and fro, he repeats the operation until he consumes all the whiskey he can hold, and still has his dollar intact. This is a very good story, but, of course, it isn't true. If it were, all it would prove would be the potency of the government stamp in giving value to a real money metal. The trade dollar contains seven and one-half more grains of silver than the standard dollar, but was driven out of circulation because of its poorer purchasing power compared with the legal tender dollar. The Latin Union has in circulation 600,000,000 silver five-franc pieces, which contain 3 per cent. less silver than our standard dollars. Yet the gold currency is not quoted as at the smallest premium compared with silver. This fact should be kept in mind by all who read the sensational and unreliable statements in the daily press respecting the danger of an increase in our silver currency.

The Mutual Life Insurance Company have practically rented all the offices in their splendid new building on Nassau street, and at terms which will yield a fair interest upon the money invested. This has been due in good part to liberal advertising. Vice-President Geo. H. Andrews says that judging from their business of making loans on real estate, the outlook for building in this city is very much better than it was expected to be at the beginning of the year. Real estate, he thinks, is doing very well and is holding its own better than securities or investments in general business.

Mount Vernon wants a public park, or at least some of its principal tax-payers do. Thirty-five acres of swamp land near the station of the New Haven Railroad, almost in the centre of the village, has been chosen for the site of the new pleasure ground. A bill to locate this park has been introduced into the Legislature, and the fact has been developed that while the majority of the people of Mount Vernon favor it an active and powerful minority think that the money it would cost (some $70,000) had better be spent in other public improvements, such as sewers and waterworks. But the Park project has the more powerful backing as it will get rid of an unsightly and unhealthy swamp and make a charming pleasure ground that will be attractive to the whole neighboring county and add to the value of Mount Vernon property.

The Proposed New York Arcade Railway.

The bill now before both houses of the Legislature, giving power to the Broadway Underground Railway to construct an Arcade Road in place of a tunnel, is of such importance to owners of property on Broadway and the people of New York city generally, that we feel justified in presenting our readers with the full report of Chief-Engineer William J. McAlpine, giving a comparison between the proposed Arcade and the underground rail ways of London. The two pictures which accompany the report give an idea of the appearance of the road when in operation, and of the PLAN FOR BUILDING THE ARCADE WITHOUT INTERRUPTION TO TRAVEL.

The work on the Arcade will be commenced by placing along the line of the roadway two iron bridges of from 500 to 1,000 feet in length, and each 18 feet wide in the clear, and along the line of sidewalks corresponding bridges, each about 12 feet wide. These bridges to be supported at intermediate points. The floor of these bridges will be elevated 4 feet above the grade of the street, and the difference in elevation overcome by a gentle ascent at each end. The skeleton frame trusses will form but slight obstruction to the view, and permit pedestrians to cross the streets at all places. The panels are made separate and bolted together, and may be taken down from one end and added to the other with facility. Convenient access to and from the bridges will be provided, and the work on the railway will be carried on under the bridge, without using the street, either in the removal of excavations or in bringing materials to construct the road, the completed Arcade being ample for these uses, and affording abundant store-room for all the purposes of construction. The street in front of an ordinary building would be occupied by the bridges and workmen about one month, and during this time (by the plan proposed) the occupants of the building would suffer but little inconvenience and the street travel little, if any, obstruction.

The following is the full text of the report:

HON. MELVILLE C. SMITH, President of the Broadway Underground Railway:

SIR—The annexed report is a statement of my recent examination of the London underground railways, and a comparison between them and the projected Arcade Railway of New York. There are also appended diagrams and sketches of those works, and many maps, profiles, sections, working drawings, together with printed reports and statistics, including many you procured while on your tour of inspection with Directors Hon. William Windom and Jerome Fassler, of the underground railways and structures in the cities of London and Paris. I have also to acknowledge the valuable information obtained and work accomplished by Engineer Frederick N. Blanc, whom you left in London, in the employ of your company. These papers, &c., submitted with others which I am to receive from Europe, will be of great value when the construction of the New York Arcade Railway is commenced. I have also in preparation a report and discussion of the application of several kinds of motive power to the railway, which will be hereafter submitted to you.

Respectfully, WM. J. MCALPINE, Engineer in Chief.

New York, January, 1884.

COMPARISON OF THE PROPOSED NEW YORK ARCADE RAILWAY WITH THE UNDERGROUND RAILWAYS OF LONDON.

The results of the construction and operation of the underground railways of London have demonstrated not only the feasibility of the New York Arcade Railway, but have also shown that the apprehensions sometimes expressed that adjacent private property would be injured and the traffic of the street partly inconvenienced, are wholly without foundation in fact. The large and steady increase in the traffic and net revenues of these London railways gives assurance that the one projected for New York will prove a successful enterprise. The correctness of these statements will be shown by the following comparisons between the "Inner Circle" of the two London railways and the New York Arcade. The "Inner Circle" comprises twelve miles of circumference, enclosing about seven square miles, mainly of the heart of London.

First—This London line has been built chiefly under or through the most costly property in the world, and less than one-third of its length passes under the streets (Euston, Marylebone and Embankment) thus adding immeasurably to the difficulties and obstructions to be met and overcome, and as a consequence enhancing greatly the dangers and cost of construction.

The New York railway will pass entirely under the streets, and in no instance under or near any valuable buildings or property.

Second—Four miles of the London railways have been built with the grades from 13 to 20 feet below tide water level.

The New York railway will have less than a third of a mile of its grade below tide level, and at its deepest place but 5 feet below low tide.

Third—The excavations for the London railways have been made chiefly in stiff clay, and in many places among the walls and debris of the old Roman works; in others they had to be made by small divided tunnels and strong wooden protections, involving expensive work.

The excavations for the New York railway will be chiefly sand and gravel, though some ten per cent. of the distance will be in rock, which must be quarried, but as a whole the cost of the excavation will be considerably less.

Fourth—The crossing streets of the London railway are crooked and very narrow, and portions of them have been occupied during the construction of the underground works.

The New York railway will be built beneath a series of movable bridges with tramways underneath, on which all of the materials will be conveyed, so that no portion of either the main or cross streets will be used or interrupted.

Fifth—The construction of the London railways required radical changes in the lines and grades of the sewers (some of immense size), water and gas pipes, many of which were very old and decayed.

There are no continuous sewers in lower Broadway, New York. The few existing are generally of small size, and the changes in their grades and outlet can be easily made. Continuous vaults will be made on each side of the railway, or under the road bed, in which will be placed complete systems of sewer, water, gas, telegraph wires, heating and other pipes, where they will all be open for inspection, repairs and replacements, without interrupting the street or railway traffic, and do away forever with the present almost constant interruption of the trade and travel.

Sixth—The ventilation of the London railway tunnels, with twenty stations of 300 to 500 feet in length, open more or less to the air above, is generally considered good, though the heavy, humid atmosphere and very dense fogs of London, taken in connection with the consumption of coal, and imperfect condensation of steam of the locomotives used, render it more difficult to secure perfect ventilation. There is one continuous tunnel of two and a quarter miles from Kings Cross to Edgeware road, where small narrow openings of 3 by 15 feet extend from the tunnel roof to the street surface, and even here the ventilation is made moderately good.

On the New York Arcade Railway there will be five times the number of stations with openings to the air in a corresponding distance, and the openings will be larger than on the London railway. This, with a continuous opening of about 6 feet on each side of the Arcade, adjacent to the buildings, the absence of fuel combustion in the engines, and the use of steam condensing locomotives would, beyond a question, render the atmosphere of the Arcade pure, and the ventilation perfect.

Seventh—There are 540 trains dispatched daily between 5 A. M. and midnight on the London railway, of which half are sent at intervals of three minutes, and the other trains usually at four and seven minutes. By means of the "Lock system," trains on other railroads in London are dispatched every two minutes. The maximum capacity both ways of the London underground double track railway at two minute intervals for twenty-four hours (for passengers and freight) would be 1,440 trains daily.

The New York four-track railway with trains every two minutes, would have a maximum capacity of twice that of the London which, with its more powerful engines and larger trains, would be equal to the movement of about five hundred thousand passengers, and about an equal number of tons of freight each day.

Eighth—The schedule time of trains on the London railway, between Aldgate and the Mansion House (in a circuit of twelve miles) is 63 minutes. The speed varies from 8 to 14 miles an hour, including 22 stops, or, while in motion, from 16 to 20 miles an hour.

The way trains on the New York railway will be run at ten miles an hour, including about ten stops on each mile. The express trains will be run at the rate of thirty miles an hour, including one stop in each mile. That is, from the foot of Whitehall street to Thirtieth street in 6 minutes, or to Central Park in 10 minutes, or to One Hundredth street in 15 minutes, or to One Hundred and Thirtieth street in 17 minutes, or to High Bridge in 22 minutes, or to the north line of the city in 34 minutes.

Ninth—The London railways have been tunneled under many high, large and valuable buildings* and under every variety of structure met with in a great city, including a monument of 180 tons. In many places the walls of the tunnels have been founded from 10 to 20 feet lower than the foundations of adjacent buildings, and in some places the foundations of these adjacent buildings, many being very old and of decayed material, have been underpinned from 6 to 16 feet in depth. But in all these cases, through the admirable plans of the English engineers, the underground railway has been constructed with complete success, and without causing any injury whatever to the buildings.

There is no part of the New York railway where such difficult work will be required. The excavations for the Arcade Railway will not extend to within 18 feet of the face line of any of the buildings, and the excavations for the vaults (constructed for the city's use), where they are deeper than the foundations of any of the buildings, will be made upon the same successful plans which were used in London. The underpinning of such of the buildings as will be found necessary, will be of less extent and far less difficult, and can be made without the slightest injury to them.

Tenth—The grades of the London railway are very undulating, and in some places very steep. On the metropolitan portion of the "Inner Circle" they are generally one in one hundred, and in one place one in seventy. The grades of the district portion are flatter and less undulating. On the "widening lines," to connect with the country railways, there are grades of one in thirty-nine, in forty, in forty-six, and one in fifty feet. Two-thirds of the length of the railway is one curve of 660, 1,000 and 2,000 feet radii.

The New York railway will be almost a continuous straight line, with very light grades. At Canal street, and that only for a half a mile, there will be a grade of 1 foot in 82.

Eleventh—The locomotives of the London railways are all of one type of 42 tons weight and 5 feet 6 inch drivers. The trains usually consist of from three to six carriages, with capacity for conveying 30 passengers each.

The express locomotives on the New York railway will have power to haul twelve or fifteen carriages, which will seat sixty passengers in each.

Twelfth—I examined a great many places on the line of the "Inner Circle" to ascertain whether the trains passing through the tunnels of the London underground railways produced any vibration or jar of the buildings above and adjacent to the railway, but nowhere could detect the slightest motion. I was informed that careful tests with very delicate instruments were made some years ago, and that no motion or jar as great as that produced by an ordinary vehicle passing on the street was anywhere found. In some places peat or tan bark was put under the sleepers, but these precautions were subsequently found to be unnecessary. The engineers state that in twenty years they have never been called upon to pay a guinea for damages to overhead or contiguous buildings or property.

On the New York Arcade the way tracks will be 18 feet distant from the face of the buildings, which space will be vaulted so that the trains in motion cannot possibly produce vibration or jar to the buildings. The tracks of the express trains will be 11 feet still further removed from the buildings.

Thirteenth—The numerous railways of London radiate in every direction from the business portions to the suburban residences, extending to a complete circuit of more than thirty miles in diameter, and distribute this kind of travel over more than twenty different lines, and yet every one of them has an amount of business which pays a fair return for even the enormous cost of these radiating railways, and this is particularly the case with the very costly underground railways.

New York city is very differently situated. The business is chiefly confined to the lower end of the island, and there is but one natural free outlet, which is directly northward. This route is confined by deep water channels, the passage of which is obstructed by fogs, ice and all of the discomforts, delays and dangers of ferry voyages. The immense business which is concentrated at the lower, narrow end of the city has shown that the streets in that section are too few for the business and the houses. The property is too valuable to permit the opening of new streets or even the enlargement of those existing. The number of drays and carts alone, daily passing in Broadway, are more than seven thousand. These, with vehicles entering from the side streets, frequently so gorge and obstruct this great thoroughfare that travel is for hours entirely suspended. The immense loss and annoyance through this obstruction is greatly aggravated by the street being constantly torn up in connection with sewer, gas, water, steam heating and other pipes. The surface and elevated railways offer inconvenient and insufficient accommodation to passengers between that portion of the city devoted to business and that occupied by residences, yet they are crowded to their utmost capacity, because nothing better is afforded. Since the opening of the elevated railways the increase of travel has been more than all the passengers they carry, showing that the travel in this direction will increase up to the extent of the accommodation which is offered. The Arcade offers in all respect the most effectual remedy and relief the ingenuity of man can contrive. It duplicates the street; it offers the most complete accommodation for way and through travel; it furnishes cheap and rapid transportation for freight and express; and by thus removing all obstructive vehicles from the upper street, systematizing the travel, and by the application of a motive power vastly more effective than can be used on the surface street, it would treble the capacity of Broadway in all the essential elements which make a street useful and adjacent property valuable.

COST AND TRAFFIC OF THE LONDON RAILWAYS.

The London Metropolitan Railway, in January, 1863, had opened three and one-third miles for travel, and in 1868 about as much more. The Metropolitan District Railway opened two and a-half miles in 1868, and one and a-half miles in 1870, and has now, in connection with other companies, two miles in progress. The Metropolitan, with its branches running out from the city, is twenty-two miles in length, on which there has been expended about fifty-five millions of dollars. The Metropolitan District, with its branches, is thirteen miles in length, on which there has been expended about thirty-five millions of dollars.

In 1877, the Metropolitan had expended on its line from Aldgate to South Kensington (7 8-10 miles of the main track and 2 6-10 miles of widening, etc., for this portion of the "Inner Circle,") as follows:

For land and indemnities	$18,672,540
For excavations and works	13,360,899
For general expenses	2,278,161
For rolling stock	1,329,290
Making a total of	$35,640,890

Including some unpaid accounts, the cost per mile for this 10 4-10 miles was $3,339,645.

During the year 1882 the passengers carried were as follows:

First class	Metropolitan	3,485,910	District	3,313,752
Second "	"	8,131,499	"	6,411,686

THE EXTENSION NOW UNDER CONSTRUCTION.

Our visit was fortunately timed, as we found the engineers engaged in constructing one of the most intricate and difficult portions of the railway, viz.: upon the two miles of the extension eastward from the Mansion House, through a network of narrow and crooked streets, along which were standing every variety of buildings, from the heaviest and most costly to the oldest and most decayed. Many of these, especially the latter, were torn down, either for the extension of the stations or for the purpose of providing additional breathing places, and others were maintained by tunneling under them for the passage of the railway. The works on this line embraced all of the varieties of construction which had been adopted elsewhere on the railway, and we found them in every stage of progress, from that of placing the temporary roadways and works, temporarily securing the water, gas and sewage pipes, and the permanent works therefor; the wooden protections and small tunnel excavations for underpinning and supporting the houses, and for excavating and laying up the side walls, also of the top arching and placement of the iron girders, and of the method of excavating and removing the materials.* The railway was carried under the London Hospital, a massive stone building of four stories. The underpinning was completed while I was in London, and I carefully examined the building, but did not find that any injury had been done, not even the cracking of the plastered walls. The railway passes within 10 feet of a row of large cut stone buildings in Cannon street, and as excavations therefor were dug to a level 15 feet below their foundations, with the precautions taken no injury has been done to them. It also passes flush with the tower of St. Mary's (Whitechapel) Church, in Aldgate street, and the railway excavations were made 8½ feet below the level of its foundation. No injury whatever has been done to the tower or church. This portion of the railway has been carried under and in front of many other buildings, and in no instance have they been injured. In the middle of King William street is a monument of William IV. which, with its base, weighs 180 tons, and the railway is tunneled directly under this statue. The railway passes in front of the South Eastern Railway Station and Hotel. When we examined this work we found that the whole of this area had been temporarily bridged over, and the underground works were in progress. Large granite blocks of 5 feet square had been laid on concrete bases; on these were to be placed iron columns surmounted by iron girders and jack arches, which were to support the carriage travel over the area in front of the station, and the space below was to be used for the underground railway station. The brick sewers were temporarily sustained by cradles and props. A gas-main of 24 inches diameter was suspended from the wooden bridge, and two 12-inch and several small water-pipes were also suspended or propped up from below. The sidewalks of the railway in one place were in process of erection; in another place the roof arching; in another the roof girders; in another the inverted arches and track work; so that in one short distance could be seen the actual construction of almost all the varieties of work required in the building of any portion of the railway.

DIFFICULTIES ENCOUNTERED ON THE OLD DISTRICT RAILWAYS.

At Pembroke square the railway was carried very obliquely under eight new and valuable houses. The level of the rails is 20 feet below the street and 11 feet below the foundations of the houses. At St. James station there is a house of fourteen stories high—the highest dwelling in London. The railway excavations were made within 20 feet of its face and 15 feet below the level of its base walls. At Victoria street the railway was carried under a very large and heavy brewery. In this case the side walls and arch covering were increased in thickness, and twelve massive wrought iron girders were stretched across above the arch to take the weight of the building and of the large weighty vats. Near the same place the foundation of the railway had to be placed at 15 feet below the level of the base walls of some high buildings, and in another case the railway was carried diagonally under another set of heavy buildings. At Victoria station the railway was carried under the largest sewer in London, having a cross section of 151 square feet. The level of the invert of this sewer is 8 feet below high tide in the Thames, and the rail level of the railway had to be depressed to 21 feet 9 inches below, and the excavations at this place had to be extended to 28 feet below high or 15 feet below low water tide level. At Sloane Square station two cast-iron sewers are carried over the railway; one of them is 9 feet diameter and crosses the railway diagonally. It is supported on each side by a wrought-iron girder of 73 feet length, 6½ feet depth, and flanges of 2 feet width. At Blackfriar station a very complicated construction was required. The grade of the railway had to be placed at 10 feet below high tide to pass under the north approach of Blackfriar's Bridge. Two sub-ways had to be carried over the railway and the low level sewer under it, and the outlet for the gas company, the Fleet street sewer and its storm-water conduit overflow had to be provided for. All of these lines met nearly at one place and crossed the railway very obliquely. Those passing above the railway were sustained by girders, some of which were 75 feet long. The underground depot at Smithfield Market is 625 by 240 feet square, with 24¼ feet head-room. The vaults at the sides are in bays of 25 by 15 feet, covered by arches of masonry. The remainder of the upper market area is supported by iron columns and girders. Some of the cast iron columns are of 18 inches diameter, and carry 400 tons weight. Some of the girders are 4½ feet deep, boxed with flanges 2½ feet wide. Resting on brick and concrete bases are 180 wrought iron columns, made generally of channel bars of 12 by 3½ by 1⅝ inches, and plates of 15 by 1 inch. Some of them are double. The stations are roofed with iron arched ribs of 87 feet span and 29 feet rise.

MOTIVE POWER.

I examined the locomotives and machinery of the Kings Cross and Hallowell Railway, where compressed air is used for the motive power. There is no doubt but that this motive power has or can be successfully applied with advantage upon tunnel railways, though perhaps at a greater cost than that of the usual locomotive. I examined the fireless locomotives in use upon the Rueil and Marly-le Roy Railway, near Paris. These engines are run 10 miles, starting with steam at a pressure of fifteen atmospheres, and completing their trips with the steam at two atmospheres pressure. These engines draw a train of 44 tons weight over a street railway with much sharp curvature and high grades, at an average speed of 10 to 15 miles an hour.* The steam is exhausted into the open air, but on the Mekarski Railway in Lille it is condensed as on the locomotives of the London railways. I have examined several electric motors, and have received information in regard to their use in Europe and experimentally in this country. I have examined the cable system in use here, and have accounts of its application elsewhere. For the way trains of the Arcade at moderate speed this system may be applicable. The experiments so far do not show that it can be applied to the fast express trains, although I have devised a plan by which I hope to make it applicable to any desired speed. I am to receive, in a few weeks, the monthly statements of the business done, and the detailed expenses thereof, upon these continental railways, and will then submit a statement of the comparative value of this and of the other proposed systems of motive power, as applicable to the New York Arcade Railway. The decision in regard to the motive power for the Arcade is not necessary at the present time, and it may perhaps be sufficient now to say, that fireless locomotives, with condensers, can be run with nearly as much economy and as complete certainty as the engines of the London railway, and it is altogether probable that the electric motor will be perfected, if the cable system is not, so as to be applicable to the Arcade Railway. I shall submit, soon, a more extended report, in which many additional facts and details will be given; the comparisons embraced herein, however, show that the obstacles which have been overcome on the London railways are of a far more difficult character than any that will be encountered in the construction of the New York railway.

WM. J. MCALPINE, Engineer in Chief.

NEW YORK, January, 1884.

Subjoined is an extract from an elaborate report of the full board of engineers, and gives a resume of the conclusions arrived at in regard to the proposed road. It will be seen that the names undersigned comprise some very eminent engineers:

1. It provides a pleasant, rapid transit for through passengers between the lower and upper ends of the island, and a slower but still speedy movement for the local passengers.

2. It provides a cheap and convenient channel for the conveyance of freight between the termini of the steam railways and a large portion of the business houses in the city.

3. It classifies the travel and trade, and removes from the present street so many of its vehicles as to render it more useful and pleasant for carriages.

4. It furnishes an arcade avenue and promenade convenient for pedestrians at all times, and with special advantages in warm, cold or stormy weather.

5. The sub-way will be well ventilated and lighted, so that its use will be pleasant and healthy.

6. It can be constructed without interruption, either to the travel on the street or the convenient use of the buildings adjacent, and without occupying the street for the hauling of the materials required from or to the work; and it can be built without endangering any of the structures along the street, and with arrangements for a better location of the water and gas-pipes, and sewers, and without any interruption of the present connections.

7. The route selected, namely, that along Broadway, is determined by the topography of the island.

8. It in no case occupies or injures any private property, but in nearly all cases greatly enhances the value of the property along its route.

9. There are no difficulties attending the construction of the work which can not be overcome with engineering skill, and at a comparatively moderate cost.

Finally, it meets a necessity in the most complete and unobjectionable manner.

The following is the text of a letter forwarded by Melville C. Smith, President of the Company, to the owners and lessees of property on Broadway:

THE BROADWAY UNDERGROUND RAILWAY COMPANY.
115 BROADWAY, NEW YORK, February 27, 1884.

Dear Sir—As an owner or lessee of property on Broadway, and therefore deeply interested in whatsoever pertains to its growth and prosperity, the Broadway Underground Railway Company respectfully invites your consideration of the following facts and suggestions:

The New York Tribune of the 8th inst. states: "The total increase in passenger traffic of this city in the last three years has been over 58,000,000. * * * It is clear that to accommodate this enormous growth of travel there must be provided further means of transportation."

Broadway is the only available line of transit now left, as it presents the only unbroken line of street from one extreme of the city to the other. The configuration of the island makes Broadway naturally the great distributing artery of the city, and therefore valuable in proportion, but trade and travel inevitably gravitate where they are invited by the greatest facilities and meet with the fewest obstructions

It cannot have escaped your observation that avenues and cross streets adjacent, with better accommodations for travel, have grown into rivalship with Broadway trade. Is it not, therefore, a reasonable inquiry whether Broadway has not been overnursed, and made the child of ill advised protection? And will not the comparative depreciation of values inevitably continue until a wiser policy shall extend to it the progressive developments of the age, and restore to Broadway the prestige due to its natural position and advantages. Broadway being the backbone of the island, it was certain from the first that some means of rapid transit, perfect or imperfect, complete or incomplete, would of necessity some day appropriate this central thoroughfare, and that the question would constantly be forced upon your attention, until through an inexorable public demand the street would in some manner be occupied. As a result, after years of contest and controversy, a charter was granted authorizing the construction of a tunnel road under Broadway. As a tunnel with two tracks would in the main accommodate only through travel, the obstructions and gorging of Broadway would continue to increase, and perhaps the street be delivered over to horse railroads which, without affording any perceptible relief, would still further blockade the street; possibly to a cable road, which with little, if any increased capacity, would necessarily cause additional danger to life and property by vehicles being thus propelled through a crowded thoroughfare.

The tunnel road now authorized by law, and which, if other provisions are not made will assuredly be built, would mainly serve the business interests at the lower end of the island, and the far off residences at the upper extreme, and thus Broadway would be largely given over, not to say sacrificed, to drays, carts and other obstructive vehicles, which now gorge its surface and to lightning trains underneath; and neither this kind of travel on the upper street, nor the tunnel below, used to whisk people to and from Westchester County, would contribute in any material degree to the value of Broadway property.

The Arcade Railway, on the contrary, as shown in the documents herewith submitted, would duplicate Broadway, with a sub-surface street well lighted and ventilated; would change the dark cellars into basement stores, fronting on pleasant sidewalks; would provide vaults, ample and accessible for all pipes and wires, thus avoiding the necessity of tearing up the street; would have four tracks, two for way, and two for through travel, and during the night, two of these tracks may be devoted exclusively to freight and express, which could be conveniently distributed anywhere along the route. Thus the Arcade would add immeasurably, to the capacity of Broadway. It would give property owners a new line of stores on each side of the basement street; more than double the sidewalk space for pedestrians; furnish rapid transit, provide the cheapest and most complete accommodation possible for way travel, and for transportation of freight and express, and by thus removing all obstructive vehicles from the upper street systematizing the travel, and by the application of a motive power, vastly more effective than can be used on the surface street, would not only more than treble the capacity of Broadway in all the essential elements which make a street useful and adjacent property valuable, but would forever remove all claim or necessity for any railroad on or above the street surface. As stated in a recent number of THE REAL ESTATE RECORD AND GUIDE, "The Arcade will be one of the wonders of the world; it will make Broadway property more valuable than Wall street is to-day." In the language of a board of eminent engineers, "What the Erie Canal was to the Empire State, what the Pacific Railway will be to the Continent, what the Atlantic cable is to the world, great necessities of modern civilization, such will be the Arcade Railway to the city of New York. And when it shall have been completed and thronged through all the hours of day and night, instead of being regarded as singular in conception and a wonder in execution, the only marvel will be, why it was not done before."

This company has the undisputed right by special charter, confirmed by the Legislature of 1881, to build a tunnel road under Broadway; its bond required by law has been accepted by the city, and we are prepared and shall construct the tunnel road, as authorized, unless the present Legislature in its wisdom shall substitute the far better plan of the Arcade. Permit us to say, that we fully appreciate all the advantages of Broadway, and desire to respect to the uttermost all reasonable wishes and claims of property-owners and parties interested; but from a careful and exhaustive investigation and consideration of the facts, we feel justified in saying that the adoption of the Arcade plan is the only way by which the full capacity of this peerless avenue can be utilized, its beauty enhanced, values increased, and the interests of owners and occupants promoted. The Arcade will also in a larger way, by its capacity and completeness, fully serve an imperative public need, and by forming a continuous connection with the railway system of the entire country, furnish an unbroken line to the sea for the accommodation of trade and travel.

The cost of the tunnel road will be much less than the Arcade, and perhaps for a term of years would yield a higher rate of interest on the cost of construction, but being far less desirable in character, and believing that it will be entirely inadequate for the growing needs of the city, and that the Arcade will prove, finally, the better investment, we are not only willing, but desire, to construct this more expensive and perfect work. Therefore, in the interest of the public, of the city, of Broadway, and yourself, we ask your careful examination of the reports of engineers and the documents herewith enclosed, feeling confident that with a full understanding we shall have your support and co-operation in the great work we desire to accomplish.

We have at these offices full and accurate maps, drawings, &c., of the underground structures of London and Paris, as well as those of this city; also of detailed plans of the tunnel road, and of the Arcade, as designed for Broadway, and extend to you a cordial invitation to call, when we will gladly give you the fullest information. Respectfully yours,

MELVILLE C. SMITH, President.

ALBANY, February 28.

The bills to facilitate and reduce the expense of the transfer of real estate in New York and elsewhere, devised by Dwight H. Olmstead, have been introduced in both houses. There are two bills. One provides for the appointment of a commission to report a bill to the next Legislature for carrying into effect a plan to lessen the expense in the transfer of lands in cities, and the other bill provides a mode to facilitate and reduce the expense in other parts of the State of such transfers. What action will be taken on them is as yet uncertain.

The measure for the extension of the time of the Rapid Transit Commission appointed in the interest of the National Cable Motive Power Company still continues to be the cause of considerable contention. The Senate library was well filled with prominent people from New York at the hearing before the judiciary committee yesterday on the bill. Among the advocates of the measure were property holders from Carmansville, Lawson Fuller, Chas. P. Shaw, Finley Anderson, Alex Williams, C. H. Roosevelt and others. The arguments of all were as to the necessity for more means of travel in the city to meet its growing wants, also demonstrating how the growth of New York has been retarded by the lack of such facilities. Among the opponents of the bill present was a delegation of property-holders in Twenty-second street, who could not see the necessity for encumbering that street with railroad tracks when there was already a road in Twenty-third street. Henry H. Anderson, Col. Wingate, Francis Lynd Stetson and Jacob Sharpe spoke in opposition to the bill. They could not see why an extension of time was necessary when the commission had already laid down its routes. The advocates of the bill stated that they wanted the extension in order to revise its route. There is a conflict between the advocates of this measure and those supporting the bill to provide a mode for constructing general street railroads.

The bill relative to the construction of street railroads, also that to enlarge the power of the Broadway Underground Railroad Company, will be argued before the committee next week. The latter bill appears to be meeting with more favor than was at first anticipated. The fact that New York is destined to be one of the largest cities in the world is dawning upon the Legislature, and that the only thing that will retard its growth will be the lack of transit facilities. The plan proposed by the promoters of the Broadway Underground Arcade plan appears to furnish a permanent mode of travel and accommodation for a larger population than any other yet proposed. At the same time it is more convenient and does not obstruct the streets, and is ornamental as well as useful.

The Assembly Committee has reported the bill to enlarge the Gansevoort Market by adding another block of ground to it. This is the bill that has already passed the Senate.

The Roosevelt bill for concentrating power in the hands of the Mayor has been reported in the Senate, and its consideration made a special order for next week (Wednesday).

The Building Law bill has not made any progress in the committee. The time of the Senate Committee has been so much taken up in the political investigation of the Public Works Department that it has not had time to consider such practical measures as the building law.

A bill has been reported in the Assembly directing the Department of Parks to take from the files the maps showing the streets and avenues in the Twenty-third Ward, and prepare a new map of such portion as may be necessary to show a change of the width of Mott avenue and the location of the westerly line of said avenue, so that the westerly side shall be the same as now exists from the centre of One Hundred and Forty-sixth street to the intersection of Mott avenue with the road-side of the Harlem Railroad, with the width of 50 feet, instead of being widened by the addition of a strip of land 10 feet wide on the westerly side thereof, as shown and laid down on the map now on file. And that the line of Mott avenue between One Hundred and Forty-ninth and One Hundred and Forty-sixth streets shall be changed so that the width of the avenue at One Hundred and Forty-ninth street shall continue to be 60 feet and at One Hundred and Forty-sixth street shall be 50 feet, and the lines of the avenue from One Hundred and Forty-sixth to One Hundred and Forty-ninth streets shall extend in straight lines between those two streets.

The bill authorizing the enlargement of the Forty-second street railroad depot, by adding 80 feet on the east side, and the opening of a new street from Forty-second to Forty-fifth street, 60 feet wide, on the east side of the extended building, is now before both houses. There is an important question behind this in which is involved the question as to who will be responsible for the loss of life liable to occur by collisions in the shifting of trains at the depot. The number of trains arriving and departing at that depot in the early part of the day and in the afternoon are so great that frequent delays occur to incoming trains, on account of inability to provide a clear track to enter the depot. Each train as it arrives has to be pulled out the moment that the passengers alight, and in drawing the train out it has to cross tracks of both incoming and outgoing trains. A breaking of a wheel, or the jumping of the track by a car in the crossing of switches, is liable to bring about a collision with some passing train and a loss of life. The District Attorney's office has taken notice of this change and notifies the railroad companies that if a collision and loss of life takes place from such causes the officers will be indicted and promptly punished for manslaughter. This notice is the sequel to the collision in the tunnel where several lives were lost and which cost the Harlem road a half a million in damages. Superintendent Toucey has taken legal advice and found that he could be held and punished if such accidents took place from the causes referred to at the depot. He therefore devised a plan for the enlargement of the depots for the accommodation of more trains so as to obviate the necessity of constantly hauling out the empty cars during the busy hours in the morning. He submitted that plan to the Harlem Railroad directors, informing them of the necessity. They did not wish to go to the expense, but he informed them of the notice from the District Attorney's office and the responsibility for the accidents under the present limited accommodations, setting forth that if they refused to make the enlargement he should take steps necessary to relieve himself of the responsibility of the accident and place it on the shoulders of the directors. Seeing that they might be held for manslaughter the directors decided upon the enlargement of the depot and had a bill prepared to enable them to carry out the plans. That bill is now before the Legislature, and the question has already been raised as to whether the members of the Legislature will not be responsible for loss of life if they refuse to give the company the authority to make the changes required to avoid accidents.

The growth of New York makes the enlargement of facilities for traveling to all points necessary. Depots and railroads sufficient to accommodate all ten years ago are inadequate for to-day, and will be more inadequate for the wants of the public as each year rolls around. A broader gauge of improvements and a more comprehensive system is needed for the present day than any that has existed heretofore. New York is yet in its infancy, and its growth can be retarded by failing to recognize the wants of the public or facilitated by recognizing their wants in arranging for local travel as well as for the myriads pouring in from outside.

Real Estate Department.

At length we are enabled to report an improved and improving market for real estate. The attendance at the salesroom has been unusually large and the prices for property at all desirable have been bid up beyond the expectations of the auctioneers and their clients. The few foreclosure sales were the property of speculating builders who could not fulfill their contracts. This will be true of the foreclosure sales for the next few weeks. One of the most hopeful features of the market is the falling off of foreclosure suits and the decrease of the foreclosure sales. This shows that but few property-holders are embarrassed, and that shrewd money-lending institutions have confidence in the future of realty. Brokers all report better business than they had expected, and many large transactions are taking place. The number of fine buildings projected is also a surprise to the building trade, which expected a large falling off from last year. The outlook for a good spring business is excellent.

Our advertising columns this week show that all the active dealers have large blocks of property for sale.

On Tuesday, March 4th, Mr. Richard V. Harnett will sell, by order of the executors, the four-story brick house No. 142 East Sixteenth street, and on Wednesday, March 5, the very desirable business property No. 896 Third avenue.

Richard V. Harnett will sell on Wednesday, March 5, under a trustee's order, some twenty lots on Seventh avenue, One Hundred and Twenty-eighth, One Hundred and Twenty-ninth and One Hundred and Thirtieth streets. This property is situated on the most growing part of the famous "quadrilateral." The soil hereabout is sandy, malaria being unknown, and this whole region is destined to be a very popular ground for builders. This is why far-sighted capitalists like John H. Sherwood own so much property on the flat, sandy ground north of Central Park.

On Thursday, March 6th, Richard V. Harnett will sell the brick house and lot No. 43 Bleecker street, and the four-story house No. 44 Tompkins street.

John F. B. Smyth will sell on March 12th three parcels of property, one of which is on the northeast corner of Broadway and Forty-ninth street.

E. H. Ludlow & Co. will sell on Thursday, the 13th inst., the very desirable house and lot No. 7 East Thirty-eighth street. This house is 37.6 feet front and its west party wall is 62.5 deep, and the total depth is about 90 feet. The lot is 197.6 feet in depth, which gives it a fine open rear. The house is a complete and elegant one, finished in hardwood and handsomely decorated. This location is on the very brow of Murray Hill, and is one of the most desirable residences in New York.

William Noble, the well-known builder, advertises—for sale, to let, or exchange—the handsome private houses, Nos. 16, 18 and 20 East Seventy-sixth street, the "Orienta" on East Seventy-second street, several tenements on West Sixty-ninth street, and a finely-located lot on the southeast corner of Fifth avenue and Eighty-fifth street.

The alterations of the Stewart building on Broadway, Chambers and Reade streets are complete and the buildingis now open for the inspection of those who desire first-class and reasonably cheap offices. The changes effected have been radical and very thorough, and it is practically a new and fire-proof edifice. The rooms are well lighted and excellently ventilated. It is a pity that this finely located building was not secured by the city government for the different departments which are now scattered about in the neighborhood of City Hall Park.

Attention is called to the well designed advertisement of Mr. Cyrille Carreau, who has sixteen full lots to sell on One Hundred and One Hundred and First streets, between Eighth and New avenues. This is a growing part of New York and right in the line of improvement. Anyone who purchases them at a reasonable figure will double his money in five years' time. Dealers who wish to advertise lots would do well to try Mr. Carreau's form of giving them publicity.

E. H. Ludlow & Co. offer to rent a number of first-class offices in the Duncan building, corner of Pine and William streets, and offices in other desirable down-town buildings.

Isaac Honig advertises for investment well-located store property on Broadway, Church, Grand and other good streets.

The Dock Commissioners recently received an opinion from Corporation Counsel Andrews, in which he says the Dock Commissioners may authorize the construction of piers and bulkheads, in accordance with the Park Commissioner's lines, anywhere above Third avenue, on the Harlem River, either on land belonging to the city or to private individuals. Below Third avenue they have power to construct piers and bulkheads within the Harbor Commissioner's lines, where they do not interfere with vested private rights.

The transfers for the week are fewer in number than for the similar week last year, but the amount involved is larger, and the mortgage indebtedness created less. Here is the table:

Gossip of the Week.

Messrs. E. H. Ludlow & Co. have sold the five-story English basement stone front dwelling, No. 29 East Thirty-eighth street, 16x60x98.9, for $37,500 to Elliott Roosevelt and the four-story stone (35 feet) front dwelling with stable on rear and with right of way to Fifteenth street, for the Strecker estate for $45,000.

Messrs. A. H. Muller & Son have sold the five-story brick store and office building on the southwest corner of Water and Pine street, 39.6x39.7 x39.11x47.1, which Mr. Woodbury recently purchased at auction for $54,250, at an advance.

Messrs. R. V. Harnett & Co. have sold three lots on the west side of Ninth avenue, commencing 25 feet north of Seventy-second street, to Wm. Lalor, for $24,000.

Frank R. Houghton has sold to William Henderson the block of ground, with the large building thereon, bounded by Third and Lexington avenues and One Hundredth and One Hundred and First streets, comprising about thirty-seven full lots, the price being stated at $400,000. An extensive improvement will be made on the site, as announced in our "Out Among the Builders."

One hundred and ten lots have just been purchased on the Harlem River and One Hundred and Thirty-eighth street, largely water front, and will be improved as announced in another column.

Elsworth L. Striker has sold to Morris Steinhardt six lots on the north side of Fifty-second street, commencing 425 feet west of Ninth avenue, size 75x200.10, for improvement.

Ex-Coroner Brady has purchased from the Edgar Ketchum estate the three-story and basement brick and brown stone private dwelling, No. 321 East One Hundred and Twenty-fourth street, 18.9x45x100, for $11,000.

The four-story building, No. 20 West Fourteenth street, 25x206, running through to Thirteenth street, has been leased to W. Jennings Demorest for twenty-one years, with the privilege of purchase at any time during that period, and with the option of renewal for an additional twenty-one years after the first term has expired; agents, Alden & Sterne.

Geo. W. Hamilton is reported to have purchased four lots for improvement on the south side of Seventy-first street, between Ninth and Tenth avenues, adjoining the five private houses built by him.

F. Zittel has sold for Charles E. Orvis the four-story and basement private dwelling (Beekman leasehold), No. 836 Lexington avenue, 20x50x80, to T. W. Decker, for $14,000.

W. De F. Manice has sold the four lots with brick and frame houses thereon, on the north side of Thirty-ninth street, commencing 100 feet west of Sixth avenue, and known as Nos. 107 to 115 West Thirty-ninth street, 100x98.9, to President J. D. Fish, of the Marine Bank, for $122,000, for improvement.

J. L. Parker has sold the freestone house, No. 251 East Sixty-second street, 17.6x50.5, to Joseph Friend, for $10,000, and a similar house, No. 127 East Sixty-second street, to Max Fisher, for $17,500.

Messrs. Dye & Castree have sold for Charles Batchelor the four-story brown stone front dwelling, No. 106 West One Hundred and Twenty-sixth street, for $29,400.

L. Froehlich has sold for E. Blumenthal the four-story brown stone front dwelling, No. 208 East Sixty-first street, 17x50x100, for $16,500, and for P. Sutro the three-story brown stone front dwelling, No. 144 East Sixty-fifth street, 20x50x100, for $17,000.

John J. Clancy has sold the entire front on the west side of Tenth avenue, between Seventy-fifth and Seventy-sixth streets, 204.4x100. We hear the price is $40,000, and the purchaser Samuel Colcord.

D. S. McElroy has sold the three-story stone front dwelling, No. 154 East Thirty-eighth street, 22x98.9, for $20,000 to Stephen Murphy.

S. M. Brown has sold two three-story stone front dwellings, Nos. 2093 and 2095 Madison avenue, each 20x50x85, for $30,000 to E. S. Boehn.

Charles Harft has sold the four-story flat No. 323 East Thirteenth street, 23x60x103.3, for Louis Spitzer to Robert Spink for $22,500.

James R. Waterlow has sold the tenement houses Nos. 278 and 280 West Sixtieth street, each 25x65x100, for $22,000; and a frame house with stores, size about 46x51, on the Shore road, West New Brighton, Staten Island, with water privilege, for $5,500.

Mr. Lincoln has sold a plot on the north side of One Hundred and Fourth street, commencing 100 feet east of Third avenue, size 160x100.11, for $28,000. These lots will be improved at an early date.

M. Steinhardt has sold three lots on the south side of Sixty-fifth street, about 300 feet east of Third avenue, for $22,000, to Hollister & Friedline, for improvement.

W. H. Streeter has sold the four-story stone front dwelling, No. 50 West Nineteenth street, which he purchased from the Mathews estate, to A. J. Bastine, of 41 Warren street, and the four-story brick dwelling, No. 158 East Twenty-second street, to Isaac J. Maccabe. Mr. Streeter has purchased, from Wm. Arras, the four-story stone front dwelling, No. 203 West Thirty-eighth street. The house will be put in good order to resell.

Samuel Colcord has sold the four-story high stoop brown stone house, No. 450 West Seventy-ninth street, 20x102.2, to A. H. Donaldson of 121 East Seventieth street.

Messrs. Riker & Son have sold the four-story and basement brown stone house No. 448 West Seventy-ninth street, 22x102.2, for Samuel Colcord to William Allan, for $25,000

G. A. Canis has sold, for the Manhattan Savings Institution, six four-story brick stores and tenements, 25x75x100, on the east side of Second avenue, between One Hundred and Twelfth and One Hundred and Thirteenth streets, including the corner houses, to Isidor Korn, for $72,500, and four four-story brick tenements and stores, on the southwest corner of Second avenue and One Hundred and Fourteenth street, 25x75x100, to Christian Blinn, for $47,700.

The four-story brick store building No. 56 Lispenard street, 25x92, which rents for $3,800 per annum, has been sold for $44,000 to Samuel Inslee, of No. 410 Broadway.

Sumner has sold the two-story frame dwelling, No. 515 Lorimer street, 25x100, to Patrick Lyon, for $2,350; the three-story frame dwelling, No. 582 Leonard street, 25x100, to Ralph Clark, for $4,800; the three-story brown stone dwelling, No. 160 Keap street, 17x100, to A. H. Brummel, for $8,750; the plot, 100x100, on the northeast corner of Fifth and South Fifth streets, occupied by the First Baptist Church, for a little less than $30,000; the two-story and basement brick dwelling, No. 51 Penn street, 18x80, to Mr. Hessen, for $4,750; the three-story brick dwelling, No. 207 Rodney street, 20x100, to John Shea, for $8,250; the two-and-one-half story frame dwelling, No. 117 South Fourth street, 25x100, to George Terrill, for $5,500.

P. Concannon has sold the two-story and basement brown stone dwelling, 19.3x40x80, on the south side of Van Buren street, about 20 feet west of Sumner avenue, for $6,500.

Paul C. Grening has sold a lot on the east side of Spencer street, 180 feet south of Willoughby avenue, 25x100, to R. Halrahan, for $950; also a two-and-one-half-story brown stone dwelling, No. 511 Greene avenue, 16.8x42x100, to S. H. Moore, for $5,000; a new two-and-one-half-story brick dwelling, No. 363 Tompkins avenue, 20x45x80, to R. Phillips, for $7,250; a two-story brick dwelling, No. 783 Greene avenue, 20x40x100, to R. Fitzmaurice, for $4,700; a three-story frame dwelling, No. 134 Quincy street, 22x34x100, to H. Trump, for $4,200; and a similar dwelling, No. 224 Halsey street, 20x38x100, to same purchaser, for $4,300; also a three-story brick store and dwelling with extension, No. 413 Throop avenue, 20x50x100, to M. Mangels, for $850.

W. F. Corwith has sold for H. Crosby the three-story dwelling and store, No. 147 Manhattan avenue, to Edward Curney, for $6,000.

Th. Engelhardt has sold the three-story frame dwelling on the southeast side of Fayette street, 100 northeast of Broadway, 25x55x100, to Herman Schinauer, for $5,800.

Out Among the Builders.

The erection of an immense office building is in contemplation opposite Bowling Green. It is to be at Nos. 5, 7, 9 and 11 Broadway, running through to Greenwich street. It will have a frontage of 162 feet on both streets and a depth of 200, and will occupy twelve full lots. It is intended to make the building fire-proof throughout, and at least seven stories in height. This important improvement will be undertaken by Charles H. Bliss and several other capitalists, who anticipate an expenditure of about $1,000,000. The building will of course be of a first-class character, and will hardly be surpassed by such structures as the Mills and Mutual Life Buildings. No architect has as yet been selected.

One of the largest improvements ever undertaken in Harlem is about to be commenced, covering the entire block bounded by Third avenue and Lexington on the one hand and One Hundredth and One Hundred and First streets on the other. A large old structure at present occupies part of the plot, situated on a high elevation somewhat difficult of access. This is to be torn down and the ground partially graded, and on the site will be erected about thirty-five three-story brown stone private houses, averaging 18x45 each, containing modern improvements, and embracing several novel features. In the centre of these houses there will be a large open court with dressed grounds, in the centre of which will be placed an ornamental fountain playing with water. The houses are intended for private families of moderate means. In addition to the above, eight first-class apartment houses with stores will be erected, fronting on the west side of Third avenue, and two others adjoining, one on One Hundredth and one on One Hundred and First street, the two latter being 25x84 each, and the former 25x60 each, with the exception of those on the corner, which will be 27x73. The owner is William Henderson, Mr. Quayle W. Hawkes having entire control and management of the property, with power of attorney from the former. The architect selected is John C. Burne, who will draw all the plans for the buildings and the laying out of the grounds. The cost of this important improvement is estimated at from $500,000 to $550,000, which, with the ground, makes the total cost under $1,000,000.

The Trinity Church Corporation intend to erect a large warehouse on Vestry street, running through to Desbrosses, to be seven stories in height, with the fronts of brick, stone and iron. It will contain two fire-proof staircases, one passenger and one freight elevator, and steam heating. The size of the building will be 75x125, and the cost about $150,000. This structure is in connection with the one built adjoining last year, and is a continuation of the plan adopted by the above corporation to build up the entire block with similar structures. The architect, C. C. Haight, is now engaged on the plans.

Chas. Buek & Co. will shortly commence the erection of seven first-class four-story and basement brick and stone residences on the plot recently purchased by them on the northeast corner of Madison avenue and Sixty-fifth street, size 100x125. Four will front on the avenue and three on the street, the dimensions of the former being 33x50, 23x55, 27x50 and 18.6x75 respectively, and of the latter, 24x56, 21x56 and 17x60. They will contain all the modern improvements, and be somewhat similar in character to the fine block of dwellings built by the same firm on Madison avenue and Sixty-first street. Each house will be of different design and receive the personal supervision of the owners, whose long experience and capacity are well known. The cost of this important improvement is estimated at about $225,000.

Hugo Kafka & Company are the architects for a flat and three stores to be erected by the Cary estate on the northwest corner of Hudson and Beach streets. They have also the plans for two five-story brick and stone flats and stores, to be erected on the north side of Manhattan street, between Broadway and Tenth avenue, 25x85 each, for M. Eisner, at a cost of $40,000; and they are also preparing sketches for an extension and alterations to the four-story and basement house, No. 148 East Fifty-third street, to be 20x50, and extension 16x30, for George Reinl.

Richard Berger has the plans in hand for a five-story basement and cellar store and loft building, 25x100, to be erected at No. 105 Worth street, between Broadway and Elm street, for Clinton Ogilvie. The front will be of brick, stone and iron, and the cost about $36,000. The two-story brick building now on the site will be torn down after May 1 next to make way for the new structure. The same architect has the sketches for a five-story brick and brown stone flat, 25x80, to be built on the southwest corner of Tenth avenue and One Hundredth street, for S. M. Milliken, at a cost of about $20,000.

W. Jennings Demorest intends to tear down the three-story and basement brown stone private dwelling at No. 42 West Twenty-third street after May 1st next, and to erect on the site a handsome five-story iron front building, 23x100, to be used for stores and offices, at a cost of from $25,000 to $30,000.

Mr. John H. Sherwood is about to erect a new home for artists and artisans at No. 3 North Washington square. The building fronting the square is to be altered so as to make a four-story structure on a lot 28x64. In the rear, with an entrance on the alley way, an entirely new house is to be erected, 28x100. This building will be five stories high. Mr. Sherwood says he could fill such a house at once with painters, sculptors, architects, decorators, engravers and artists and artisans of all kinds who need lightsome and comfortable apartments. Mr. Sherwood has also plans under consideration for greatly improving the region north of Central Park. If his health permits he will probably construct twenty houses on eighteen full lots.

Ten five-story brown stone flats are to be built on eight lots on the west side of Tenth avenue, covering the entire block from Seventy-fifth to Seventy-sixth street. They will occupy a frontage of 202 feet on the avenue, and be about 20x75 each, and have a fine store on each corner.

The plot owned by Morris Steinhardt on the north side of Fifty-second street, running through to Fifty-third street, and having a frontage of 75 feet on each street, with a total depth of 200.10 feet, is about to be improved by the erection of a number of five-story brick tenements. There are six lots in all. The frame dwellings now on the site will shortly be torn down.

The well-known "Knickerbocker" flats on the southwest corner of Fifth avenue and Fourteenth street will shortly be converted into six store buildings, having a frontage of 207 feet on Fourteenth street and 43 feet on Fifth avenue. There will be three stores on either side of the entrance, which will be on Fourteenth street. The sidewalks, which are 30 feet wide on both avenue and street, are to be excavated, and the space thus added to the basement stores utilized for first-class establishments for the sale of all kinds of staple goods. The upper portion of the new structure will be arranged as handsome studios and offices, and suites of rooms for business purposes. There will be elegant plate-glass windows for the stores, while the interior will be in hardwoods, and contain passenger and freight elevators, steam heating, and all modern improvements. It is stated that a project is on foot to establish a bank, to occupy the corner store. The improvement is being made by W. Jennings Demorest and J. J. Little, both of whom are large holders of property on Fourteenth street. The architect selected is W. H. Hume. A preliminary announcement of this extensive alteration appeared in our issue of the 16th ult. The cost will be from $50,000 to $60,000

Charles Graham & Sons are about to commence extensive alterations to the eight four-story brick dwellings, 25x50 each, on the west side of Third avenue, covering the block from Forty-fifth to Forty-sixth street. They will be remodeled into first-class flats, with three families in each house, and be extended to a depth of 80 feet. They will all receive new plumbing as well as other modern improvements. Each house will contain a store on the first story. The numbers of the present buildings run from 720 to 732 Third avenue. The owner, Thomas B. Gilford, will spend about $65,000 in this improvement. Messrs. Graham & Sons will be both architects and builders.

J. B. McIntyre has the plans under way for four five-story brick and brown stone flats to be erected on the east side of Third avenue, commencing 25.2 feet north of Eighty-eighth street. Three will be 25x63 each, and one 25x52, each containing a store on the first floor. The cost to the owner, George W. Gray, will be about $50,000. The same architect has the sketches for extensive alterations and additions, including elevator, to the building Nos. 72 and 74 Walker street, for Butler, Matheson & Co., to cost about $15,000.

O'Reilly Bros. intend to make several alterations and additions to their four-story brick factory at Nos. 204 and 206 East Forty-third street, 50x100.5, to cost about $10.000.

A. B. Ogden has the plans under way for six five-story brown stone improved flats, to be erected on the southwest corner of First avenue and Sixty-fifth street, running south on the avenue 155.5 feet from the corner. Three will be 25x74, two 25x83 and one, that on the corner, 25.5x83. They will all have stores and will front on the avenue. The cost to the owner, John C. Umberfield, will be about $108,000. The plans for these flats have been highly commended by the Health and Building Departments. This improvement as in addition to the five houses fronting on Sixty-fifth street, recently reported in this column.

One hundred and ten lots on One Hundred and Thirty-eighth street, fronting on the Harlem River, at Madison avenue bridge, will be shortly improved by parties whose names will later transpire. They will dock out, fill in and improve the entire tract, part of which is water front, and also grade the lots. The purchasers will use the ground for purposes of business mainly, and in the first instance will spend not more than $60,000 in the improvements.

Jonn Brandt has the plans in hand for six five-story brick and stone apartment houses, 27x84 each, to be erected for John J. Macdonald on the south side of Ninety-sixth street, commencing 88 feet west of Third avenue, the cost of which will be about $100,000. They will adjoin the houses reported in this column on the 16th ult. Mr. Brandt is also the architect for the two fine four-story and basement brown stone dwellings, each 25x75 and extension, to be erected for Philip Braender, as announced in our last issue. They will have all the modern improvements, the interior being in hardwood, and will cost about $50,000.

Lamb & Rich are preparing the sketches for six handsome three-story and attic brick and brown stone private houses, averaging 28x36 each, to be erected on the east side of Madison avenue, between Seventy-sixth and Seventy-seventh streets.

Moritz Bauer intends to erect a first-class four-story and basement brown stone private dwelling, 18x55.6, at No. 164 East Seventy-first street. The interior will be in cabinet trim, and the house will have all the modern improvements. Cost, about $20,000. The architects, Hugo Kafka & Co., are engaged on the plans.

M. Louis Ungrich has the sketches for a six-story brick and stone building, 25x85, to be erected on the north side of Fortieth street, 125 feet west of Eighth avenue, to be used as a hardware factory for Oulbert Brothers, the cost of which will be about $22,000. The same architect has the plans in hand for a five-story brick and stone improved tenement, to be built on the south side of Forty-second street, 182 feet west of Tenth avenue, for Peter Wagner, at a cost of about $24,000.

James D. Fish, president of the Marine Bank, intends to erect two five-story brick and stone apartment houses of a first-class character, each having a frontage of 75 feet, on the north side of Thirty-ninth street, commencing 100 feet west of Sixth avenue, and comprising Nos. 107 to 115 West Thirty-ninth street, adjoining the apartment house now owned by him. The five two-story brick and frame buildings now on the site will shortly be demolished to make way for the new structures.

Thom & Wilson are the architects for the following houses: A five-story brick and brown stone flat, 50x76, to be erected on the southeast corner of Fourth avenue and Eighty-eighth street, containing all the modern improvements, for J. Bookman, to cost about $40,000; a five-story improved brown stone flat, 25x75, to be built on the north side of Thirty-first street, 100 feet west of Seventh avenue, for J. W. Silleck, at a cost of $25,000; and a five-story brown stone flat, 25x87, to be erected on the east side of Tenth avenue, between Thirty-seventh and Thirty-eighth streets, for J. F. Bauer, at a cost of about $22,000.

Julius Kastner has the plans under way for a five-story brick and brown stone flat and store, 25x76, to be erected on the northwest corner of Ninth avenue and Fifty-first street for Miss Letzeiser, at a cost of $18,000; and for a five-story brick and stone tenement and store, 25x80, to be built at No. 1497 Third avenue, for Charles Moeller, to cost $16,000.

Geo. W. Hamilton will, it is said, erect five first-class four-story and basement brown stone private dwellings on four lots on the south side of Seventy-first street, west of Ninth avenue, and west of the houses built by him on the same street, which they will adjoin, and to which they will be similar in general design.

Messrs. Hollister & Friedline will commence work on Monday on three first-class five-story improved tenements, which they will erect on the south side of Sixty-fifth street, about 300 feet east of Third avenue; cost, each, about $17,000.

F. W. Klemt has prepared plans for a first-class brick and Dorchester stone front flat, to be erected at No. 331 Ninth street, by John W. Theisz, at a cost of about $13,000. Mr. Klemt also has plans for a similar flat to be erected at No. 315 West Sixteenth street, by James O'Donnell; cost, $9,500.

Messrs. D. & J. Jardine have the plans for a five-story Philadelphia brick and heavy stone-trimmed flat, 50.11x95 feet, to be erected on the southwest corner of Boulevard and Ninety-ninth street, for M. Bergman, at a cost of about $75,000.

Messrs. Maclay & Davies have determined instead of altering as heretofore announced, the property on the northeast corner of Bleecker street and Shinbone alley to pull down the old building thereon and erect in its stead a five-story brick store structure, 75x75, at an outlay of $40,000.

J. H. Valentine has the designs under way for four five-story brick flat houses, 25x82x100, to be erected on the north side of One Hundred and Twenty-fourth street, 325 feet west of Seventh avenue. The owner, John McCormick, expects to expend over $70,000 on their construction. The same architect has the plans for a five-story brick and stone tenement and store, 25x85, to be built on the west side of Second avenue, 50 feet north of One Hundred and Tenth street; J. O'Hare, builder.

D. T. Atwood is preparing the sketches for a large first-class four-story and basement brick and frame hotel, 200x175, to be erected at Hinsdale City, L. I. The structure will be built by the Hinsdale Improvement Company, at a cost of about $100,000.

Messrs. Cleverdon & Putzel are the architects for a two-story brick extension, 28.4x45, to be added to Mr. J. B. Smith's factory, No. 176 East One Hundred and Sixteenth street.

The Mercantile Exchange has decided to erect a building at Nos. 87, 89 and 91 Hudson street, corner of Harrison street, 75x100. Plans are now being prepared, and it is expected that excavations will be commenced on May 1.

The syndicate which was to have built the little box of a house in Twenty-seventh street opposite the Victoria, and which was originally intended for James Barton, and was to have been called the Vaudeville, has abandoned that project. The title to the proposed site could not be perfected, and the $100,000 subscribed for the project was returned to the ten gentlemen who subscribed it.

Brooklyn.

Parfitt Bros. have the plans for seven four-story brick stores and flats with stone trimmings, each 29x66, to be erected on Third avenue, between Baltic and Butler streets, at a cost of $15,000 each; owner, George Beach.

E. F. Gaylor has plans for a three-story frame flat, 20x46, on Ivy street, 80 north of Broadway, for Henry Immen, at a cost of $4,000; a two-story brick dwelling, with three-story in the rear, 20x40, on the south side of Penn street, 150 east of Bedford avenue, for J. W. Andariese, at a cost of about $4,500; a six-story brick extension, 25x102, for tinware factory, to be erected on the north side of South Ninth street, between First and Second streets, at a cost of about $6,000, for William Vogel; a three-story frame tenement, 25x45, to be erected at No. 245 Ainslie street, for William Nelson, at a cost of about $3,500; a three-story frame factory, 25x100, to be erected on the northwest corner of Fifth and North Fifth streets, for James Bulger, Jr., at a cost of about $3,500; a two-story and basement brown stone wing with bay windows, 15x22, to No. 99 Keap street, for Geo. F. Simpson; cost, about $2,000; and a four-story brick store and dwelling, 25x55, on the northeast corner of Grand and Olive streets, for Mr. Bernard Gallagher, at a cost of $7,000.

The Board of Aldermen have granted the owners of No. 683 Hancock street permission to erect frame extension to present dwelling, and to Jacob Klinck to raise building No. 9 Hoyt street 4 feet 9 inches.

Th. Engelhardt is preparing plans for a three-story brick store and flat, 25x65, to be erected on the northeast side of Broadway, between Yates place and Flushing avenue, for Nathan Levy; cost, $9,500; also a three-story double frame store and tenement, 25x55, to be erected on No. 58 Cook street, for John C. Schneider; cost, $4,500; and a two-story frame extension, 15x25, to No. 79 Cook street, for Bernard Leddy; cost, $500.

H. Vollweiler & Co. are drawing the preliminary sketches for three three-story frame stores and tenements, to be erected on the north side of Stockton street, 175 feet east of Sumner avenue, and five three-story frame stores and tenements on the south side of Stockton street, 225 feet east of Sumner avenue, for Messrs. Hartman & Grau, at a cost of $4,800 each. A three story brick double tenement, 25x52, at No. 203 Greene street, for Mr. Ehrenhardt; cost, $6,000. A three-story frame tenement, 30x50, at No. 1003 Flushing avenue, for George Kesselring, at a cost of $5,800. A three-story frame tenement, 25x50, on Magnolia street, near Central avenue, for Carl Reeck; cost, $4,800; also a two-story brick addition, 22x48, to corner of North Sixth and Fifth streets, for Owen Rudden; cost, $3,600.

R. B. Eastman has the designs for twenty one-and-one-half and two-story and attic frame cottages, each about 29x44, to be erected at Jamaica, L. I., at a cost of $2,800 each, for Austin Corbin and J. R. and H. W. Maxwell.

Mr. Liniken will erect five two-story and basement brown stone dwellings, each about 20x45, on the south side of Hancock street, between Tompkins and Throop avenues.

A meeting to discuss several amendments to the proposed building law now at Albany was held at the Grand Union Hotel on Wednesday evening last, Charles Buek in the chair. The associations represented were the Real Estate Owners' and Builders' and the Central Taxpayers' Associations, the Mechanics' and Traders' Exchange and the Madison Exchange Club. Resolutions were passed and agreed upon, requiring amendments to the effect that a board shall be elected in connection with the Fire Department, composed of six experts, to whom architects, builders and others shall have the right of appeal from the decision of the Superintendent of Buildings. In order that a multiplication of frivolous appeals shall be avoided, it is provided that a deposit of $25 shall be made by the appellant, which shall be forfeited in the event of his appeal not being sustained by the Board of Experts.

A meeting was held last Monday to organize a rival Exchange to the one which is to occupy the Liberty street site. There were, however, but very few persons present, and the meeting adjourned for a week.

Important to Property Holders.

Notice is given that all persons interested in the plan for laying out the district on Manhattan Island north of 155th street are requested to appear before the Board governing the Department of Public Parks, on Wednesday, March 5, 1884, at 10 o'clock A. M., and make known their views in relation to the same. The proposed plan for the laying out of this district may be seen at the office of the Topographical Engineer, Arsenal Building, 64th street and 5th avenue, Central Park, and where all imformation in relation to the matter may be obtained.

The Board of Aldermen has passed a resolution calling on the Corporation Counsel to prepare a memorial to the Legislature on behalf of the Mayor, Aldermen and Commonalty for the passage of an act providing for paving 5th avenue from Washington square to 58th street.

Important Special Notices.

CANDA & KANE.

As the building season is about opening all who want building material would do well to pay a visit to the yards of Canda & Kane, at the foot of West Fifty-first street, East Fourteenth street, and at Amity street, near South Ferry, Brooklyn. One of the members of this famous firm has been in business for forty years, and what they do not know about masons' materials is not worth knowing. Specimens of their excellent material can be seen in many new buildings, among others the Cotton Exchange and the Potter building in Nassau street. The Brooklyn business of this firm is thriving wonderfully; their Amity street depot, near the East River, does double the business of its former average. We can heartily commend an old established and excellent firm.

JOHNSON & WILSON.

For work requiring large quantities of Portland cement and to all points where shipment can be made without breaking bulk, Messrs. Johnson & Wilson are prepared to furnish Saylor's Portland cement in bulk or in bags in full carload lots and larger quantities. They have already supplied to Messrs. Carnegie Bros. & Co. (Limited) of Pittsburg, Pa., 3,040 tons of Saylor's Portland cement in bags, which is equivalent to 16,000 barrels, and have supplied large quantities to the Central City Pipe Works, Syracuse, N. Y., in bulk and are now under contract with the Hoopes Artificial Stone, Cement, and Paint Co., Baltimore, Md., for 1,900 tons in bags (for work on the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad) which is equivalent to 10,000 barrels. In England and on the Continent it has been the custom for years for contractors to buy their Portland cement in bags, saving them the cost of the barrel. The average cost of a Portland cement barrel is 25 cents, which can be saved by using bags, or, where possible, by ordering in bulk. Cement pipe manufacturers using large quantities of cement will do well to note these facts. By this means it is possible for architects and engineers to use Saylor's Portland instead of the light burnt cements, and be assured of better work, at less cost to their clients. Address, Johnson & Wilson, general selling agents for Saylor's Portland Cement, No. 91 Liberty street, New York. We solicit correspondence on this subject.

STEWART & CO.

We call special attention to the advertisement of Stewart & Co., proprietors of Manhattan Pottery, Drain Pipe and Terra Cotta Works, foot of West Nineteenth and Eighteenth streets, and down-town depot, 312 Pearl street, corner Peck slip. The works were established about seventeen years ago, and have grown in popular favor to such an extent that, notwithstanding the superior facilities created for meeting heavy demands, Messrs. Stewart & Co. have been compelled during the past year to still further increase by building, and by the introduction of new and improved machinery. The works will now compare favorably with any in existence. It would be advisable for all who may be in want of drain pipe, chimney tops, garden vases, etc., to call at their new office, 540 West Nineteenth street.

FERDINAND FISH.

Mr. Ferdinand Fish, of 149 Broadway, successor to the late James M. Taylor, who for over twenty years made a specialty of his business—the management of real estate, announces in our advertising columns that he is prepared to undertake the entire work of altering and improving unprofitable property, and obtaining increased incomes therefrom, or he has clients who will buy or lease such property if capable of improvement. His success in this direction has certainly been phenomenal. He now has five buildings under way and keeps draughtsmen constantly employed. He has the double advantage of knowing the requirements of tenants and possessing a practical knowledge of the possibilities of old buildings.

IRA G. LANE.

At No. 207 East Sixty-fourth street, opposite the American Institute, near Third avenue, will be found a fine assortment of furnaces, heaters, grates, etc., but the especial attraction of this store is the famous Barry & Lane Elevated Oven Range, which no well-built modern house should be without.

LYONS' FIRE-PROOF BUILDING MATERIAL.

The Lyons' patent fire-proof building material is still offered to the building trade. It has been extensively used, as will be readily seen after reading the annexed list of prominent buildings, in every one of which the material has been used within the last two years. Any size and shape block will be made on receipt of order. It has also been largely used for ornamental work, in which cases it has taken the place of ornamental plastering or papier mache, and has given entire satisfaction, as it still retains its fire-proof qualities and does not shrink or crack, and is considerably cheaper, which makes it very valuable for this purpose. The dining room and cafe of the Hotel Brunswick, Dr. Warner's residence, corner of One Hundred and Twenty-sixth street and Fifth avenue, the Casino at Newport, and the following

W. & J. SLOANE.

Property owners and readers of this paper generally should scan the advertisement of W. & J. Sloane on another page. This well known firm supplies linoleum, corticine and oil-cloth at the lowest figures for apartment, flat, tenement and private houses. They will submit samples and estimates when desired. Those requiring oil-carpeting for their halls and stairways, or for public rooms, should communicate with them at Broadway, Eighteenth and Nineteenth streets.

F. W. SEAGRIST, JR., & CO.

F. W. Seagrist, Jr., & Co. are widely known among architects and owners of realty for the rapidity with which they accomplish the demolition of building requiring to be torn down. They razed the old building on the corner of Broadway and Liberty street in ten days, and have just contracted to take down the buildings belonging to the Standard Oil Company in the short period of six days. They also supply old brick to builders. Their yard is at No 261 Avenue B. Telephone call 496, Twenty-first street.

JOHN D. OTTIWELL.

Mr. John D. Ottiwell, of 199 Third avenue, whose card appears in another column, makes a specialty of galvanized iron work, such as cornices, roofing and ceilings. Among the buildings in which Mr. Ottiwell has been employed, the owners of which commend him for his superior work, are the Belmont building, Temple Court, the John Taylor Johnson buildings and the Stock Exchange. He also furnished the work for the east side elevated stations at Thirty-fourth street ferry, and on Third avenue from Eighty-fourth to One Hundred and Twenty-ninth streets and on the Ninth avenue road from Fourteenth to Fifty-ninth street.

A. W. WIENER.

A. W. Wiener, of No. 149 East Fifty-ninth street, rents and collects for several large estates and makes a specialty of letting and exchanging. He is also agent for a plate-glass and several life and fire insurance companies. He refers to many prominent gentlemen, and will be glad to reply to inquiries at the above address.

A. T. BUCKHOUT.

A. T. Buckhout, foot of East Twenty-eighth street, claims to have one of the best assortment of seasoned dressed lumber in the market; he has been in the business for thirty years, and his thoroughly seasoned pine, spruce and other woods will be found suitable for all building purposes. See advertisement on page iv.

JOHN H. STURK.

Artificial stone work of whatever description can be obtained from John H. Sturk, at his works No. 174 East Eighty-seventh street, city. He makes a specialty of John J. Schillinger's patent concrete water-tight cellars, for breweries, malt and ice houses and stable floors.

JOHN V. SCHAEFER.

John V. Schaefer refers to his card in our advertising columns. He manufactures all kinds of cabinet work, such as hardwood doors, trimmings, mantels, wainscoting, and so forth. He fits up bank offices and stores, and also refinishes cabinet work. He can be addressed, Nos. 157 and 159 East Eighty-eighth street.

JOHN NESBIT'S SONS.

Masons' building materials are supplied by John Nesbit's Sons (successors to Murphy & Nesbit) whose yards are at the foot of Thirty-seventh street, East River, foot of Seventy-ninth street, East River, and at No. 331 South street. Telephone call Thirty-ninth street, 272; their yards are connected by private lines.

BUILDING MATERIAL MARKET.

BRICKS.—Somewhat increased animation has been shown on the market for Common Hards since our last report, and while this to a certain extent may be considered a favorable change, it has only been obtained at a further sacrifice of about 50c. per M on price. Holders, in fact, found that the accumulation was getting too heavy for them, and negotiation indicating that the above named shading would secure response, it was made, and drew out a very fair demand, cutting down the quantity of stock in first hands fully one-half. The call came in part from Brooklyn and largely from this city, and the distribution appeared to be in the main to locations where dealers could find the fresh purchasers with greater convenience and less expense than from supplies already in hand, and it is of course natural to expect that amounts taken will enter at once into consumption, or as rapidly as the condition of the weather may permit. Latterly, buyers seem to have become a little indifferent again, and at the close we experience the old difficulty about deciding upon any positive range on values, as the ideas of the various operators show quite a degree of irregularity in naming quotations. It does not appear, however, that goods could be placed for more than $7 50 on Haverstraws unless the quality was something extra, and as low as $7.00 would probably buy some while "Up-Rivers" remain nominal in the absence of any offering, except the wintered stock. Long Islands are variously quoted at $6 37½ @6 50 and a possible $6 75; Staten Islands with about $6 50 for a top, and some lots 25c and even 50c. lower, while Jerseys are probably fairly quotable at $5 50@ 6.00, the latter somewhat extreme. Pales find some demand, and very good lots brought $4 00 per M, but $3.50@3 75 are about all buyers care to pay. So far as can be ascertained the prospects for consumption have not changed to any extent since last week. A great many brick will be wanted as soon as the weather moderates and becomes settled, but evidently less than last spring, buyers propose moving without undue haste, and the supplies on hand are likely to go a great ways in meeting the requirements of the market. Manufacturers in the meantime naturally seek to counteract the unpropitious influences and the first move is in holding back stocks. They will shut off at many points on Long Island next week. Haverstraw shipments have already been curtailed, and from "Up River" the advices indicate that even with the full restoration of shipping facilities the quantity sent forward will be small. This is not the result of any concert of action, combination or understanding looking to a forced recovery on price, but apparently simply a spontaneous move on the part of manufacturers, who, feeling that continuous shipments simply mean continuous slaughter on cost, concluded that it is just as well to hold on to their stocks until builders are in better shape to use them. It is probable also, that Hudson River makers generally will be a little slow about resuming production, and old stock may come useful.

CEMENT AND PLASTER.—We have received the following from Havana, Cuba, by the week's mail:

Current classes are at yet abundant and fairly sought after at from $2¾@3 bbl.; Portland is also plentiful and in moderate demand, at from $5@5¼ do. Plaster, though scarce, is dull at from $3@ 3¼ bbl.

GLASS.—The inquiry was in some instances said to be on the mend, but the movement neither quick nor general, and customers generally appear to act as though they were under no special alarm regarding the future. The probabilities for a good consumption of window glass are a little cloudy as yet, and the evident determination is to leave the weight of carrying stocks as near first hands as possible. And that weight is evidently becoming uncomfortable and demoralizing. There is considerable said and written about the small supply of domestic, consequent upon the slow resumption of production, but the works are now about all starting in, and the make must soon become more plentiful to add, it is feared, to the depressing features of the situation. The truth is it has become a clear matter of over supply of foreign stock with a great deal of it coming to our manufacturers, who do not know exactly what to do with it. They were free buyers of imported goods during the strike of the artisans, and ordered with some liberality to arrive, and these latter are coming to hand just now when the home product is resumed and consumption slackening off.

HARDWARE.—The general distribution of supplies has been somewhat fuller of late, but still without running business up into very great proportions, or entirely eliminating the tendency to complain on the part of the selling interest. In view of the very low cost of goods in many cases, it was hoped that larger quantities could be worked out, but buyers almost without exception have refused to depart from the cautious policy of figuring out actual wants before they leave home and resisting all temptations to operate beyond. The selection, too, is a careful one and only satisfied with good solid standard qualities and varieties that will not make dead stock in store. There has been another small reduction in the price of Manila Rope of late, but, beyond that, we hear of no important change in prices. The line of value on Screws continues somewhat unsettled, but, as a rule, the discounts range at 70@75 per cent. on the makes of leading companies.

LATH.—The market has become unsettled, and so much so that about the only certain point is that buyers have secured an advantage and still appear to be gaining. Considerable stress is laid upon what sellers claim to be only a fair amount of first-class stock, but there certainly appears to have been plenty of lath of some description during the week, and every time an attempt was made to sell a little further shading became necessary to secure customers. Whether consumption is gradually catching up to supply or dealers have more generally drawn upon accumulations in hand to satisfy their orders is not as yet fully determined, but the outlet for the offering from first hands has certainly contracted, and even with the gain made on price does not promise immediate recovery. One of the features of the situation that is to a certain extent amusing may be found in the surprising ignorance of receivers over the current line of value, and we are compelled to give a somewhat wide and indefinite quotation, owing to the impossibility of obtaining positive information. Sales have been made this week at $2.40 per M for the best grades, but as we close it would hardly be safe to bid $2.30 for the same class of stock unless it was very much wanted, and supplies said to be of poorer grade have sold for a less figure by 5@10 per M, and indeed we have heard as low as $2.15 per M but could obtain no particulars. Altogether it does not look like a healthy market for many additional supplies just at present.

LUMBER.—Where the movement has shown any increase at all, it has been simply because there was a larger amount of stock at hand to be disposed of, and not through any growth of demand. Some coastwise stuff has presented itself, and receivers report considerable skirmishing necessary in order to dispose of it, with occasional allowance on valuation necessary, though not of a sufficiently decided character to alter the general line of prices. As for some time past dealers are willing to admit that no great fault can be found with the cost of supplies, and many of them feel that they should be making some provision for certain assortments required to place their yard stocks in proper condition to meet ordinary trade as the season gradually opens, but they hesitate about investing until the probabilities of distribution are better defined on the idea that if there is any carrying of dead stock to be done it will be as well to leave the weight as near first hands as possible. Sellers are not slow to see this, and they are, therefore, generally to be found willing operators when opportunities to place supplies are presented. There seems to be little doubt that with the possible exception of choice hardwoods the supply for the open season of the year will be plentiful of all grades, and that, of course, is another factor to create indifferent demand. Most of the interior trade journals, however, are claiming good prospects for the Western trade, and calculate that they will therein find a good offset to any shrinkage of the Eastern demand.

Eastern Spruce still finds rather an indifferent demand from all quarters, and is without essentially new features. A great many yards have place for a fair amount of stock, and as cargoes come to hand they eventually locate somewhere in the vicinity, but buyers undergo a great deal of temptation before they succumb, and considering the season of the year there is an unusual hesitancy about accumulating supplies. Indeed, as before suggested, it is only because goods look "cheap" that they are placed at all, and receivers seem to think the number of cargoes coming forward is quite as plentiful as the situation requires. Specials have of late gone into the hands of manufacturers to some extent from this point as well as from intermediate ports along the coast, but none of the mills are seriously driven and the orders were taken low. Quotations here range from $18.00 up to $ 6.00 per M, with latter figure for extra fine and the inside for very poor, and about $14.00@14.50 for average random.

White Pine is quoted steady, and holders in the majority of cases are refusing to offer supplies openly at any concession. Careful buyers, however, can and do obtain small favors, as the general run of trade is without immediate improvement, and the outlook not over promising for the movement of large quantities of stock, especially on home account. Some assistance in reducing supplies may be expected from exporters on South American and West Indian orders, though the latter are likely to drop off when provincial ports open. Interior accounts do not afford many stimulating advices at the moment. We quote $18 50@22 00 for West India shipping boards; $28 00 @30.00 for South American do.; $17.00@18 00 for box boards, and $18.50@19.00 for extra do.

Yellow Pine has increased in stock somewhat during the last thirty days, and, as the neutralizing demand does not as yet set in, dealers are careful about making further purchases. Offerings from the mills, therefore, are more or less difficult to place, even when low rates are hinted at, and there is evidently some miscalculation among sellers as to the number of specials. A few are tendered but rarely of any great size or in form to prove attractive. As a rule, however, manufacturers remain steady owing to a sufficient quantity of work on foreign orders to keep them fairly busy. We quote as follows: Randoms, $20@22 per M; Specials, $21@23 do.; Green Flooring Boards, $24@25; Dry do., do., $25@26; Step Plank, $30@35 do.; Cargoes f. o. b at Atlantic ports, $14@16 for rough, and $19@21 for dressed. Cargoes f. o. b. at Gulf ports, $13@15 for rough, and $18@20 for dressed.

Hardwoods remain about as before, only an erratic sale offering for the average run of the supply, which is poor, but fine and attractive goods meeting with favor and command good rates. Export demand moderately active. We quote at wholesale rates by car-load about as follows: Walnut, $65@110 per M; ash, $35@40 do.; oak, $30@55 do.; maple, $20@32.50 do.; chestnut, $25@30 do.; cherry, $40 @75 do.; whitewood ⅛ and ⅝ inch, $25@30 do., do., and do inch, $28@38; hickory, $45@55 do.

Shingles are a shade firmer, if anything, especially for stock adapted to the export trade, which continues fair. It is a little early yet, however, for home orders and they do not relieve the market of much stock. We quote Cypress at $8 per M for 5x20 and $10 do. for 6x20 regularly assorted shipping; Pine shipping stock $2.50 for 18 inch, and Eastern saw grades at $2.50@4.50 for 16 inch, as to quality and to quantity. Machine dressed cedar shingles quoted as follows; for 30 inch $15@20 for A, and $20@28.50 for No. 1; for 24 inch, $10.50@15 for A and $15@20.50 for No. 1; for 20 inch $7@9.50 for A and $9@12.50 for No. 1.

The exports of lumber from the port of New York during the month of February last, and since January 1, were as follows:

	Feet.
To West Indies	2,915,000
To South America	2,529,000
To East Indies	1,072,000
To Europe	13,000
Total feet	6,529,000
Previously reported this year	7,184,000
Total since Jan. 1, 1884, feet	13,713,000

GENERAL LUMBER NOTES.

THE WEST.

The Chicago Northwestern Lumberman as follows:

Since our last issue the loggers have had a variety of weather. A thaw, followed by a snow fall, was the condition on a majority of the streams, clear and colder weather succeeding. There is nothing now to prevent good work again in all the districts. From this out more interruptions from uneven weather may be reasonably expected. Some of the jobbers are breaking camp, their contracts having been completed.

As spring approaches holders of lumber begin to manifest some anxiety about the effect of the opening season on prices. This anxiety is clearly manifest from Boston to St. Paul. A heavy stock, especially of coarse lumber, was carried into the winter after a season of hard pushing, to make profitable sales. It was felt that the old tub of trade had been grinding on the bottom all the season, and it was a source of relief when the grip of winter froze up the rivers, lakes and canals, and congealed trade at the same time. But the grip held a little too long, the winter has been dull in most markets and at the East does not start yet. Contrary to general expectation, also, the log crop is going to be large. There is no ground to hope for a meagre supply of lumber. The signs are plain for another season of heavy mill output. As a consequence of apparent conditions the inquiry is everywhere met, "What do you think about prices the coming spring; will they remain steadfast at about the present range, or will they go lower?" It is to be noticed that there is never a suggestion of possibly higher prices. This is significant. It indicates a knowledge of large stocks on hand, of heavy expected output, and offerings to sell beyond the capacity of the country to absorb.

It is barely possible that holders of lumber are, at the present, underestimating the coming demand for their stock. It may be strong enough to maintain values at about their present range, though an advance can hardly be expected, no matter how good the demand may be, for it is likely that the capacity of the mills, and the disposition of their owners, is such as to prevent any scarcity of lumber. The absence of a speculative tendency in all lines of trade, and the weakness of prices shared by all other commodities, must, as long as such conditions continue, have an influence on lumber prices, and prevent them from making any considerable advance. Besides, the general observation is as pat here as anywhere, that lumber seldom advances in the spring.

The conclusion is that there will be plenty of lumber for sale—fully equal to the demand—a large consumption in house building, and a range of prices not much different from those now prevailing, though probably a little lower toward summer on all common grades.

The demand for hardwood lumber has shown a slight improvement during the last week, and if there could be settled weather for a little while, enough to encourage purchasers, trade would be quite brisk. As it is the volume of sales is very good. From indications it would seem that not all the dealers are well supplied with choice thick ash and oak. Red oak, over two inches thick, was particularly scarce and mill men engaged in the manufacture of this wood should bear in mind that it pays better to cut into plank than into boards. There are frequent spurts in walnut culls nowadays, with go-as-you-please prices. Firsts and seconds in walnut are considered good property. It would be naturally supposed that our range of $67@75 on this grade would cover every possible range in value for the straight grade, but it does not. Whitewood is dull, common showing the most activity, and all sorts of prices are made. Choice hickory is firm, though with but a slight requirement.

SAGINAW VALLEY

The Lumberman's Gazette says:

The improved indications noted in our last issue do not seem to have had any very perceptible increase. In fact, the anticipated resumption of actual business appears to have been deferred, rather than promoted. A sale of 600,000 feet of choice stock is reported at the upper end of the river, and 200,000 feet of Norway at $11 per thousand. A sale of 200,000 feet was made in this city last week, and also 700,000 feet of good log run at $8.50, $17 and $37.

We are aware of negotiations which are pending for the sale of over 5,000,000 feet of first-class lumber, but as they are not yet concluded, we are not permitted to mention names.

LUMBERMAN AND MANUFACTURER, MINNEAPOLIS, MINN.

The situation is unchanged in the lumber world. Trade in the principal markets while light as to the quantity sold is fair for February. The heavy snows covering the Northwest have somewhat interfered with handling lumber and is a decided disadvantage to loggers. As stocks are whittled slowly down toward a minimum, confidence becomes settled as to values on all the remains of last year's cut. The enormous destruction of mills, lumber and logs on the Ohio cannot fail to exercise a healty influence on the markets of the West, as Michigan, Chicago and St. Louis will be heavily drawn on to repair damages and replace stocks.

An enormous quantity of timber is being slaughtered, notwithstanding a slight hindrance from excessive snows.

The shipments from St. Paul and Minneapolis are light, and no effort is being made to force sales at any figures. The receipts continue heavy from Wisconsin, but this is due largely to a scarcity of uppers and selects stuff for sash, door, blinds and furniture making.

NAILS.—Demand does not change much in form nor is there any noticeable increase of volume, most of the calls coming from regular sources, and buyers rarely allowing their orders to exceed quantities gauged to comfortable and early distribution. This in conjunction with more or less export sales makes a very fair business, however, and in the majority of cases holders' views on price remain quite steady. The general line of quotations ranges at $2.50@2.65 for 10d to 60d, according to size of invoice, but only car lots below $2.60 per keg.

PAINTS, OILS, ETC.—Trading in most of the leading descriptions of paints, colors, etc., is keeping up to pretty fair volume and the reports are correspondingly cheerful. From some interior points the demand has slightly disappointed calculations, but dealers are inclined to attribute that to temporary influences and hope for an improvement with the progress of the season. Values vary slightly but not to affect the general range. Linseed Oil in good enough demand to prevent any serious accumulation of stock and this gives the situation a steady tone. We quote at 56@58 for domestic, and 58@59 for foreign. Spirits Turpentine has been offered more freely, and with a lighter demand the market rules easy at 36@38c. per gall., according to size of invoice.

PITCH AND TAR.—Regular trade calls are fairly met from the stock in hand and at about former rates all around. We quote pitch $2.25@2.30 per bbl., and tar $2.50@3.00 do., according to quantity, quality and delivery.

MORTGAGES.

NOTE.—The arrangement of this list is as follows: The first name is that of the mortgagor, the next that of the mortgagee. The description of the property then follows, then the date of the mortgage, the time for which it was given, and the amount. The general dates used as headings are the dates when the mortgage was handed into the Register's office to be recorded.

Whenever the letters "P. M." occur, preceded by the name of a street in these lists of mortgages, they mean that it is a Purchase Money Mortgage, and for fuller particulars see the list of transfers under the corresponding date.

THE RECORD AND GUIDE.

191 Broadway, N. Y.

TERMS:

ONE YEAR, in advance, SIX DOLLARS.

C. W. SWEET, 191 Broadway.

J. T. LINDSEY, Business Manager.

MARCH 8, 1884.

The passage of the Roosevelt bill through the Legislature is justly a matter of felicitation with our citizens, but only because it ought to lead to other and more vital reforms. THE RECORD AND GUIDE was the first paper in the city to declare that the time had come to add to the authority of our executives and cut short the power of legislative bodies. A Congress or a Legislature, like any other corporation, is irresponsible; it has neither a body to be kicked nor a soul to be damned. We have always held that the Tweed charter, which concentrated municipal power in the hands of four men and reduced the Board of Aldermen to a nullity, was the very best charter New York ever had, as it brought responsibility home to the wrongdoers. Our articles published within the last two or three years, saying that the only cure for our municipal woes was to give the Mayor both the authority and the responsibility for every department of the city government, expressed views now very generally held. We denounced the so-called citizens' movement because it had no such programme, and was an organization simply to advance the private fortunes of certain ambitious lawyers. The daily press, however, are now repeating arguments which were worn threadbare in these columns.

People who live above Eighty-sixth street, between the Fifth and Third avenues, are very desirous that there should be an extension of the Madison avenue cars to the Harlem River. A large number of property-holders are urging Mr. Wm. H. Vanderbilt, who alone has the power to do so, to make the extension, but he and his family are reluctant; they say it would be ten years before the region between Eighty-sixth street and the Harlem River would pay for a horse-car line; but the subject will not be allowed to sleep, and there are many property-holders interested who are of the opinion that the extension will be completed before the close of the present year. It will inevitably lead to another change. The entire length of Madison avenue to Forty-second street will be run by cable. It will be remembered that some time since the Harlem Company came into possession of a great deal of vacant property at Eighty-sixth street and Madison avenue; this ground will be utilized for the steam and cable works needed to propel the cars up and down Madison avenue. This matter has been thoroughly investigated, and it is believed that the cable service would not only be cheaper than horse power, but would save time and be much pleasanter riding. It is to be hoped that Mr. Vanderbilt will yield to the pressure, for there is real need of a surface road service between the Third and the Eighth avenues.

The Chamber of Commerce declares for bi-metallism. It says the metallic money of the country should consist of gold and silver coin of "interchangeable relative value." This is what the American Commissioners tried to bring about at the Paris Conference. Had they been successful silver would be coined in all countries as freely as gold, at a ratio say of 16 to 1. The benighted Herald declares it cannot understand what the Chamber of Commerce means by the phrase quoted above, and then it goes on to say:

> That a financial crisis is at hand no one will claim; but a continuance of the present silver policy must eventually precipitate the crisis that has been foreseen from the very beginning. In France the Director of the Mint says there is silver circulating to the amount of five hundred and forty million dollars; and in Germany, where a gold standard prevails, two hundred and fourteen million dollars. In the United States we have about two hundred and thirty million dollars. The difference is, without any doubt, due to the absence of paper notes of small denominations in the former countries. Thus in France the smallest note is fifty francs, or ten dollars. Where, as in this country, paper issues of one and two dollars are common, there is little opportunity for silver to circulate as coin. The present time seems a fitting one to stop printing such bills, and the Chamber recommends this step to be taken. Already several banks in this city and elsewhere have signified their willingness to take silver dollars in lieu of small notes, so that it is not likely that any determined opposition will be made to the proposed change.

Now if France has $540,000,000 of silver in circulation, with a population of 37,000,000, and the United States only $230,000,000, with a population of 55,000,000, where does the crisis which appals the Herald come in. There has never been any premium on gold in France, nor has it been driven out of the country, for France, with 18,000,000 less population, has nearly $300,000,000 more gold than the United States. The demand of the Chamber of Commerce for Congress to withdraw the ones and twos is timely and should be heeded.

A Good Prospect This Spring.

This paper has always endeavored to deal fairly with the real estate interests. When realty was under a cloud and its outlook unpromising we have always said so, though holders of real estate and unsold buildings were very reluctant to have the facts known; but we have held that the first consideration of a newspaper was to tell the truth and not to give currency to pleasant delusions. From 1874 to 1878 THE RECORD AND GUIDE was what might be called a bear-paper. We held out no illusive hopes of a revival in business when all the tendencies were in quite a different direction. During December and January just past we were inclined to be somewhat bearish, for, together with the very best judges of the market, we thought that the prices of houses as well as rentals would be lower than they were last year. But we are happy to confess that in that particular forecast we were mistaken. The comparison we give in another column between the Conveyances, Mortgages and Projected Buildings of the month of February in 1883 and 1884 shows a large balance in favor of this year. There has been no diminishing of rents worthy of mention, the number of transactions and the amounts invested are larger this year than last, while the mortgage indebtedness created by the new transactions is less. If building goes on as projected, the total this year will exceed last year by many millions of dollars. These are not rosy statements meant to help the market; they are justified by the figures we give in this week's paper.

There are several causes operating to help sustain the real estate market. Money is cheap, and its owners are looking out for investments. The stock market has proven a delusion and a snare during the last two years and a-half to the most far-seeing and prudent of investors. General business during the same period has been unprofitable, but real estate has had no "boom," prices are normal, the city is growing rapidly and there is a constant and increasing demand both for residences and stores. There is plenty of property which will bring from 5 to 9 per cent., and real estate has about it an element of certainty which is very tempting to conservative investors. Were our laws such as to permit the cheap, easy and rapid transfers of real estate, there would soon be a veritable boom in realty. It would attract all the unemployed money of the country, but unhappily our existing laws make titles insecure. It takes a month to search a title, and the costs are inordinate. This is the only impediment to-day to a great speculative movement in real property.

All the indications are for a very active spring trade, the salesroom is crowded whenever a good piece of property is offered, and the bidding generally exceeds the expectations of the auctioneers and their clients.

That Legal Tender Decision.

Some time since THE RECORD AND GUIDE urged that a national convention be called to revise the constitution of the United States, to meet, say, on the anniversary of the adoption of our present constitution, some eight years hence. The proposition attracted more or less attention throughout the country, but the leading newspapers declined to discuss the matter. We ventured to predict, however, that a reconsideration of our fundamental law was inevitable and that something would soon occur to revive the idea of extensive alterations in the constitution, which could only be formulated by a national convention. Surely enough numberless papers are now insisting upon an amendment to the constitution to counteract the effect of the recent legal tender decision of the Supreme Court of the United States. The highest court in the nation has solemnly endorsed the theories of the cranks who have been advocating unlimited greenbacks and fiat or law-made money. Mankind in all ages has understood that the government stamp must recognize only the actual value of the coin upon which it is impressed. A government treasury note without any basis of actual value which cannot be converted into gold or silver is simply a printed lie and all the governments in the world, backed by the courts of every nation, could not make that piece of paper other than a lie. The philosopher, Hume, long ago explained that whatever lacked weight and extension could not be made into something by any decree of man. The dollar under our Supreme Court's decision is a myth, a dream, a metaphysical entity, having no basis of fact—that is, neither weight nor size to give it vitality.

This decision is as monstrous and will have almost as important effects as the famous Dred Scott decision. That was an offense to the moral sense of the nation. The recent legal tender decision is an insult to the common sense of mankind. Two things ought to follow. The sanctity which has heretofore attached to judicial decisions in this country should be replaced by a feeling that the instructed public opinion of mankind is a far safer guide than the decisions of any courts. We have never scrupled to denounce certain decisions of the Court of Appeals of this State as being an affront to common sense, as they tended to rob us of the fruits of responsible government and promoted unnecessary litigation. The legislature of this State passed a wise law giving the Mayor of New York the power to remove certain heads of departments and appoint others in their place, but the Court of Appeals, on the authority of an old and obsolete common law precedent, nullified the law by declaring that the officials removed were entitled to trial, and Mayors Cooper and Grace were forced to turn their offices into courts and they to act as judges without any judicial authority. They were grossly insulted by the lawyers and could not punish for contempt. This proceeding made our municipal government a farce. That Court of Appeals should have been denounced from one end of the State to the other, but we are such a lawyer-ridden people that no protests were made.

But common sense has been at work all the time on this problem of municipal government, and in Brooklyn was tried the experiment of a responsible Mayor. It resulted so well that New York will hereafter have a Mayor with responsibility and authority.

This decision of the Supreme Court will set the banking and business men of this country thinking. They will begin to realize that it is not wise to make the lawyer class the sole governing power of the country. Lawyer rule is paramount, not only in every legislative hall, but in the executive chambers, and as a matter of course in all our courts. They make our laws, define our laws and execute our laws. The national convention, if ever it meets, must strip this monstrous power from any one profession.

Any plain man reading the constitution of the United States will see that it decrees that gold and silver shall be the basis of all our business operations; not one line of that fundamental law can be tortured into giving Congress authority to make a scrap of paper money which is not convertible into the money metals of the realm. Hereafter we must insist upon equity courts which shall contain a majority of men of other professions than lawyers, and who will bring common sense and the experience of the business world to the consideration of questions vital to our industries.

Suppose.

Suppose the Congress of the United States should determine to commence the construction of a navy, to defend our exposed and now defenseless seacoast.

Suppose that the plant was provided for casting great guns, such as are needed in modern warfare to beat off iron-clad navies from the defenses of important harbors.

Suppose that subventions were voted by Congress to recreate our merchant marine so that on every sea the American flag would reappear floating over vessels carrying American produce to foreign ports.

Suppose that measures were taken to improve our water-ways, to provide against future floods, protect inland cities and prevent the annual overflows which are so destructive to life and property.

Suppose that the Mississippi was leveed, the Hennepin Canal constructed, and the Erie Canal nationalized, and made both deeper and wider.

Suppose that our harbors were all improved, as recommended by the National Board of Engineers.

Suppose that all bills (greenbacks as well as those of the National banks), under twenty dollars were withdrawn, so that gold and silver would circulate exclusively in retail trade.

Suppose our telegraph system was nationalized and all private interests in it obliterated.

Suppose that to accomplish these and similar worthy objects the United States should use its unexampled credit and borrow $500,000,000. Would not what follows be reasonably expected?

A wonderful revival of all industries. Iron would at once be in demand for constructing the ships and guns which we need. All manner of new enterprises would be started and old industries stimulated, labor would be employed at remunerative wages and this would create a demand for manufactured products of all kinds. Gold would again be imported and there would be a boom in the stock market. In short the whole situation would change as if by magic.

We would have something to show for the outlay—a navy and merchant marine—improved harbors—water-ways, which would add to the internal commerce of the country and a contented laboring population. The debt itself would afford a sufficient basis upon which to issue all the national bank notes required by the increased commerce of the country, and would be also useful for trust funds, thus benefiting widows and orphans.

But it is no use to suppose. Were anything so statesmanlike proposed in Congress the press would howl it down. They would ring the changes upon corruption and jobbery. So we must make up our minds that the present state of affairs will continue. We will ship some $30,000,000 of gold this spring; there will be a slump in prices further along—the failures in business will continue—labor will be unemployed—the banks forced to curtail their issues and the condition of the United States will furnish another instance of the little wisdom with which great nations are governed.

Why should not a law or laws be passed making a deed invalid where a false consideration is expressed with the intent to deceive. It would of course be desirable to put a stop to the nominal considerations so often put into deeds, but that might be deemed a hardship, for a husband might wish to convey property to his wife for a nominal consideration or a father might convey to his daughter where there was no money in the transaction. But the common practice of inserting $50,000 in a deed when the real consideration is $30,000, with the intention to defraud insurance companies, lenders of money on mortgage or innocent future buyers, is in its essence swindling. It benefits no one but rogues. Then it embarrasses all who deal in real estate to whom it is essential that the official record should be accurate. President Ludlow, of the Real Estate Exchange, is very much opposed to this practice and there should be some concerted action between the Exchange and the great lending institutions, such as the savings banks, trust companies and life insurance companies, to pass such laws as would put a stop to this making the records of the Register's office misleading.

A curious fact came out in connection with the late deal in Lackawanna. It is reported in the papers that the New York Life Insurance Company sold forty thousand shares of that stock at the highest figures, which had cost them in the neighborhood of 115. This of course was a very profitable operation for the company, but can it be true that institutions that hold trust funds can speculate in Wall street? The New York Life made money, according to report, on Lackawanna, but does its vaults hold any Northern Pacific, Oregon Transcontinental or North River Construction stock? Many long-headed operators have been stuck with worthless stocks, and what assurance is there that the managers of the New York Life Insurance Company have any more wisdom than other speculators on the street? It seems to us that this is a matter that should be inquired into. The Insurance Superintendent should make an examination of the assets of this company, and the law should prohibit stock investments by institutions holding trust funds for the benefit of widows and orphans. There is no certainty about stocks. Jersey Central once sold for 120 and paid ten per cent. annually, yet its price was once quoted at seven. Lackawanna has sold under the thirties, and Reading has been quoted at eleven. Life insurance companies should not speculate in any stock.

Our Prophetic Department.

OPERATOR—The Lackawanna deal ought to furnish a topic for conversation, Sir Oracle. What have you to say about it? Will it not help to kill dealings on the Stock Exchange? See what has happened to Hannibal & St. Joe, Michigan Central, New Jersey Central, and now to Lackawanna.

SIR ORACLE—An exchange ought to be a fair index of actual values. It should be the business of the bulls to set forth the actual worth and the possible profits of every enterprise offered the public to buy, while the bears should keep watch on abuses and detect weak points in the management of the corporations whose shares are dealt in. I think that as a general thing the Stock Exchange does perform this function. It was quite natural, and indeed inevitable, that from January, 1879, till the spring of 1881 there should have been a very large enhancement of values in the securities dealt in in Wall street. It was equally natural as well as inevitable, that from the summer of 1881 to the spring of 1884 prices should recede. But at turning points in the tide of speculation there are apt to be unnatural and confusing occurrences, when an outsider should not touch the market. That is the case just now, and the Lackawanna deal is a case in point. I ventured to say in one of my conversations in January, when the market was as blue as indigo, that the time had come for a change, that stocks were low; and I furnished a table at what stocks should sell at, taking into consideration the dividends they paid and estimating their price upon a five per cent. basis. I then showed that nearly all the investment stocks were absurdly cheap.

OPERATOR—Do you still hold to that opinion? Will not this artificial cornering of the shorts scare off the general public, and prevent the healthy restoration of confidence in stock values?

SIR O.—Well, I don't know. The bears, I think, have had their innings and like all speculators have over-acted their part. What harm can it do to Lackawanna if it is not dealt in? It simply becomes an investment property. There was a time when the Harlem road was one of the footballs of the street, and fluctuated between 25 and 90. When Commodore Vanderbilt engineered the famous corner it put a stop to dealings in that particular stock and yet to-day it sells for 200. Hannibal & St. Joe is now a debenture of the C., B. & Q., and the holders of the preferred stock have nothing to complain of. Suppose Michigan Central should not be dealt in to any extent, it is, I believe, a good investment. New York Central and Lake Shore also might just as well be withdrawn from the market.

OPERATOR—But will not this limit the business of the Exchange? Will seats be worth so much if all these great strong stocks pass into the hands of permanent owners, and only the cats and dogs left for us operators to deal in?

SIR O.—We have multipled securities so profusely during the past five years that there is little danger but what there will be an ample supply of stocks for all who care to speculate. But Stock Exchange operators have a competition now which they never had before. For a long period until some seven or eight years back the stock market was the sole outlet of the speculative activity of our well-to-do classes. The real estate owner, the merchant, the professional man, the dealer in any of the products of the country, was very apt in prosperous times to take a "flyer" on the street, but the formation of new exchanges have helped to withdraw custom, permanently I think, from Wall street. The cotton merchant has his own exchange, and can speculate in the article he knows all about. So with the grain merchant, the dealer in coffee, butter and eggs, metals, petroleum and sugar. People interested in all these commodities can deal on margin at the various newly organized exchanges under the most favorable circumstances. They know all the factors which go to make up prices, which facts are concealed by the manipulators of the stock market. In Wall street you gamble against men all of whose cards are marked. True, you may accidentally put your money on their cards, but, as is well known, the most pronounced bears on certain properties are very often its board of directors.

OPERATOR—I suppose you don't believe in the permanency of the present price of seats in the Stock Exchange?

SIR O.—I confess I do not. There must be a great many lame ducks among the brokers who congregate on the Exchange. Failures like McGinnis Bros. & Fearing are a sample of what will occur more frequently hereafter. Three years of liquidation must have frittered away many private fortunes. The public is kept away from the street, and it has been "dog eat dog." The squabbling of the rival cliques is the story of the Kilkenny cats over again.

OPERATOR—Yet I judge you look for higher prices?

SIR O.—Wall street, as usual, is trying to discount the future. It anticipated last December the bad business of January and February, and it is now anticipating the revival of industry, which may follow the promise of good crops in July and August. We will recuperate quickly should the yield of cotton, grain and animals be large and the price satisfactory. Then it is a presidential year, which, despite the impression to the contrary, is usually a good one for business.

Over the Ticker.

THE future of the market is uncertain, the public are not buying, the bears are getting bold again, and the bulls do not seem to have much courage. A dull and somewhat lower market is among the future probabilities.

WHEAT looks very weak, although 4,000,000 bushels are "chawed up" every day. The visible supply steadily increases. The new crop will have to contend with the largest surplus ever known in all the centres of grain traffic.

WE have had cheap food as well as cheap cotton and wool for two years, and yet we are not happy. The business of the world has been depressed at a time when according to the political economists all the commercial nations should have been flourishing. The blight in business is due to the scramble for gold in Europe and America, and the consequent shortening of the yard-stick which measures prices. A continuence of lowering values always creates a depression in business.

THE Stock Exchange is awfully dull. John Foley, the lawyer, who has been a successful operator lately, says that as merchants often mark down their goods when trade is inactive, so must the owners of stocks reduce their asking price before business becomes good again. This will be a disastrous year for brokers if stock sales do not become more active.

BUT dull as is the street to-day there are materials for greater activity in the not distant future. Pacific Mail, C., C., C. & I., Erie & Western, Rochester & Pittsburg, Terra Haute, Western Union and perhaps Manhattan will become very active some day.

BY the way, old Erie is relatively very active just now; that is a stock which cannot be covered, and operators will deal hereafter in just such securities.

Home Decorative Notes.

—It has come to be the accustomed thing that unless we have novelty continually we grow impatient and make ourselves unhappy for the want of it, in trying to obtain perpetual change even change itself becomes monotonous; we should therefore bring practical wisdom to bear and strive to content ourselves with as little novelty as possible.

—A variety of new colors in embroidery silks have been produced so that a greater field is given for effect in this style of work.

—A unique design for a valentine is a wish-bone, gilded and fastened upon a card with bright ribbon upon the other corner is traced in gilt letters some lines appropriate to the day.

—Ended forever, some fifty years ago when gas began to be used, seemed the nauseous oil and constantly dripping candle, but alas the lover of beauty declares that gas-light is hard, crude and heats the air, and for health and refinement we must return to lamps and candles; Jules Dardonville, of 37 East Eighteenth street and of 327 Fifth avenue, now offers most exquisite and rare designs of richly chased standard lamps, which may be raised or lowered at pleasure, highly ornamented candelabra with a variety of shades in porcelain and satin, rare lamps in great variety consisting of the Doulton, Limoges and Cloisonné ware.

—Charming work-pockets are made of white pongee handkerchiefs, powdered with sprays of delicate flowers, run two sets of strings in the border, when drawn up the four corners will be four little points standing above the rest of the casing.

—Floral designs embroidered upon one corner of the chair seat and back, are quite popular.

—Screens are every season growing richer and lovelier in design and mounting, one especially attractive was recently exhibited by McCarty & Hasburg, of No. 909 Broadway. The centre panel was of ruby velvet painted with an exquisite cluster of blush roses, the side panels were also of velvet, painted with sprays of roses and bunches of daisies, each panel was suspended, in the form of a bannerette, from a brass rod with rings.

—A very pretty and graceful wedding decoration consisted of a bar swung between the drawing rooms, and made out of English ivy leaves, from the edge was a row of tulips hanging bellwise.

—An exquisite fire-screen has a very heavy gilt frame, with the centre of looking glass, and painted with the wisteria vine and flowers hanging in long purple clusters.

—Interesting specimens of furniture are shown by Sypher & Co., of Broadway and Eighth street. Very attractive and most luxurious are the mahogany rockers after the Windsor design, beautiful Waltonian tables and choice pieces of Dutch marquetry comprising chamber suites, work tables, cabinets and writing desks.

—Several novelties in photograph frames have recently been introduced, one of olive wood folds in front in the form of a gate and fastens with a padlock, another has the colored pottery flowers, poppies and bluettes wreathing it with a foundation of some solid color, the golden butterfly with outstretched wings and studded with jewels is a very elegant design.

—Ornamental in character and useful in reality are the pretty shoe-bags which are made of very heavy grey ducking and bound with scarlet worsted braid, work a spray of flowers upon each pocket.

—The equipments for work are extremely pretty and very attractive, one is the cunning pongee silk apron, hemstitched and having a pocket turned up at the bottom for holding the crewels, art has ventured into and has worked upon it the busy bee, and in quaint lettering one may decipher the words "How doth the little busy bee," leaving a satisfied or troubled conscience to finish the line as may suit best.

—Tall vases of cut crystal are used for holding the red and yellow tulips, the brilliant coloring of these flowers makes them great favorites for table decorations, especially when placed among the silver and glass ware. The Bohemian glass bowls of delicate greens, pinks and blues filled with these flowers and placed down the length of the table are wonderfully effective.

—Table mats of Seine twine are very pretty and durable, the simple ribbed crochet stitch is the one used.

—Fans form an important feature in the decoration of rooms, wall pockets for grasses can be made of the large Japanese fans secured to the wall by means of invisible tacks, a corner is the most suitable place, fasten at the bottom a bow and loops of ribbon with a few peacock feathers. A dining-room or bedroom mantel may be ornamented with Japanese fans with excellent effect—open them wide and place in a circle upon the wall bringing the ends together and ornament with ribbon.

—An exquisite chair back is of electric blue Turkish satin embroidered with the sunflower design, the flower should be formed of yellow shaded ribbon and the centre worked with dark brown arrasene, the leaves should be embroidered in fine crewels and the ends of the scarfs edged with lace or crescent plush balls.

—There was a time when fair dames aspired to being drones in the hive, but that day has gone by, and to be thoroughly fashionable one must be busy and busy with a very old-fashioned implement, the needle; so great has been the advance in interior decorations during the past few years that the cry is constantly for something new: wonderful are the artistic exploits in picturesque embroidery executed by Mrs. L. D. Shears, of No. 16 East Twenty-third street; at her sudio was recently shown a number of most exquisite specimens, consisting of screens, panels and transparencies, pictures in bold threads of needle painting so perfect that one was inclined to doubt that it was not the work of paint and brush. "The Castle of Chillon," a most magnificent piece of work, is alone worthy of a visit to the studio, and must be seen to appreciate fully the labor and skill of the artist.

Transit Wanted in the Quadrilateral.

Editor RECORD AND GUIDE:

In the provision now being made for the transit of passengers throughout the city there has, so far as the writer has observed, nothing been done for the accommodation of those living between the Park boundary north and the embryo city congregating between the two "L" road stations on One Hundred and Twenty-fifth street. There has nowhere in the city been such an increase of population within the last three years as within this area called the quadrilateral by real estate men, and it is not an extravagant supposition to assume it will, in a few years, be covered by buildings of a substantial character, and the taxable value be largely increased, and an important addition to the sum total of valuation upon which to levy taxation.

There would doubtless be a formidable opposition to tramways on either of these avenues, now used as popular drives, but experience has proved all quick and easy transit enhances instead of depreciating contiguous property, and there is no part of the city that would feel it more perceptibly than in the streets and avenues mentioned above. That there will be some means of transportation from the Park to the Harlem River in the course of time is inevitable, and the question that presents itself now is what shall it be?

A good and comfortable line of stages running from the athletic grounds alternating to the stations of the "L" roads on One Hundred and Twenty-fifth street east and west would serve the present purpose, and these could be put on without much delay and serve to develop what in the near future will be the most beautiful and healthy part of the city—the Belgravia of New York.

REMARKS—Our correspondent, a well-known merchant, will find by reference to other parts of this paper that something is to be done for the so-called quadrilateral. The Madison avenue cars are to be extended to the Harlem River, and will, in all probability, be propelled by cable. Then a building with an elevator is to be erected on the Eighth avenue, which can be used to reach the high station at One Hundred and Sixteenth street. This will be a great accommodation to the people living in that neighborhood. Then the old prejudice against street cars is dying out. When needed they will be constructed on some of the avenues above the Park.—EDITOR.

Banks vs. Bankers.

Mr. George F. Chapman is a "promoter." His business has been to organize corporations and sell the stock to syndicates of capitalists. He says the only enterprise in the way of a new railway that would pay expenses would be a road from McConnelsville to Wheeling, a distance of some eighty miles. It would pass through a region which has the largest deposits of coal and iron in the United States, and which has numbers of factories where coke is produced. It would, in Mr. Chapman's opinion, pay splendidly. He claims to have been the originator of the southern Pennsylvania enterprise, which is to connect the Reading with the Vanderbilt system, but a member of the latter family, he says, stole the idea, and euchred him out of the profits which ought to have come to him in having prepared the original plans.

"I cannot understand," said Mr. Chapman, "the intense interest of the newspapers of the country and of leading members of Congress in the national banks. What good do they do? They use the money of the community, on which they pay no interest, to lend it out to stock brokers at the highest prices they can get. They will not help the business of the country when the merchants are in trouble, nor will they lend at all unless upon collateral which can be immediately sold upon the open market, and these happen to be the active bonds and stocks on the share market. Whoever heard of a bank helping any new enterprise, manufacturing or commercial? If I had the most certain scheme in the way of a railway enterprise, not a bank could be found that would advance me a cent. I should have to go to a private banker—Belmont, the Seligmans, Drexel, Morgan & Co., Winslow & Lanier and scores of other well known bankers, who have identified themselves with great railway undertakings which could not have been constructed without their aid. The national banks are no good but to promote speculation when the fever is on in Wall street and to slaughter their customers when the reaction takes place. They have been contracting their currency during the two years the country has been in distress. Were it not for the gold note and silver certificates, which are a perfect currency in their way, we would have had a fearful panic, due to the contraction of the currency. Now that we have a currency based upon the gold and silver dollars in the Treasury, why need we go out of the way to help the banks to issue their promises to pay and tax the community to provide them with a currency profitable to them and no one else? Why not make the $600,000,000 of gold and the $250,000,000 of silver as a basis for a currency? I cannot understand the interest of the newspapers in the national banks unless it is that the latter give them special privileges in the way of discounts."

As our reports show there is and has been a great deal of building going on in Brooklyn. The houses most in demand have been two-story and attic dwellings, and as we have before remarked there were so many purchasers for this class of residences that three-story dwellings would hardly bring any more money. The poorer class, who are forced into tenements in New York, aspire to houses of their own in Brooklyn. At no previous season have so many houses been constructed as there have been since the bridge was opened. Two well-known builders failed last week in Brooklyn, one of them was a constructor of tenement houses, which are not in demand in Brooklyn, and the other was an extensive builder o private houses in the Seventh, Twenty-third and Twenty-fourth wards; his failure was said to be due to the bad weather. He had borrowed largely, but was unable to complete any of his houses, and hence could not get all the money he had contracted for with the various loan institutions. It was a case of miscalculation and unforeseen accidents, and not because of any dishonesty or unusual depression in the business.

An Opinion About the Times.

Mr. James W. Riggs is one of the oldest commercial journalists in New York. He commenced his career on the Courier and Enquirer, and has been market and financial reporter for the World, Bulletin and several New York papers, besides being the correspondent of some of the leading journals of other cities. He is about to retire to his native town of Avon, on a modest fortune, made by good, hard and honest work.

"What is your opinion of the markets, Mr. Riggs?" asked the writer.

"I do not see," was the response, "any money to be made in buying stocks, cotton or grain. It seems to me that all business is unprofitable, and I doubt if there will be any decided change either way until the result of the presidential election is known."

"What, in your judgment, has been the cause of all our trouble?" asked the writer.

"The drought of 1881," was the answer. "That cut off agricultural products—corn, wheat, potatoes, cotton, fruit and so forth—to the value of fully $500,000,000. As large a sum was lost to the allied industries because of this failure. Then at least $1,000,000,000 was put into railroads, which will be unproductive for several years to come. This $2,000,000,000 had to be made up by some one, and until the deficiency is made good there can be no great revival of prosperity. That is my diagnosis of the disease from which the country has suffered."

Mr. Ludlow Makes a Few Observations.

"The renting market is turning out much better than I expected at the beginning of the winter," said the veteran broker, Mr. E. H. Ludlow, to the writer. "There has been no decline except in fancy high priced property. An unusually large number of tenants have renewed their leases at last year's figures. There is actually an advance on small houses which have rented for modest sums in the past."

"Yes," said the writer, "I hear that in Brooklyn the fortunate owners of small, unpretentious houses are getting comparatively high rents while there is little or no market for fine houses, which shows, I think, that it is the rich who have been injured by the liquidation of the past two years, not the middle class. By the way, Mr. Ludlow, what do you think of the proposed Arcade on Broadway?"

"Well," said Mr. Ludlow, "it is so large a scheme that I have not looked into it. For one I would be heartily in favor of an elevated road upon Broadway. It might be made a very ornamental structure and would be a great accommodation to the central zone of the city."

"I remember," continued Mr. Ludlow, "that I co-operated with A. T. Stewart in opposing railroads upon Broadway. We succeeded, and drove the retail business of that great thoroughfare to Sixth and other avenues. I was mistaken then but events have instructed me and I now would like to see steam on Broadway. Yes, I regard the outlook for real estate this year as very good."

Realty at Albany.

ALBANY, March 6.

There has been a busy time this week before the different committees on measures pending in relation to or affecting realty interests and the growth of the city of New York. Luther R. Marsh made a lengthy argument before the joint Committee on Cities on Wednesday in support of the bill for the establishment of the new parks in the wards north of the Harlem River. He presented some interesting facts in support of the measure. Among other documentary support of the measure was a letter endorsing it, signed by William Astor, Jacob D. Vermilye, Thomas C. Acton, John C. Eno, Charles M. Fry, John Jacob Astor, John A. Stewart, R. G. Rolston, Arnold & Constable and several other large property-holders. In this letter they show that the city has received in taxes on the increase of the value of the property around Central Park, $17,000,000 more than the park cost, and now has the land embraced in the park free. They then add:

In the case of the Central Park, the increase of values was in some instances about 300 per cent. within a year after the purchase, and for one large tract near the park, which in 1857 was sold for $40,000, the owner refused $1,250,000 in 1869, twelve years later.

2d. The taxable value of the three wards in which Central Park is situated increases from twenty-six and one-half to three hundred and twelve millions from 1856 to 1881, and contributes about one-third of the whole expenses of the city.

These facts speak louder than any words, and the silent argument of these figures must be sufficient to convince the most skeptical. We must not make the same mistake that the city authorities made in 1809, when none of the park reservations then projected were carried out, entailing a loss to the city of several hundred millions of dollars. The same opposition that then proved so unfortunate was repeated in the case of the Central Park and delayed the purchase several years, but all experience now demonstrates that there can be no better financial undertaking for a large and growing city than the purchase of park sites.

3d. As to the sanitary considerations, they are too well known and too generally admitted to be dwelt upon here—our object being merely to recommend the purchase of the land now as a wise financial enterprise. We would, however, remind you that in the matter of parks our metropolis—one of the first in the world—is sadly behind the age, our entire park territory, even with the Central Park (considered by some so large), being only 1,094 acres, against 172,000 in Paris, 22,000 in London, 8,000 in Vienna, 5,000 in Berlin, and 3,000 each in even Philadelphia and Chicago. The purchase of more park room seems imperative and the sooner the better.

It appears somewhat difficult to get the minds of the average legislators to grasp the importance of establishing these parks, or the necessities for meeting the future growth of the city. Senator Daly, for instance, thinks that the time will come sometime in the future when parks should be established there, but fails to comprehend that the city will increase sufficient to make these necessary for several years to come and dwells upon the debt and cost.

Some of the members of the Park Department are throwing obstacles in the way, on account of the fact that the bill does not place in their hands the duty of attending to the acquiring of the property, and object to what they call a separate park commission for that purpose. There is another set who think that somebody will make money in the operation and want a division to be made now. As one Senator put it, "the report of the commission has some handsome pictures. I can see the deer, the trees, the water and the swans, but I don't see anything for myself in it." These conflicting interests make the fate of the measure somewhat problematical. There are more earnest advocates of the bill outside of the committee that have them in charge than there are in the committees.

The building law still hangs in the committee, awaiting an attempt of the different exchanges and builders in New York to agree upon the form and who shall constitute the Board of Arbitration.

Ex-Governor Walker and Engineer McAlpine made arguments before the Assembly Railroad Committee yesterday in favor of the Arcade underground railway project. They made a favorable impression upon the committee, and it appears probable that the bill will be reported at an early day. Mr. Smith presented statistics showing how the passenger traffic in New York increased with the facilities furnished for travel. That in 1860, when there were but six street railroads in the city, the number of passengers carried was 38,400,000. In 1865 the passenger traffic on the twelve roads then existing reached 82,000,000, with only 87,283 increase in population. In 1880, with twenty-two roads, the passenger traffic had reached 211,000,000. The yearly average increase in passenger traffic previous to 1880 was 10,000,000, while during the four years of subsequent elevated railroad travel, the yearly increase has been 20,000,000 passengers, and during the existence of the elevated railroads the increase has been nearly 8,000,000 more than all they carry, showing that outside of increase of population, increased railroad facilities uniformly produce multiplied passenger traffic. On the basis of past figures, Mr. Smith calculated that in 1890 the population of New York would be 1,809,000, and the number of passengers that would be carried on the roads would be 460,143,200, and in 1900 the population would be 2,714,800, and the passengers carried 750,417,600. To meet this increase more roads are certainly required, and the Arcade, if then constructed, will have all that it wants to do.

The Senate Committee on Railroads has heard arguments on the bill to provide for the construction of general street railroads. Several amendments were proposed to perfect the bill. It appears that the street railroad interests, which were quarreling over the bill last year, have all united in the support of this measure. The Jacob Sharpe's interest and the Forty-second street railroad party are all in favor of it. Charles P. Shaw and the cable motive power interest are arrayed against, appeared in opposition to the bill, and will continue to oppose, unless cable power is included in the measure. The passage of this bill appears certain. It is to be hoped that it will be in a form that the Governor will approve, and thus enable the city to secure the additional street railroads so much required on the west side of the city and the upper end.

The bill for the establishment of a park at Coenties slip has been advanced to third reading in the Assembly.

The bill to regulate the height of dwelling houses in New York, in accordance with the width of the street or avenue on which they are located, has been favorably reported in the Assembly.

The act referred to in my last week's letter for the improvement of the river front on the East River, from Eighty-sixth street to junction of Third avenue and the Harlem River, has been favorably reported in the Assembly.

A bill has been reported in the Assembly of interest to all who own lands on the river front of the unimproved portion of the city, affecting as it does their right to land under water. It provides that from and after the passage of this act the commissioners of the land office, wherever now empowered by law to make grants of land under water, shall make such grants to extend to the bulkhead and pier line as now established, or hereafter to be established by law; but no such grant shall be so made as to interfere with any of the rights of the corporation of the city of New York or with the corporations of any of the cities of this State.

An important bill relative to mechanic's liens has been reported in the Assembly, which applies to all parts of the State. It is full and elaborate in its details. It limits the amount of liens for labor and materials furnished, when the building is erected by contract, to the amount which the owners stipulated to pay in the contract for the erection or the repairs of the building. And when notice is served on the owner before the final payment is made that the contractor has not paid for the material furnished, he shall withhold from the contractor sufficient to pay such claims, and in case the owner neglects to withhold that amount in his payments to the contractor, then by filing liens the owner is made liable for their amount without regard to the amount that he has already paid. The liens filed under the act shall not bind the property for more than one year, unless within that time a suit is commenced to enforce the same and a notice of the pending of such action filed with the County Clerk. It also provides that whenever on the sale of property subject to the lien there is a deficiency of proceeds, a judgment may be directed for the deficiency against the person named in the judgment, as personally liable therefor, in like manner and with like effect as in actions for the foreclosure of mortgages.

It is understood that the bill to enable the erection of works for the supply of salt water to be used in the extinguishment of fires will be reported next week.

The developments to-day in the action of the Assembly demonstrated that the Chamber of Commerce will not be able to secure the passage of its bill relative to the Adirondack forests. All that can probably be accomplished will be the passage of a bill for the protection of the three-quarters of a million of lands owned by the State in that section and the prevention of the cutting of timber on those lands.

The standing committee on legislation of the Real Estate Exchange and Auction Room (Limited) met for the first time on Thursday in the Duncan building. James M. Varnum was chosen president. It was decided to endorse the bill now before the Legislature asking for the appointment of a commission to consider the condition of our land laws with a view to their improvement. A sub-committee was also appointed to examine the proposed building law and see whether it was wise for the Exchange to favor it.

The Proposed Cable Roads.

No. 22 Cortlandt street, New York, February 19, 1884.

Editor RECORD AND GUIDE:

In your issue of February 16th you have a communication on the above subject, in which it is stated that the writer has heard that the bill introduced at Albany, asking an extension to the time of the Rapid Transit Commission, was introduced without the knowledge of the president of the company interested in the cable.

I beg to say that your correspondent's information was not correct. There appeared to be good reason for seeking an extension of time for the commission, and the president of the Cable Company concurred in the application.

The correspondent cannot understand why a transverse road through Twenty-second street should have been located when there is one already on Twenty-third street, and asks, "Can this all be a strike?" and further remarks, "this covering the whole city with a network of proposed cable roads looks like a scheme to bleed the existing horse-car companies." I will not retort by saying that your correspondent's comment looks like a wail from the existing horse-car companies, but I will assume that it is written in good faith, and will therefore avail myself of your courtesy to state that the National Cable Railway Company was organized by parties who, having made a careful examination and study of the cable system of transportation so successfully used in the cities of San Francisco and Chicago, believed that it would be both advantageous to the city of New York and profitable to themselves to introduce the system in this city.

The existing elevated railways, which have added so largely to the comfort and convenience of life in this metropolis, illustrate the first effort to establish anything approaching a system of transportation for this city.

The existing horse-car lines were built each independent of the other, where the fancy of the projectors or the possibility of procuring the necessary chartered rights led them from time to time, and they, being independent each of the other, served as an illustration of what is not a system.

Should the plan, submitted to the Rapid Transit Commission by the National Cable Railway Company be adopted, it is the purpose of the company to establish a system which shall be as much more complete than that of elevated railways as they were in comparison with the no system of horse railways. To do this it was neceesary not only to have longitudinal lines of transit, but also to have frequent transverse lines belonging to the same company, upon which persons desiring it could be transferred at but a nominal addition to the single fare and perhaps without any addition whatever. I will therefore answer your correspondent's question as follows: This is not a strike nor is it conceived in any hostility to the existing horse railways or elevated railways, but it is an earnest effort to establish such a system of transportation as will meet the wants of this great city, whose population is increasing at the rate of 50,000 per annum and the number of persons to be transported, if proper facilities are furnished, at the rate of 25,000,000 to 30,000,000 per annum.

WM. P. SHINN,
President National Cable Railway Company.

The above was mislaid or it would have been published as soon as received. THE RECORD AND GUIDE is not interested in the horse cars or elevated railway system in any way and it has editorially and without solicitation countenanced the cable system, provided the interest of the public were taken care of in the organization of the company or companies which would secure the charters. Editor RECORD AND GUIDE.

Profits on Land and Farming in Dakota.

A letter has been addressed to us from Devils Lake, Dakota, dated February 17th, 1884, showing the profits to be derived from investments in land and farming in that locality. The writer wishes to engage some New York capital in such an enterprise, and gives facts and figures to show the large return possible on a comparatively small sum of money. While not committing ourselves to the matter, we shall be pleased to place any of our readers interested in communication with the writer. The following is an extract from the letter:

There has recently come into the market seven towns of the finest wheat land there is in North Dakota. These towns aggregate 150,000 acres. Nearly one-half has already been taken by pre-emptors, homesteaders and tree claimants. There are two towns up near the boundary line in which not a soul has yet gone. In these two towns are 68 sections (43,520 acres), on which you can file tree claims in patches of four, making 640 acres in one compact form. The expense of getting these claims is, for Land Office fees $14, and whatever you can buy a man off for, that may be $100, you then have a tree claim of 160 acres on which by government laws you have only to break ten acres and plant trees, which in five years will satisfy the government, and you then get your patent for nothing. But the point is, and the main profit is, in cultivating the 150 acres to wheat. The first year's expense is, of course, the heaviest, but you can raise enough off the sod to pay the expenses of breaking. The succeeding years the expense is about $8 per acre, while the annual yield is from $15 to $20 per acre. There is considerable of that sort of business going on, and I thought I would mention the matter. Now another thing, my brother, my son and myself have taken between us 800 acres within four miles of the county seat, three tree claims and two pre-emptions, and we have our homesteads, each of 160 acres, left which will be taken (they can't before) as soon as the pre-emptions are proved upon, which will be within the next six months. In addition to that another brother of mine is coming out and he will take his 320 acres. Now I want to get 200 acres of our 800 broken up this spring and get our crops in and realize something from our capital, the rich black Dakota dirt. An outfit of breaking, teams, ploughs, seed, &c., will cost from $800 to $1,000, according as you use oxen or horses; the former are said to be preferable. The labor of breaking, back-setting, dragging and seeding I don't take into account, as my son and brother will do those things; the expense of harvesting, threshing and hauling will be $3.50 per acre. It is desired to make every possible acre productive just as soon as it can be done and then cultivate in the best possible manner, and success is as certain as anything in the future can be. Now, as I've said, the expense of the first year, so far as the sod crop is concerned, is about all that can be realized, but the next year, when your 200 acres are in first rate condition for cultivation, is the year in which you realize your great profits, for you can then get in another 200 acres of breaking, and so keep on from year to year until your whole 800 or 1,000 acres are broken up and fit for cultivation. Now, as to the profit, here are the figures: The entire expense of raising a crop on the 200 acres, when the labor is performed, as I've said, by my brother and son, would be for seed $1.50 per acre, and harvesting, &c., as above, $3.50—total, $5.00 per acre. Counting twenty bushels wheat to an acre is 4,000 bushels; putting it at the low price of 85c. per acre would bring $3,400. An outfit, $1,000 and the 200 acres at $5.00 per acre for second year's crop, $1,000, would give a profit of $1,400. In this statement I have made no credit for the sod crop on the 200 acres the first and second year—I think there is no doubt that the expense of breaking and back-setting could be met by the income from the sod—neither have I taken into consideration the increased value of the land. The three claims on which the 400 acres would be broken would be worth, at least calculation, $15.00 an acre; 480 acres (three claims) at $15.00 would be $7,200. The cost at government price, $1.25 per acre, $600. Can anything be more profitable than that? Now what proportion of these 480 acres should be given away, in consideration of such an advance of money to make the necessary start and accomplish the inevitable results above set forth, I have not considered, but I am willing to make it an object and would be glad to know your views upon it, and also whether if you knew of anybody who would embrace this opportunity. On general principles, it ought easily to be accomplished and a good deal of capital now lying locked up in New York, or not bringing over 3 or 4 per cent., could in such a scheme in this country find a big field for operation. Until such time as we could prove up and get title, within six months, it would be based on confidence both in my representations as well as in the capabilities of our Territory, and this section of which I speak, and I know nearly every foot of it, is the best in Dakota. A great many eastern men knowing the possibilities of this country and having faith in it, are sending out their money to loan on real estate, and they are content with 12 per cent. per annum, but in the development of the soil and in good farming there is from one-third to one half profit, to say nothing of the enhanced value of the land. JNO. W. BENNETT.

The control of the Bodie Mine has passed out of the hands of William H. Lent, and the new "boss" of that famous property is "Archie" Borland, a mining sharp of the first water. Lent's methods were peculiar. Whenever a strike was made in the mine an assessment was immediately levied to depress the stock. Nobody, not even his most intimate friends, were allowed to make any money in it but Mr. Lent himself. He gave one really good mine to New York, the Standard. The owners of that property thought it was played out, and Lent brought it to this market to dispose of. It was during the mining boom, and the stock sold from 20 up to 33. After the shares were distributed in New York, new developments were made, which made the Standard a very valuable property, which it has continued to be ever since. But Mr. Lent has not controlled its destinies. There seems to be a really valuable development in Bodie, but it will be "Archie" Borland who will make the profit, not the stockholders.

All members of the Real Estate Exchange who are interested in Albany legislation are to be notified that copies of every bill introduced in either the Assembly or the Senate, affecting property in New York city, will be found on file at the temporary rooms of the Exchange, in the Duncan building. For a trifling fee the title and synopsis of every bill will be sent to any member. Property holders up to this time have had no system by which they could be informed as to what measures were before the legislature affecting their property.

In the case of Vaun vs. Rouse, the New York Court of Appeals, about the middle of January last, decided that although a lease may have in it a clause that provides that in case the tenant shall abandon the premises at any time then the whole rent shall become due, yet if the premises should become untenantable without his fault and he should therefore abandon them under the statute, that clause in the lease would not control, and he would not have to pay rent after the time of such abandonment.

The Real Estate Exchange has appointed a standing committee on sanitation, with Mr. Stokes as chairman. The work of this committee will be exhaustive, and will, no doubt, result in great benefit to the future sanitary condition of the city.

A contrivance for preventing window curtains from flapping by the wind when they are down to exclude the sun and the window is raised for the circulation of air, consists in one end of a chain being fastened to the curtain and the other to the sill. The curtain can be chained to the sill at any height above hooks to prevent it from flapping by the wind when the window is raised for allowing the air to circulate. When it is not desired to fasten the curtain down the chain may be hitched up to hooks, by which they form loops affording convenient hold, to be used instead of a tassel for pulling the curtain down.

While one is the owner of land what he says and does in respect to fixing the boundary thereof may be given in evidence in a suit relating thereto, and his agreements in respect to the same will bind subsequent purchasers from him; but after an owner of land has parted with his title his subsequent sayings and acts cannot bind his prior guarantee or one holding under him. Marion vs. Hoyt et al., decided by the Supreme Court of Georgia February 2.

Where two or more notes secured by a single chattel mortgage fall due at different times they should be paid out of the mortgage fund in the order of their maturity, and where two such notes fall due on the same day, and the mortgage fund is not sufficient to pay the entire amount of the notes, they should be paid proportionally out of the mortgage fund, unless some agreement or some paramount equity would require a different order or mode of payment. So held by the Supreme Court of Kansas in the recently decided case of The Aultman Taylor Company vs. McGeorge et al. The Court further held that the above rules applied whether the notes were still held by the original mortgagee, or by him and others, or entirely by others.

The carpet trade at New York thus far during 1884 is declared by the Carpet Trade Review to be equal "and probably somewhat in excess of that for the corresponding season of 1883." The western floods checked wholesale trade some. At the present time there are many of the larger buyers in the market, but as a rule they "are spending more time in a careful survey in search of the choicest styles." Desirable goods in all grades, more especially in the better, are well sold up, and, with the ordinary demand which may reasonably be expected during the remainder of the season, there will be no surplus stocks in first hands. Floor oilcloths are in good demand, and in fact are more active than is usual for the spring season. China mattings are beginning to move, and an active market during the next thirty days is expected.

A voluntary settlement of property by a husband upon his wife can be assailed only by his existing creditors. So held by the Supreme Court of Illinois in the recently decided case of Durand vs. Weightman et al. This was a case where a husband conveyed land to his wife as a voluntary settlement for her future maintenance, retaining at the time personal property amply sufficient to discharge all his liabilities in good faith, without any intention thereby to defraud any existing or subsequent creditors. The Court held that, under the circumstances, the conveyance was good as against subsequent creditors acquiring their claims some three years afterward.

Real Estate Department.

The sales at the Exchange last week were not numerous, but a good sign was that many of the foreclosure sales were postponed so as to allow the litigants to come to terms, which they will do in many instances. The sale on Wednesday of 20 lots, as advertised, on Seventh avenue, One Hundred and Twenty-eighth, One Hundred and Twenty-ninth and One Hundred and Thirtieth streets was not concluded, the prices not being satisfactory to the trustee of the estate. The few lots on the street sold for $5,000 each and the buyers who got them secured what every one at the sale considered bargains.

On Friday the Twenty-third Street Theatre was sold pursuant to court orders in partition for $144,000 to A. B. Darling, plaintiff in the action, and the sale of the Burlington Flats on Thirtieth street, west of Fifth avenue, was adjourned to April 5th.

There has been quite a furore in the renting market during the past week. The bad weather of February kept the house-hunters at home, and the first few fine days in March sent the heads of families, who are dissatisfied with their present quarters, on the move to supply themselves with a home for another year. Not only do the Pine street and lower Broadway brokers have all they can do in issuing permits, but the up-town brokers were overrun. J. G. & S. D. Folsom & Co. say they have issued 150 permits this past week. There is quite a demand for medium houses for sale also, and sellers are very stiff. Landlords would do well to take advantage of the rush to rent their houses, as the demand may not be so large as May approaches. The outlook for real estate is very hopeful, as the list of conveyances show, a very large business being done in transfers of real estate. The number of projected buildings has been very large during the past month, both in this city and Brooklyn. As will be noticed in the table we give, the projected new edifices on the west side are unusually large. We also hear that the "quadrilateral" is to be taken in hand this summer, and extensive building operations will be begun and continued until all that region south of One Hundred and Twenty-fifth street and east of Morningside Park will be built over. The gas company which serves that part of the city, the centre of which is One Hundred and Twenty-fifth street, say that they now have three customers in that region where three years ago they had but one.

The following table gives the official Conveyances and Mortgages for the first two months of this year compared with the first two months of last year. As will be seen there is a gratifying increase in the number of transactions while the consideration is over seven millions larger. The annexed district also makes a much better showing than last year. It will also be noted that the mortgage indebtedness created is some two million dollars less than last year. These returns show that beyond all peradventure there is a better feeling and more doing in real estate than the most sanguine expected would be the case at the beginning of the year. All the indications are that we will have a splendid spring business.

The comparisons we give in the table below will prove very pleasant reading to owners of realty in New York city. The returns for new buildings planned during February, as compared with previous Februaries, show a handsome increase. If the fall is as promising as this spring, there will be more houses built and more money expended upon them in 1884 than in 1883. The favored regions this month are below Fourteenth street, and east and west of the Central Park. The increase on the west side is particularly gratifying, and will be cumulative. The fact that several tall houses are to be constructed on Eighth avenue, near One Hundred and Sixteenth street, which will contain elevators for the convenience of passengers who wish to take the elevated roads, together with the additional fact that some twenty-five houses are to be built on One Hundred and Sixteenth and One Hundred and Seventeenth streets this summer is going to make real estate lively in the region just east of Morningside Park. But here is the table of the building plans for February for the last three years:

*One mortgage for $1,000,000 on property of Old Dominion Steamship Co.

Attention is directed to the offering by Mr. Cyrille Carreau of sixteen full lots on One Hundredth and One Hundred and First streets, west of Eighth avenue, with fronts on the streets of 150 feet and 250 feet respectively. This plot is excellently located for investment or improvement, being unusually high ground and near the Central Park and station of "L" road.

Mr. Leonard J. Carpenter, in our advertising columns, presents for the consideration of investors the plot 82.1x98, with brick buildings, on the corner of Lafayette place and Great Jones street. The site is a desirable one in many ways, and in view of the rapid increase in the number of business houses being established in that locality the property cannot but yearly become more and more valuable. With the projected Arcade road constructed on Broadway, property in the neighborhood mentioned will experience a considerable enhancement in value.

The dwelling on the southwest corner of Seventy-fourth street and Madison avenue, 18x80, advertised to be sold to-day under foreclosure, was mortgaged in 1871 for $25,000, and there is now due thereon about $46,100, of which amount over $19,500 is for interest.

E. H. Ludlow & Co. will remove in May from their time-honored Pine street offices, which have been occupied by them for the past twenty-five years, and have taken an elegant suite of offices on the ground floor of the Duncan building, No. 11 Pine street. This firm would have preferred locating in the Real Estate Exchange building, but there exists no vacancies in offices suitable for the transaction of their extensive business.

The Twenty-fourth Ward Real Estate Association elsewhere in our columns offer on easy terms a number of substantially constructed villas and cottages, containing all modern improvements, located at Bedford Park, within the city limits, and but eighteen to thirty minutes distant from the Grand Central Depot by Harlem Railroad. The price of a home containing gas and Croton and erected in strict conformity with the accepted rules of sanitation varies from $3,750 to $7,000, according to size. Bedford Park will be found worthy of a visit from all who contemplate the purchase of a moderate priced home for their own occupation at a distance convenient to the business centres of the city and at the same time free from all the annoyances that surround life in the thickly settled portions.

The popular firm of Richard V. Harnett & Co. announce for the 18th inst. the sale under partition of the estate of William H. Leggett, deceased. Mr. Richard V. Harnett, it seems, will during the present season have as usual the control of all the more extensive offerings at the Exchange Salesroom. In fact it would appear to be acknowledged that to insure an eminently successful sale of any great number of parcels it is necessary to have the name of Mr. Harnett associated with the sale. The Leggett sale, elsewhere announced, consists of a number of valuable properties in various parts of the city, including among the down-town parcels, No. 404 Pearl street, No. 301 Pearl street, Nos. 71 to 77 Jackson street, corner of Front street, and No. 327, No. 334 and No. 340 Front street. No. 382 South street and No. 657 Water street, also desirable for investment and susceptible of immediate improvement. The excellently located properties No. 813 Sixth avenue, corner Forty-sixth street, and No. 804 Sixth avenue should induce spirited bidding, and the same may be said of No. 567 Third avenue, near Thirty-seventh street, No. 43 East Thirteenth street, No. 9 East Sixteenth street, No. 214 West Twenty-ninth street, No. 154 West Forty-eighth street, and the plot, 100x100.11, on the south side of One Hundred and Tenth street, 150 east of Lexington avenue. The sale is the most important one thus far this season.

On Wednesday, the 12th inst., Messrs. Harnett & Co. will sell under foreclosure proceedings eleven full lots on the southeast corner of Second avenue and Ninety-eighth street, two lots on Second avenue and nine lots on Ninety-eighth street adjoining.

On the same day, by order of the executor of Samuel Willets, deceased, the same firm will dispose of the property, No. 303 Pearl street, this city, and Nos. 64 and 66 Cliff street; also Nos. 920 to 926½ Lafayette avenue, Nos. 23 and 25 Jefferson street, No. 51 Wythe avenue and No. 14 Jackson avenue, all in the city of Brooklyn.

Nos. 3 and 4 Mitchell place, consisting of two well-constructed three story and basement stone front dwellings, each 18x45x80.10, and commencing 36 feet east of First avenue, as well as No. 307 Spring street, 125 east of Greenwich street, 25x100, will be sold by the same firm on Thursday next.

On Friday they will also sell the valuable business property, No. 42 Broad street, running through to and including No. 38 New street, by order of R. S. Ransom, receiver, etc. This property is first-class as a business site and will no doubt bring full figures.

On Wednesday, the 19th inst., they will offer nine choice lots on the southerly side of Bergen street, 277 feet east of Clason avenue, Brooklyn.

John F. B. Smyth is growing in favor as an auctioneer. Every season his business increases. He has a number of good things ahead this spring. On Wednesday, March 12th, he will sell, under order of an executor, the investment property Nos. 348 and 350 Water street. On Wednesday, March 19th, he has three good parcels of property to offer in the salesroom, viz.: the house No. 48 Sixth avenue, 19x72; No. 506 West One Hundred and Fifty-first street, and 206 East Eighty-third street. Investors would do well to look at these various houses.

D. M. Seaman will sell, on Tuesday next, the four-story brick factory at Nos. 428 and 430 East Tenth street. This is an executor's sale.

Out Among the Builders.

The Home for Old Men and Aged Couples intends to erect a costly and handsome edifice on the corner of One Hundred and Thirteenth street and Morningside avenue. It will occupy one hundred and sixty feet on the avenue and will be an imposing building, costing $225,000. It will have a castellated appearance not unlike the colleges at Oxford, England. It will be an ornament and will improve the region around Morningside Park. The 40 feet front on the avenue at the corner of One Hundred and Fourteenth street is set aside as a site for a fine Episcopal Church, which it seems is needed in that section and which will also add to the value of property in that neighborhood. The architects are Messrs. Renwick, Aspinwall & Russell.

The General Theological Seminary will shortly commence the erection of a large building adjoining their present structure on the southwest corner of Ninth avenue and Twenty-first street, to consist of a library, which is to be fire-proof, and two blocks of dormitories. The addition will have a frontage of 140 feet and depth of 40, the material being of brick and Belleville stone. The architect is Charles C. Haight. The elevation of the new building, according to the plans, is admirable.

The New York Presbyterian Church, of which the Rev. W. W. Page is the pastor, intends to erect a handsome church on the northeast corner of Seventh avenue and One Hundred and Twenty-eighth street. The building will occupy four full lots, and have a frontage of 100 feet on the avenue and 100 on the street. The cost is not yet determined.

W. H. Hume has the sketches under way for extensive alterations to Nos. 102, 104 and 106 West Twentieth street, which are to be converted into a large dry-goods store, to be occupied by H. C. F. Koch.

John C. Burne has the plans in hand for two five-story brown stone double flats, 50.1x84 together, to be erected on the south side of Eighty-ninth street, 158 feet east of Fourth avenue. Cost to the owner, Ferdinard Steigert, about $40,000.

Charles Seitz intends at once to commence the erection of a five-story brown stone flat, 25x80, at No. 347 West Sixteenth street, to cost about $16,000, and a five-story brown stone flat, 25x85, on the south side of Forty-ninth street, 100 feet east of Third avenue, to cost about $16,500; architect, John Brandt. Mr. Seitz will also improve the four lots on the north side of One Hundredth street, 100 feet east of Third avenue, by the erection of four four-story double brown stone tenements, 25x78 each, at a cost of $56,000. The latter, however, will probably not be commenced before the end of the summer.

Messrs. Hall & Ramsey will at once commence the erection of six five-story apartment houses, 25x85, on six lots running through from Fifty-second to Fifty-third street, commencing 425 feet west of Ninth avenue, three on each street. The buildings will have fronts of Philadelphia brick and brown stone. This improvement was referred to in our last.

Joseph M. Dunn has the plans under way for the erection of a five-story brick flat with a store on the first floor, at No. 41 Great Jones street. It will be 27x52 and cost $15,000. The owner is Edward C. Fiedler. Mr. Dunn is also the architect for extensive alterations and additions to be made to the four-story brick house, No. 857 Broadway, being the northwest corner of Seventeenth street, 26x101. It will be converted into a store with lofts above, having an iron front on Broadway, while in the rear a four-story brick extension will be built. When completed it will be occupied by Messrs. Jaques & Marcus, the well known jewellers. The same architect has the plans for extensive alterations and additions to the female wards of the Retreat Building at Blackwell's Island, to cost about $15,000.

Thomas Smith proposes to erect six five-story brick and stone flats on the plot of ground just purchased by him on the north side of One Hundred and Fourth street, commencing 100 feet east of Third avenue, 160x100 11, at an outlay of nearly $100,000.

James Meagher will erect four five-story flats, each 25 x about 82, with stores on the first floor, on the northeast corner of Eighth avenue and One Hundred and Thirtieth street; the material will be of brick with stone trimmings.

The marble front building, Nos. 513 to 519 Broadway, now occupied by the St. Nicholas Hotel, having a frontage of 100 feet on Broadway, running through 200 to Mercer street, where it is 140 feet in width, is about to be torn down, and S. A. Warner is at work on the preliminary plans for the erection thereon of a six-story, basement and sub-cellar store building to cover the entire site. The front will be of brick, stone and terra cotta, and the whole structure will be fitted with modern improvements, including both passenger and freight elevators. The owners are the estate of David Henry Haight; the cost of the work will be $335,000.

William Fernschild & Son have the plans in hand for the following houses: Six five-story brick and stone tenements on the southeast corner of First avenue and One Hundred and Fifteenth street, for John O'Brien; a four-story double flat on the north side of Seventy-first street, between First avenue and Avenue A, for Charles Bolman; and a four-story flat on the north side of Seventy-sixth street, between First avenue and Avenue A, for Mr. Jesser.

John Brandt has the sketches for four five-story brick and brown stone tenements and stores, 25x60 each, to be erected on the southwest corner of First avenue and Eighty-second street for H. Rapp, at a cost of about $56,000.

The Manhattan Construction Company was incorporated on Monday, with a capital of $100,000, divided into 1,000 shares. The incorporators are John H. Deane, A. Kehoe, Wm. Whaley, H. J. Chapin and A. Baumgarten, and the company is formed for the erection of buildings and similar enterprises.

The Florence Apartment Company filed articles of incorporation on the 4th instant. The incorporators are James Renwick, J. Lawrence Aspinwall and Charles Roth. Capital, $600,000. The company intends to build a large first-class apartment house adjoining the "Florence," on the southeast corner of Fourth avenue and Nineteenth street, to occupy about 100 feet front, and which is to be first-class in construction and arrangement throughout. The architects will be Renwick, Aspinwall & Russell.

D. T. Atwood has the sketches for four two-story summer cottages to be erected at Staten Island for E. A. Petit, a large owner of property there.

The Metropolitan Apartment Association has been incorporated, with a capital of $101,000, by John S. Hulin, Wm. V. A. Mulhallon, James Cooper, Wm. H. Wells and Fred. D. Thorne. The business of the company will be to acquire, maintain and improve real estate for residences and apartment houses.

Brooklyn.

The Board of Aldermen has given permission to O. Matthews to erect a frame stable in the rear of No. 660 Nostrand avenue.

H. Vollweiler & Co. have the sketches for a two-story frame shop, 50x50, to be erected at Nos. 122 and 124 Debevoise street, for Mr. Schneider cost, $3,000; also for a three-story frame dwelling, 37.6x48, to be erected on Ellery street, for M. Mayer, at a cost of about $5,000.

Th. Engelhardt has plans for a one-story frame extension, 30x12, to be erected at No. 32 Jefferson street, for J. Frey; cost, $1,000.

Amzi Hill is about to prepare plans for a four-story brick store and dwelling, 22x72, to be erected on the northeast corner of Myrtle and Marcy avenues.

Where the consideration for a mortgage is a pre-existing debt and the time of payment of the pre-existing indebtedness to secure which the mortgage was given has been extended by the mortgagee, the extension of time is sufficient to make the latter a mortgagee for a valuable consideration, according to the decision of the Indiana Supreme Court in the recent case of Bolling et al. vs. Howell, decided on the 22 ult.

A memorandum of the sale of real property to be sufficient under the statute of frauds must be complete in itself, and must leave nothing to rest in parol, according to the opinion of the Supreme Court of Michigan in the recently decided case of Gault vs. Stormont. In this case a receipt for part payment of the purchase price of land expressing the full consideration was held not a sufficient memorandum under the statute.

To deny a person on whose property it is proposed to levy a special assessment an opportunity to be heard in his own behalf is in violation of the constitutional provision that no person can be deprived of life, liberty or property without due process of law, according to the opinion of the Supreme Court of Iowa in the case of Gatch vs. The City of Des Moines, decided on the 31st ult.

Contractors' Notes.

Proposals will be received at the office of the Department of Publci Charities and Correction, No. 66 3d avenue, until Friday, March 14, 1884, for repairs to be made to east wing of Insane Asylum on Ward's Island.

Sealed proposals will be received at the office of the Department of Public Works until March 18, 1884, for furnishing material and performing work in the erection of portions of Washington Market.

Notes and Items.

The Board of Street Opening and Improvement give notice that they deem it to be for the public interest to alter the map or plan of the city, by laying out, opening and extending certain streets north of 126th street, west of 8th avenue.

Special Notices.

Ohio stone is to be seen in a large number of buidings in this city, and its durability and freedom from iron is well known in the building trade. Among the structures in which it has been used may be mentioned the buildings on the corner of Broadway and Barclay street, opposite the Astor House, and on the northwest corner of Fulton and Cliff streets, where it has withstood the elements for twenty years. It was also used in the block on Broadway, between Forty-third and Forty-fourth streets; on Fifth avenue, between Fifty-fifth and Fifty-sixth streets (fifteen years old); the Presbyterian church, corner Madison avenue and Fifty-seventh street; the Rossmore Hotel, corner of Broadway and Forty-second street; Brooks Brothers' building on Broadway and Bond street; and the Calvary Baptist Church on Fifty-seventh street, near Sixth avenue, the architect of which is J. R. Thomas, who speaks highly of the material used. The Ohio Stone Quarry is now managed by one company, and only first-class stone is delivered. One of the most recent buildings in which it can be seen to effect is the Eden Musee Americain, on Twenty-third street, between Fifth and Sixth avenues. The New York office of the company is at No. 247 Broadway, where their well-known agent, Mr. Charles F. Woodward, can be communicated with.

Messrs. Baetjer & Meyerstein, of No. 5 Dey street, who are the sole agents in this country for the Hanover Portland cement, are also the agents for the celebrated Limmer Rock Asphalte of the United Limmer and Vorwohle Rock Asphalte Co., and their advertisement can be seen on another page.

Messrs. Hurd & Burling, as will be seen from our advertising columns, have entered into partnership in the real estate business. Mr. S. H. Hurd is the receiver of the Third Avenue Savings Bank and of the Security Life Insurance Company, being a colleague in the latter with ex-Mayor Wickham. Mr. Hurd, it may be added, is a son-in-law of the famous P. T. Barnum. Mr. G. H. Burling has been in the real estate business with his father, Mr. E. G. Burling, and Mr. G. A. Sacchi, both of whom were in Pine street over fifteen years, and who consummated some of the largest transactions in real estate on Manhattan Island from 1869 to 1873. Both members of the new firm are thoroughly posted in all matters pertaining to real estate. Their office is at No. 3 Pine street.

BUILDING MATERIAL MARKET.

BRICKS.—There does not appear to be much to say either for or against the market for Common Hards. Before our last report had reached the press a sudden change in the weather brought on the commencement of about the most severe "cold snap" experienced this season, with the result to be found in a general embargo upon business. The Hudson soon became practically closed again and shipments were greatly checked from other points, but the absence of supply made no great difference as the quite general suspension of work cut off demand, and even had offerings been made there would have been no outlet for them. In fact it has proven simply a nominal position throughout, and while we allow about old figures to remain for want of a clear basis for any better quotation they must be regarded with many grains of allowance. Some few odd sales to be sure have been made, but at very irregular rates, and not in such form as to be accepted as a true index of what might be obtained under ordinary influences. At the moment the prospect is considered fair for a more favorable condition of the elements, and with the resumption of trade operators are calculating upon about the same features previously suggested. Preparations already in progress indicate that a fair consumption is quite probable and in a large number of cases will compel the purchase of supplies, but on the other hand the quantity of stock awaiting a market is quite as full as any outlet suggested. Manufacturers in most cases are willing to sell, also, but not so anxious as to slaughter their goods and will unquestionably endeavor to keep shipments within such bounds as to prevent any further important depression on values. Pales, it is thought, will stand a fair chance with other grades where quality is good.

LATH.—We cannot discover that there has been any market this week. There appeared to be no open demand from any quarter, and where an effort was made to secure the attention of buyers they either refused to bid at all or named a figure so ridiculously low that the small amount offering was withdrawn, to await a more propitious condition of affairs. Under the circumstances it is simply impossible to say what stock is worth. Some operators have "supposed" the rate to be in the neighborhood of $2.20 up to $2.30 per M, but, of course, it is only a guess, and must be so considered. Some receivers, however, appear to think more money could be obtained should buyers show the least anxiety.

LIME.—Some difficulty in the way of loading at the Eastward and bad weather along the cost have kept the arrivals of Eastern within comparatively small compass. Demand in the meantime proving fair, receivers experienced no difficulty in maintaining former rates, and the market closes quite steady.

LUMBER.—Our local market, both wholesale and retail, has again failed to afford much encouragement to the selling interest, nor is there anything particularly encouraging in the general outlook. A greater amount of lumber of nearly all kinds will certainly be wanted at no distant day, but the swelling of demand must be within much narrower compass than usual at this season of the year, with every evidence to indicate that buyers are likely to carefully solve the problem of handling the smallest possible adjustment of quantity against actual wants before closing negotiations. Accumulated supplies, too, are full enough in both quantity and assortment to admit of quick and comparatively perfect selection, with daily increasing facilities for communication with primary sources at an easy cost for transportation. At other points, not uncommonly to be found drawing upon supplies here at the commencement of spring, the stocks are also said to be quite as full as will be required, and, aside from such export orders as may be obtained, holders will have to depend almost solely upon the regular city trade. Taken all in all the situation affords nothing of a nature to stimulate buoyant expectations and plans appear to be laid accordingly, yet it is hardly to be expected that any further important shrinkage can be obtained, as prices on nearly all grades are now down to about hard pan, and manufacturers will refuse to ship under indications that further shading may become necessary in order to sell.

Eastern Spruce has found just about the same general conditions prevailing as for several weeks past. It would probably be fair to say that no positively natural demand exists, and that when a receiver gets a cargo, good, bad or indifferent, he must do some good trooping around until a customer can be found willing to relieve him of the burden. Where the schedule shows up quality useful for city consumption or something a little better careful management will eventually conclude a sale, and without any serious modification on the old line of prices, but buyers are extremely captious and do not fail to hunt out small faults as a basis for claims on cost. Common and inferior stock therefore simply has to be sold for what it will bring and this is too uncertain to admit of any clear quotation. We have heard of nothing below $13.00 however, and from this the range runs up to say $14.00@14 50 for average random and thence to say $16.00 for the more difficult schedules

White Pine continues only moderately active and the market lacking in general strength. There is a tendency to carry supplies with as much showing of firmness as possible, but when negotiations are brought right to a point of actual business, buyers appear to clip off a little gain here and there and the undercurrent appears to be gradually settling toward an easier basis. This tendency, however, continues to be most marked on coarse grades, as good clear stock is not plenty here, said to be scarce at pretty much all interior points, and in the present temper and character of consumption would be most likely to satisfy the current line of inquiry. In a recent conversation with one of our leading manufacturers of doors, sash and blinds, he informed us that as yet no modification had been made on the grade of stock adapted to his work nor did he expect much if any shading for some time to come. We quote $17.50 @19.00 for West India shipping boards; $28.00@30.00 for South American do.; $14.00@16 00 for box boards, and $16.50@18.00 for extra do.

Yellow Pine finds a few friends who are willing to contract for it against future positively fixed wants and where a special cut is desired, but this is about the only demand, and randoms would still be difficult to place, even if showing quite attractive quality. Indeed, there is a pretty good stock here on which owners would like to be realizing, with a possibility favorable to quite easy terms. The Southern mills are irregularly busy in filling export orders, and while some desire no other work at the moment others are rather anxious to obtain specifications from Northern customers. We quote as follows: Randoms, $18@21.50 per M; Specials, $21@22 do.; Green Flooring Boards, $22@23; Dry do., do., $23@24; Siding Plank, $22@23 do.; Cargoes f. o. b at Atlantic ports, $14@14.50 for rough, and $19@22 for dressed. Cargoes f. o. b. at Gulf ports, $13@14 for rough, and $18@20 for dressed.

Hardwoods are steady in value and a fair demand rules for the best stock, especially of cherry and walnut, though choice ash has favor in many orders. Higher prices are predicted for walnut, but it will be difficult for sellers to make much gain on nine-tenths of the stuff sent here, and in which none but themselves discover much merit. We quote at wholesale rates by car-load about as follows: Walnut, $65@110 per M; ash, $35@40 do.; oak, $30@55 do.; maple, $20@32.50 do.; chestnut, $25@30 do.; cherry, $40 @75 do.; whitewood, $27@35 do., do., elm, $22@25; hickory, $45@52.50 do.

The London Timber Trade's Journal, in a recent report of a public sale, says as follows:

Very little American black walnut sold, though many lots were offered without reserve beyond a low minimum price; neither was any business done in American whitewood cut stuff.

GENERAL LUMBER NOTES.

THE WEST.

The following from Chicago Northwestern Lumberman:

Comparing the general lumber trade during February of this year with the corresponding month in 1883, the conditions have been very much alike, and very unlike the February of 1882. During the February past there has been very little inquiry at Albany or Saginaw for bulk stocks, the sluggishness in this respect being more marked than in 1883. This lack of inquiry for the future gives a somewhat discouraging outlook, and talk of lower prices for common stock is quite freely indulged in, which is emphasized by the prospect of a large log crop.

Looking over the field in its widest scope, it appears as if the brighter prospects for the coming season's demand were in that portion of the country west of the great lakes. Evidences of improvement are everywhere visible, the plans for the future are big with promise. Activity in the demand for wholesale yard stocks in this city is already acknowledged. The building season throughout the Northwest will show satisfactory results. Large areas of recently settled lands west, northwest and southwest, will have to be improved with houses, barns and fences; the settlement of these new lands will necessitate the building of villages and cities.

The march of improvement will go on in the West irrespective of conditions in the East, where less prosperous manufacturing may check the spirit of improvement. It is nearly certain that the demand for lumber to use in the West will be as large as last year, and probably larger.

The work of the loggers on most of the streams is retarded by snow. Of late, snow has been falling every day in some districts, and the accumulation stands in the way of good hauling. Fair work, however, is being done, and probably it would be called good had not the conditions earlier in the season been so extremely favorable. There is no complaint now that there will be a scarcity of logs. Such a complaint always dies away in the distance about this time of year. So many logs will be put in that it will be healthy for the lumber trade if all of them are not cut into lumber. In the Saginaw district, operations in the woods are about concluded, and on some of the streams a state of weather that would compel a suspension of work would not be regretted. There would be logs to spare were the logging season to close to-day.

There is no change to note in prices on hardwoods, and but little change in conditions. Good, thick oak and ash are not in over supply, and sometimes there is a little difficulty in filling orders. Whitewood is an anomaly. Prices are high and low by turns, and sales depend much on the circumstances of the seller, and on the knowledge of the purchaser. Butternut is gaining a good deal of favor as a finishing wood.

The Lumberman and Manufacturer, of Minneapolis, says:

News from all parts of the pineries make it apparent that this is the most favorable winter ever known for logging, and all are taking advantage of it. It is too early in the season to secure estimates of the cut. That logs will be abundant is sure, but as the crop was produced at less cost than the cut of the last year, it is probable that a fair margin may be realized yet. The newspapers of the East and South are talking more cheerfully of the prospects, especially in the South.

CANADA.

The following, from the Quebec Chronicle, differs somewhat from the generally accepted prospect regarding supplies:

Notwithstanding the present winter has been generally favorable for the manufacture of timber and saw logs, the supply for next season of almost all sorts of timber and lumber will be very much less than last year. This is accounted for by the fact that prices have declined to a point that leaves the limit holders and millmen little or no margin of profit, and in many cases a serious loss—hence they prefer leaving the timber standing rather than face the markets with so unsatisfactory an outlook.

There has been six weeks of excellent sleighing in Ohio and Michigan, and all the timber manufactured this winter will be got out; but the recent floods in Ohio have of course put a stop to the supply of oak, which will not exceed 700,000 feet, or considerably less than one-half of what was made last year.

Elm is exceedingly difficult to procure; there is now very little rock elm remaining in Canada large enough for square timber. Owing to the enhanced value of this wood, the supply will be somewhat larger than last year, including about 150,000 feet from Michigan. The supply will be much under the average of the last five years—most of this will be late in arriving in port—and as the stock wintering is extremely small, there will no doubt be an active demand for it early in the season.

RED PINE.—The supply this year will not be over 150,000 feet. Pitch pine seems to have run this description of wood out of consumption in the English markets.

WHITE PINE.—The supply will be about two-thirds of what it was last year in Quare and Waney, but as a large portion of it is made at a long dis ance from navigable waters the chances of it is that the whole of it will not reach Quebec next season.

SAW LOGS.—There is an enormous decrease in the estimated supply of pine logs On the Ottawa, it is said, there will be over 1,500,000 logs less than last year, which at an average of 140 sup. feet to the log, will be equal to 210 million feet of lumber. On the St. Maurice we learn the supply will not exceed one-third of what it was last year. This leads us to believe that prices of pine deals have touched bottom and when we consider that the Montmorenci mills will in all probability be closed up next season, we should not be surprised to soon find an upward movement in prices. If the United States duty on lumber is repealed, there will no doubt be a smart advance, particularly in the lower grades.

Spruce deals are now selling at a price that many millmen say does not cover cost of manufacture, allowing nothing for the wood. We understand the supply will be considerably less than last winter.

METALS.—COPPER—Ingot continues to be offered with moderation and care in order not to over-crowd an unwilling market. Holders, however, would meet an increased demand fairly without adding to the cost until buyers became really anxious. The present distribution is principally on regular trade orders Lake quoted at 14¾@15c., other brands 14@14½c. Manufactured copper in about average demand and ruling fairly steady on price for pretty much all descriptions. We quote as follows: Brazier's Copper, ordinary size, over 16 oz. per sq. foot, 23c. per lb ; do. do. do., 16 oz. and over 12 oz. per sq. foot, 25c. per lb.; do. do., 10 and 12 oz. per sq. foot, 28c. per lb.; do., do., lighter than 10 oz. per sq foot, 30c. per lb.; circles less than 24 inches in diameter, 26c. per lb.; 24 inches in diameter and over, 29c per lb.; segment and pattern sheets, 26c. per lb.; locomotive fire-box sheets, 24c. per lb.; Sheathing Copper, over 12 oz. per sq. foot, 21c. per lb., and Bolt Copper, 24c. per lb. IRON—Scotch Pig does not show a very large accumulation of stock, but there is evidently enough for the indifferent demand prevailing and with one or two brands available to arrive in considerable quantity the market had a rather tame tone. We quote at $20.00@22 50 per ton, according to brand. American pig has also found a somewhat dull market and an absence of good healthy tone. In a general way former values are asked and there is nothing to indicate that any of the first class standard brands could be bought at lower rates, but there is a number of outside and unknown brands offering upon which careful buyers are understood to gain some advantages. Supplies ample. We quote $20.50@21.50 per ton for No. 1 X foundry, $19.00 @20.00 for No. 2 X do do., and $18.00@19 00 for gray forge. Rails have been selling very moderately in this vicinity, but the Western mills are understood to be picking up a fair number of orders at old rates. The quotation is $34 00@35. 0 per ton. according to delivery. Old Rails in light demand and to some extent nominal. Scrap finds a sort of jobbing distribution only and shows no important change in price. We quote at $22 00@22.25 for tee rails, $22.50@23.00 for double heads, $22.00@23.00 for No. 1 wrought scrap ex ship, $23.50@24.00 for selected do., $18.00@19.00 for old car wheels, and $22.00@23.00 for crop ends. Manufactured iron is being delivered to a fair extent on contract, but the new demand not very active and tone of market somewhat unsettled. Supplies in store ample and well assorted. We quote Common Merchant Bar, ordinary sizes, at 2.0@2.10c. from store, and Refined at 2.15@2 5 c.; Rods, round and square, 2 25 @2.50c.; Bands, 2.50@2.60c.; Norway Nail Rods 5¼@ 5½c., and domestic sheet on the basis of 3.00@3.20c. for common Nos. 10@16. Other descriptions at corresponding prices, with 1-10c. less on large lots from cars. LEAD—Domestic Pig has been kept very fairly in hand and a comparatively steady tone preserved on value especially for the small lots handled. The market, however, was by no means active and the movement of supplies could only be increased by making cost more attractive. We quote at about 4@4⅛c. per lb., according to brand and the size of invoice handled. The manufactures of lead are steady and quoted: Bar, 5c.; Pipe, 6¼c.; and Sheet, 7¼c., less the usual discount to the trade; and Tin-lined pipe, 15c.; block tin Pipe, 45c., on same terms. TIN—Pig has declined in value to a considerable extent since our last report under quite a pressure to realize, but of late holders have exhibited less anxiety and the market appears to be toning up again, though without evidences of positive reaction. We quote at 17¾@18⅛ for Straits and Australian, 19¼@19⅜ for English, and 19¼ @19⅜ for Banca. Tin plates have not been active and buyers very generally were inclined to confine their orders to the close limit of immediate wants, and a somewhat feverish tone was noticeable on values for all grades. Supplies ample. We quote I. C. Charcoal, third class assortment, $5.35@5.35 for Allaway grade, and $6.10@6.15 for Melyn grade; for each additional X add $1.25 and $1.50 respectively; I. C. Coke, $4.65@4.67½ for B. V. Grade; $4.85@4 87½ for J. B. grade; Charcoal terne, $4.75@5.10 for Alaway and Dean grades 14x20; $9.75@10.25 for do. 20x28; Coke terne, $4.50@4 55 for Glais grade 14x20, and $9.55@9.60 for do. 20x28—all in round lots. Spelter has undergone no change worthy of note, about an average demand prevailing and prices ruling fairly steady. We quote at 4¼@5¼c. for domestic and foreign, according to brand, quantity, etc. Sheet Zinc has fair trade demand at steady rates and is quoted at 6@7c., according to quantity, quality, delivery, etc.

NAILS.—Business has been of a somewhat irregular character and showing more or less caution on the part of many buyers. Still on home account and export orders holders average to get rid of quite a fair aggregate amount from week to week and to maintain a pretty steady position. Supplies hold out well, however, indeed the quantity appears to be a little beyond expectations and checks buoyancy. Most of the business is at $2.60@2.65 per keg for 10d. to 60d., but large invoices and car lots sell 5@10c. per keg lower.

PAINTS, OILS, ETC.—The demand for paints and colors remains about as before in general volume but has been somewhat irregular, and to a portion of the trade, quite disappointing. Stocks, however, appear to be very well under control and seldom, if at all, offered with an intention of forcing sales and as a natural sequence values retain a fair degree of steadiness. The assortments available are good. Linseed oil has been selling fairly, and the market remains under good enough control to permit of well sustained values. We quote at 56@58c. for domestic, and 58@ 59c. for foreign. Spirits turpentine has found a dull, slow market with the tone barely steady at 36@38c. per gallon, according to size of invoice.

PITCH AND TAR.—The demand of about average form and measure, with no evidences of a scarcity of stock and the old prices ruling. We quote pitch $2.25 @2.30 per bbl., and tar $2 50@3.00 do., according to quantity, quality and delivery.

MORTGAGES.

NOTE.—The arrangement of this list is as follows: The first name is that of the mortgagor, the next that of the mortgagee. The description of the property then follows, then the date of the mortgage, the time for which it was given, and the amount. The general dates used as headings are the dates when the mortgage was handed into the Register's office to be recorded.

Whenever the letters "P. M." occur, preceded by the name of a street in these lists of mortgages, they mean that it is a Purchase Money Mortgage, and for fuller particulars see the list of transfers under the corresponding date.

JUDGMENTS.

In these lists of judgments the names alphabetically arranged, and which are first on each line, are those of the judgment debtor. The letter (D) means judgment for deficiency. (*) means not summoned. (†) signifies that the first name is fictitious, real name being unknown. Judgments entered during the week, and satisfied before day of publication, do not appear in this column but in list of Satisfied Judgments.

J. T. LINDSEY, Business Manager.

The proposed building law does not seem to be making much headway at Albany. Some difficulty appears to have arisen in regard to the Board of Arbitration and the power to be vested in the hands of the Superintendent of Buildings. That official at present has large discretionary powers, and it would be well should the law be made more specific so as to strip the office of the almost unlimited authority which it now confers upon the holder. It is stated in more than one quarter that Inspector Esterbrook will not long be retained in his present capacity. No doubt many builders in this city would hail with satisfaction his removal, but are they sure that he may not be succeeded by a politician who will work the office for all it is worth? It is, of course, imperative that the law should be so amended as to define the duties of the Superintendent in certain cases, but should it not be so amended, who is to guarantee the builders of this city from being harrassed ten times as much as they complain of being at present? The board of experts proposed is the only safeguard against any abuse of power, wittingly or otherwise, by the present or future superintendent. This body would be composed of six experts, to whom architects, builders and others would be able to appeal against the decisions of the inspector should they feel aggrieved thereat. To provide against frivolous appeals a deposit of twenty-five dollars would be required, to be forfeited should the decision be against the appellant. Such a provision should undoubtedly be embodied in the new measure, as it would ensure the owners of property in this city from being unnecessarily harrassed by the Inspector of Buildings, be he erratic and competent or incapable and corrupt.

To show the glorious uncertainty of our laws, a case or rather two cases have occurred which ought to make our judiciary the laughing stock of the country. The Western Union Telegraph Company is testing its rights of way in several States of the Union, among others Massachusetts and Illinois. Of course, in each instance the case was tried in a United States court. In these two States a decision has been rendered during the past week. The facts in each case were precisely alike, but in one court the decision was in favor of the telegraph company and in the other against it. If the press would only emphasize the frequent folly of our courts, their waste of time and money, and the needless expense of the legal machinery of this country, they would be doing a public service. The appalling disclosures of the results of receiverships in the cases of corporations attract no attention from the press. The point has never been made that England can hang its murderers within a couple of months after the commission of a crime, but even so obvious a murderer as Guiteau was allowed to live a year after his deliberate murder of the chief magistrate of the country in open day and in the presence of scores of witnesses. The legal fetich is still worshipped by the American press and public.

John H. Sherwood, John D. Crimmins, Edward King, Daniel R. Kendall and Simon Sterne have organized a company to be called the "North Central Park Improvement Company," which, with a capital of $100,000, intends to erect certain buildings on Eighth avenue, above the park, which will form a new departure in elevated road travelling in this city. These gentlemen intend to erect one or more houses at one of the corners extending from One Hundred and Fifteenth to One Hundred and Eighteenth streets. The peculiarity of these houses is that they will contain elevators which can be used by persons who wish to ride up or down upon the Metropolitan Road. The One Hundred and Sixteenth street station is now sixty feet from the street below, and, of course, is a severe strain upon women, and sick and aged persons. The elevator, however, will make it the most popular station of any on the other sections of the west or east side roads. There are rumors that, as soon as the trouble between the Manhattan and Metropolitan is arranged, that the Manhattan Company will acquire title to the houses adjoining all stations, both on the east and west side, with a view to improving them and putting in elevators for the use of passengers, as well as the occupants of the houses. It will be remembered that a scheme similar to this was suggested in THE RECORD AND GUIDE a short time since. At any rate, the elevator at the corner of One Hundred and Sixteenth street and Eighth avenue is a fixed fact.

Are We Drifting into War?

The Lasker business has been a huge blunder from the start. The resolutions should never have been passed by our Congress. It was taking sides in a party contest within a nation with which we were on friendly terms. Then the State Department is to blame. It published Minister Sargent's private dispatches about Germany's action on the pork question. These were free and easy comments upon the German government, which is permissible in all ministers, but which are held sacred by the home government. Of course, the publication caused Mr. Sargent to be put on an unfriendly footing with Bismarck, and now this same Secretary Frelinghuysen adds insult to injury by insinuating in his dispatch that Bismarck was impertinent and that he did not represent the German nation. Bismarck's return of the resolutions was courteous in terms, and no fault could be found with the wording of his dispatch. Representative Hiscock's resolution in the House was also insulting to Prince Bismarck. All this crimination and recrimination for nothing would not amount to much if the United States were in a position to resent insult or was a naval power of the meanest pretensions. But while we have all the conceit of a really powerful nation in war, we are, as a matter of fact, pitiably and contemptibly weak as a naval power. We are utterly unprotected. If anybody wishes to know how powerless we are, let them read the article on the subject in the March number of the North American Review. Bismarck could capture our whole coast, including Washington and New York, within six weeks after a declaration of war. We have neither navy nor guns, nor could we get any defences for our harbors in less than three years. As the writer in the North American points out, our torpedo system, which is our vague panacea for foreign aggression, is utterly useless without guns to protect torpedo works from the assaults of the enemy. We are actually drifting into a war in which we will be utterly defenceless. A treaty of peace is about to be concluded between Germany and Russia. There is also existing treaties between Germany, Austria, Italy and Spain. France will be powerless to help us, and England will only be too glad to see the great Republic crippled and humiliated. Of course, Germany's only object would be plunder, and she could probably exact as heavy an indemnity from the United States as she did from France. If we escape a war, it will not be because of any exercise of wisdom on the part of the State Department, Congress, or the American press.

The Policy to Pursue.

Every intelligent business man will agree that the first duty of American citizens is to amend the constitution so as to nullify the recent dangerous decision of the Supreme Court giving Congress power to create fiat money, or perhaps, to speak more accurately, to issue any amount of paper as a legal tender without demanding its convertibility into gold or silver coin.

But so far the comments of the eastern press have been singularly unwise. They have discredited the decision, and pointed out the tremendous evil it will some day bring upon the country. But with incredible folly these same journals have denounced the use of silver as well as inconvertible paper, placing them indeed together as evils of equal magnitude. Now this will not do. The United States is a bi-metallic nation. If its people had to choose between silver and gold they would accept the former, which is the money of all mankind and required by them daily, whereas gold is the money of the banking and commercial classes alone and rarely finds its way into the hands of the people. Nine hundred millions of the thirteen hundred millions who live on this planet use silver exclusively, and know nothing of gold. The three hundred millions who dwell in the countries having the gold unit also use silver largely in their retail trade. Hence, it is the supremest folly to suppose that the indispensable white metal must give way to the yellow metal so rarely used by the children of men. The policy as well as the interest of the United States is to be bi-metallic. The extension of our trade is in the direction of Central and South America and Asia, which are inhabited by exclusively silver using people, while it is also our interest to maintain our present trade with the gold using countries. Despite the united protests of the mono-metallic East, the United States has determined to uphold the equal use of the two metals. We called two conferences which met at Paris to get other nations to agree to international bi-metallism, and there is not any—the slightest—evidence that Congress will pay any heed to the demands of the eastern press discrediting silver. The wild statements made in our papers, unsupported by any facts, would make the person uttering them in the House or Senate a laughing stock.

If the eastern press is in earnest in discrediting the Supreme Court's decision and getting it reversed it must make common cause with other believers in metallic money. They have been trying for years to discredit the silver policy of the government, but have utterly failed. If they would succeed in the war against fiat money they must call to their aid the friends of the white metal. We repeat, the war on silver by the New York papers, who are very justly alarmed at the legal tender decision, is a practical folly of the most obvious kind.

Amending the Land Transfer Laws.

There is a bill before the Legislature authorizing Governor Cleveland to appoint five commissioners to take into consideration the laws relating to the searching and the conveyancing of real estate. The commission is to have no power, but is simply to examine the various propositions made by the Land Transfer Reform Association and other bodies, with a view of recommending to the next Legislature a measure or series of measures which would insure more certain titles, reduce the present exorbitant charges and permit the rapid transfer of real property. The session is more than half over and nothing has yet been done in this vital matter. All real estate dealers should insist upon their representatives considering the subject. Our Real Estate Exchange will never be what it should be until this reform is effected. The object to be kept in view is to make real estate as available an asset as bonds or stocks for call loans at banks. It would wonderfully stimulate transactions if this were done and add largely to the floating capital of the country. If the legal fraternity oppose this reform, as they probably will, then they must expect their real estate business taken from them by the title companies which have proved so efficient in Philadelphia and Baltimore.

Facts I Facts II Facts III

The controversy about the coinages of silver, which is at present engaging so much attention on the part of the press, is being conducted in a somewhat hysterical and highly emotional manner. Silver is denounced in every possible way; but there is an extraordinary paucity of facts and figures in the newspapers which predict the direst evils from the continued coinage of the silver dollar. The following facts, however, carry their own moral. Business men would do well to read them carefully and decide for themselves, without reference to the dismal rhetoric of the daily press:

		Per head.
Silver in circulation in France	$540,000,000	$14 59
Gold ditto	873,000,000	23 59
Silver in circulation in United States at resumption, 1879, with population about 50,000,000	106,000,000	2 12
Ditto in 1884, with population about 55,000,000	248,000,000	4 50
(Increase, $2.38 per capita, or 112 per cent.)
Gold in country at resumption, 1879, with population 50,000,000	278,000,000	5 50
Ditto in 1884, with population 55,000,000	600,000,000	10 90
(Increase, $5.40, or 98 per cent.)
Total standard silver dollars in United States, 1884.	160,000,000	2 90
Ditto in 1896, should $2,000,000 monthly continue to be coined	544,000,000
Which, with an estimated population of about 80,000,000, is equal to		6 80

It will thus be seen that whereas the amount of silver in circulation in the United States is only about $4.50 per capita, in France it is $14.59—notwithstanding that the population of the former is eighteen millions more than the latter. On the other hand, while the amount of silver has increased per head, since resumption, $2.38, the increase of gold has been $5.40. This in itself ought to be sufficient to meet the baseless charges of those who oppose the further coinage of the silver dollar; and as for the attempted scare about gold exports it is absurd, in the face of so large a sum as $600,000,000 in gold being in the country. Beside, should the coinage of silver continue at the rate of $2,000,000 per month, it will take till the year 1896 before the United States will have as much silver as France now has, although the population of the former will then probably be double that of the latter. What have the opponents of silver coinage to say to this?

James McHenry is criticising our American railway system with some show of justice, even though all he says may be insincere. He certainly has managed to invest very badly for his clients. He claims to have put $100,000,000 of English capital into well-devised American railway enterprises, but that the result in every case was unfortunate for his clients. There is a suspicion on this side of the water that McHenry's plans were not quite clean, and that the bad bargains he made for his English investing friends did not impoverish himself, but quite the contrary. But he makes one good point. Why should there be so little travelling in this country? The daily average between New York and Chicago, he says, is about one hundred and fifty persons, going one way of course. He thinks this figure might be immensely augmented if fares were reduced. Why should a barrel of flour cost only 70c., when the cheapest price for a passenger is $16? The flour requires handling, which the passenger does not. It is true that a car will contain more pounds weight of flour than of human beings, but, as McHenry points out, four or five dollars for a passenger ticket from here to Chicago would pay a handsome profit. Our enormous city traffic is due to the five-cent fares, and were the great trunk lines to transport people at anything like street-car prices the railroads would all be more profitable than they are.

Municipal Architecture.

To see how far the intellectual culture of our ruling classes lags behind the best that the community affords, it is only necessary to make a comparison of the common run of our municipal architecture with the better class of private buildings. How many municipal buildings are there which are up to their level, or which even have the appearance of having been designed by educated architects? Mr. Withers' Court House and jail, in Sixth avenue, is a happy exception. So is Mr. Eidlitz's extension of the new Court House. So, up to a certain point, is Mr. Smyth's—if it be Mr. Smyth's—Jefferson Market, which does nothing towards completing what should have been an artistic group, and which in itself shows a thoughtless notion that Gothic architecture consists in a certain set of forms, applied with or without meaning, but which also shows a real acquaintance with the forms and a workmanlike facility of design. The same thing may be said of the new Fulton Market.

But these are all rare exceptions to the rule. The constant municipal demand is for school houses and police stations, and there is not one of either class of buildings which shows the handiwork of a trained designer. They are architecturally on the same level with the rows of tenement houses run up by speculative builders, which require no more than a draughtsman who knows enough to reproduce the forms given in the Stair Builders' Guide.

This fact is particularly discreditable to the Board of Education, whose members are fondly imagined to be, or at least the theory of their position requires that they should be, themselves rather better educated than the average citizen. It is not asking very much of a man, in the direction of polite culture, to ask that he should perceive the difference between the work of an educated architect and the work of a speculative builder's draughtsman. It is true, that if the client is bumptious as well as ignorant, and desires that his own crude notions shall be expressed in a building for the erection of which he is officially responsible, his bumptiousness is likely to be more obstructed by an educated architect than by a draughtsman who will draw what he is told to draw, without pointing out the folly of the scheme. And we suspect that is the real reason why the Board of Education does not employ architects.

Whatever the explanation may be, the fact remains that there is not a public school house in New York, from the terrible Normal College down, which is even a decently creditable piece of architecture. As for the police stations, they are architecturally nothing but tenement house fronts, with no attempt towards a characteristic or expressive treatment. In this case, the explanation probably is that the Police Commissioners no more trouble themselves about architecture than they do about the efficiency of the police, their time being completely absorbed in statesmanship. At any rate, there is not a police station in the city which was designed by an architect.

Some injudicious praises in the daily papers of a station house lately finished in Old slip for the headquarters of the First Precinct induced the hope that this might constitute an exception to the rule. Unhappily it is an unusually atrocious example of the rule, being in fact more offensive than the ordinary station house in the degree in which it is bigger and more pretentious. The internal disposition and the arrangements for ventilation and sanitation are fondly dwelt upon by the reporters. We are willing to believe that the station house is all that can be desired in these respects, and that practically it serves its purpose admirably. But our business is with its architecture, which is worse than a minus quantity being positively offensive.

This is the more a pity because there was here a real opportunity to make a good building, instead of the mere street front of which the ordinary police station architecturally consists. The new station house occupies the site of the former market, abutting on streets upon all its four sides, and 150 feet in length by 30 in width. Besides the quarters of the men and the office, such a building comprises a large audience-room, and a place of detention for prisoners. On such a site and with such requirements an architect would have found no difficulty in producing an impressive piece of architecture. The present building is at once mean and monotonous and grossly vulgar. The only indication of anything that can be called composition is the raising of the central third a story above the extremities. As neither the centre nor the wings are visibly roofed, this amounts to nothing, nor is it made effective by the fact that the windows in the central building are of a different form from those in the ends. The treatment is symmetrical, and the end which contains the prison is precisely like the end which contains the audience-room, except that the windows in the former are barred, and the lower parts of the openings bricked up. This is the one detail in the whole work, except the sign over the door, which gives any clue to the purposes of the structure. The detail throughout is as bad as bad can be, not misjudged or extravagant or minute, or even affected, but thoroughly incompetent and illiterate, so as to put the designer out of court as an architect. The segmental arches are stilted two or three feet above their springing, so as to make them look as uncouth and uneasy as possible. There is an atrocious tin cornice, and above it a balustrade between outrageous pinnacles, apparently composed also of painted and sanded metal. The whole is simply a pretentious specimen of the florid tenement house, which is probably the most vulgar type of building in the civilized world, and for that matter more vulgar than any type of building in the uncivilized world.

The new station is, indeed, not worth looking at, nor in itself worth talking about. In fact criticism of it for its own sake would not only be a waste of time and space, but would have a certain element of wanton cruelty. Dr. Johnson justly observes of the character of Sir Andrew Ague-Cheek that it "is in a great measure that of natural fatuity, and is therefore not the proper prey of a satirist." The defects of this work probably do not arise from general incapacity, but merely from innocence of any training in the art of architecture; but the architecture is none the less completely fatuous. If this were a private building we should not dream of saying anything about it. But the discredit of such a work falls not upon the incompetent person who does it, and who probably does the best he knows how, but upon the department which employs him, and upon the whole municipality, which is thus shown either not to know or not to care for the difference between trained skill and hopeless incompetency in the design of public buildings.

Our Prophetic Department.

INTERVIEWER—I see, Sir Oracle, that THE RECORD AND GUIDE reports a very excellent demand for real estate and a steadiness in rents, not only in New York, but in Boston, Philadelphia, Chicago, and in fact all our large centres of population. Is not this curious in view of the liquidation which has been going on in stocks and in all general business?

SIR ORACLE—If one reasoned a priori, it would seem incredible that realty should be in demand at advancing prices, when all other objects of barter should be slow of sale and at reduced figures; but as has been frequently pointed out, this same fact has been noticed in every speculative era. The first revival of business is felt at the Stock Exchange, the fever of speculation afterwards shows itself in manufactured products, then in raw material, labor next makes its demand for increased compensation, and last of all land, real property is taken in turn as the favorite investment of people who have money to speculate with. Land is the last to come up and the last to go down in price, and it often does not commence to enhance in value until the stock market is depressed.

INTERVIEWER—What theory will account for what seems an erratic and unnatural speculation in real estate, when the stock market has experienced a panic and all commodities are so depressed?

SIR O.—I have a theory about it but then business men should care more for facts than theories. Speculative eras are generally based upon large additions to the currency; naturally stocks which are ready of sale are first affected by the stimulation of the added circulating medium. When prices begin to seem high in stocks, then the speculator ventures into general business, and so the fire, as it were, spreads from exchange to exchange, until finally real estate is reached. In the meantime the reaction has come and is under way in stocks and general business. The investor of money, being disappointed in other fields, turns to real estate and says here at least is something which must always have value in a growing country, it is fixed in quantity, and however much depressed the times, a growing population will eventually give it added value. But after all, you cannot escape fate; the same causes which advance and depress stocks operate on realty, which goes down as well as goes up when its time comes.

INTERVIEWER—I judge you would advise people to sell on the present active market.

SIR O.—Yes, if they have large loads to carry, but there has not been much of a boom in real estate, and I do not see how anyone can miss in buying realty in the centres of New York or Brooklyn, or in the lines of improvement. New York is growing so rapidly that investors who can buy without going in debt cannot make a mistake by securing improved realty or vacant lots in the line of immediate improvement.

INTERVIEWER—How is it stocks which seem in so little demand, and with so many influences to oppress the market, continue not only firm but almost buoyant? Ought not stocks from the outlook be a sale?

SIR O.—Sometime this spring I look for lower figures, perhaps next month, but our friends, the bears, have oversold the market and it corners itself with very little manipulation. The fact is stocks are cheap at present prices. If governments are worth 3 per cent. at par then bonds and stocks paying 6 and even 8 per cent. and selling below par are very cheap, and this is what is the matter with the market. Values tell even in the Stock Exchange.

INTERVIEWER—Do you think that our governments are worth as much as 3 per cent. at par?

SIR O.—Frankly, I do not, nor do I believe in the attempt of Mr. O. B. Potter to turn our debt into 2½ per cents. Suppose the Potter bill passed and the main portion of our debt was floated at 2½ per cent., this would be another cruel blow at the beneficiaries of trust funds. Before the debt created by our civil war was in existance, the widow and the orphan had plenty of securities which gave them 6 and even 7 per cent., but to stimulate speculation in Wall street, the whole power of the nation was employed to advance the price of government securities and reduce the interest. The result has been to impoverish a helpless class of the community. Suppose we should drift into a war with Germany, see what would immediately occur. Our 3 per cents or our 2½ per cents, should the Potter bill pass, would sell at 75. This would further impoverish the beneficiaries of trust funds, and it would almost bankrupt the note department of our national banks, that is their notes based upon the par of the 2½ per cent. bond would probably sell at a discount of 25 per cent. Mr. Vanderbilt was quite right when he said in a recent interview that a good railway bond or stock was of more intrinsic value than a government bond. The government itself might be discredited or overthrown, but railway property would continue to exist, and its rights would be regarded by any government in power.

When Hugh J. Hastings died we did what seemed an ungracious act in telling the truth about him. He was not the kind of man to be honored while living or dead, and President Arthur, who came from Washington to attend his funeral, knew all about him. The Commercial Advertiser, of which he was one of the proprietors, never paid a dividend while he controlled it, though it made reasonably large profits. After his death, it was discovered that he owed the stockholders a sum sufficiently large to pay them two hundred and fifty dollars on each share of stock. Fortunately for the stockholders there was money enough in Hastings' name at the Union Trust Company to pay them their dividends.

Isaac H. Bromley was made editor of the Commercial after Hastings' death, but he cuts very poor figure. He gained his reputation by his ability as an after-dinner speaker and as an occasional writer of humorous articles for the Tribune. President Arthur made him the editor of the Commercial Advertiser, and appointed him one of the Union Pacific government directors. His habits unfitted him for the direction of a journal. The Commercial has now passed into the hands of Parke Godwin and his friends, and the chief editor will probably be Mr. Henry Sedley, who is a correct but somewhat ponderous writer. Sedley's first wife was a sister of Mrs. Forest, the wife of the famous actor.

S. V. White, who figured in the Lackawanna deal, has had a very active career in the stock and mining markets. He is a praying deacon in Mr. Beecher's church. But this did not prevent him from being an associate with George Roberts in all his peculiar mining enterprises. He got up several deals in Hukill before Roberts came east. He dealt largely in the State Line properties, which were so heavy a loss to investors in mines. He was in Chrysolite and Little Chief, and used his position on the Stock Exchange to list Robinson after that mine had been gutted. It sold at twelve dollars a share, through manipulation, when it was not worth one dollar. Mr. White has the reputation of always making money; it is the other fellows who lose Still he is no doubt a very pious, honest gentleman, but the kind of success he has had has made people, perhaps unjustly, suspicious of him.

A new club is being organized, or rather two new clubs, the constitution of which is peculiar. One of the clubs is to be located in New York, the other in London. The New York one to be called the American-English club and the one in London the Anglo-American. It is understood hat the English Club is already organized and the American has already three hundred members on its roll. Each club is to be composed half of Englishmen and half of Americans. When a New York member goes to London he can have the privileges of the club there at a certain rate per month to be fixed upon and vice versa. The membership will be largely composed of gentlemen who frequently cross the ocean. It has, however, some larger ideals than mere sociability. Premier Gladstone is a member of the London Club and many of the members will be leaders in politics and society in both cities, with a view of maintaining the good feeling between the two nations.

Speaking of clubs, why is it they are made so unnecessarily costly? So far as eating is concerned a member can live as cheaply at Delmonico's or the Brunswick. There is some concession in price of the wines but the tendency of all our clubs is to make them more and more expensive. It is a rule in all the first-class clubs that cards shall never be used but once, and new packs have to be paid for every day or evening. The selling of the once used cards is generally a perquisite of the steward. A New York club may be described as a place where gentlemen pay a high price for meeting each other with the understanding that they shall pay more for everything they get than in any other place. An increase of dues is constantly taking place in clubs, but never an instance has been known of a reduction in entrance fees or yearly or quarterly dues.

Home Decorative Notes.

—Ideas of utility and beauty should so blend themselves that nothing will appear thoroughly useful that does not have the sense of beauty satisfied; so in our rage for eccentricities we should not allow ourselves to be carried to the extreme of disregarding such necessary characteristics as utility combined with beauty.

—Dresden ware is in great favor for figure pieces, statuettes and candelabra.

—Toilette sets of English crystal cut in newer patterns than the diamond so long in vogue are shown in low round bottles colored in green, red and yellow.

—Among the latest novelties in floral decoration is the rustic straw hat filled with roses and suspended by means of cardinal or blue satin ribbons, the outside of the hat should also be trimmed with clusters of flowers.

—A novel table is a shield covered with plush and supported by four spears.

—Exquisitely beautiful are the porcelain paintings copied from celebrated pictures, they are richly framed and mounted on easels of brass o. teak wood, several choice subjects were noticed at Camerdon & Foster's, of Broadway and Twenty-seventh street.

—An exquisite small table-cover is of royal blue plush, edged with a border of cream-colored silk, embroidered with the wild rose design in ribbon work, and with the leaves formed of embroidery silk.

—White felting should cover the dining table if the ordinary white damask is used, and red, with the open work momie cloth cover.

—Madras muslin forms a charming covering for sofa-pillows; outline the groupings of flowers in filoselle, not too heavy, but enough to accent them somewhat. India silk is also a very satisfactory covering.

—The fancy-shaped tables with pine tops and ebonized or mahogany supports may be transformed into exceedingly attractive pieces of furniture by using velveteen, which forms a very good substitute for plush; finish about the edge with ornamental fringe or a band of figured plush, outlined with gold cord.

—The waste embroidery silk, put up in ounce packages at a much cheaper rate than ordinary silk, is invaluable for decorating table covers or for the crazy quilts.

—Very choice pieces of statuary are now on exhibition at Tiffany's, a very magnificent statuette is called "The First Dream of Love," by the late Edward Thaxter; "After Supper," by Pietro Calvi, is very beautiful and pleasing, a duplicate of this piece has been ordered by the Emperor of Austria.

—Silk shades made in the shape of an umbrella and covered with full ruchings of the same color, and the edge finished with Oriental lace are much sought after and admired for placing on the tall brass standard lamps.

—A square of fine linen with drawn work and embroidered with tiny clover blossoms and sprays in the natural colors of the flowers gives a dainty and inviting appearance to the square sofa pillows.

—Ladies' cloth forms an excellent foundation for embroidery.

—The pretty little bellows so rapidly puffing themselves into favor afford a dainty method of dusting priceless, valuable and invaluable bric-a-brac. Those that are decorated with the tiger-lily patterns in orange, brown, yellow and gold thread, with dark green leaves and brown stems thrown upon rich brown satin are extremely effective, those formed of wood and painted in oils with some graceful floral design are also in favor. A variety of these articles are now to be seen at The Society of Decorative Art, No. 28 East Twenty-first street.

—Fashion, with its many freaks and fancies, now decrees that the white spread and shams should retire for awhile and substitutes the round bolster and spread of silk or satin. The mosaic patch-work quilts are in high favor with round bolsters covered with silk or satin of a color harmonizing with the work.

—The large dressing mirrors may be very effectively draped with plush, lined with silk, the colors either matching or contrasting with the paper and furniture, the Madras muslin also forms an exceedingly soft and graceful drapery.

—A very handsome hanging cabinet is covered with terra cotta plush, and having several irregular shelves, each one decorated with a handsome railing in fine open brass work, and containing compartments large enough to hold moderately sized pieces of bric-a-brac.

—Brass tortured into all possible shapes, worked like lace, sculptured and engraved, baffles the workman and purchaser who fails to recognize at a first glance what use it should be put to, card trays, frames, racks for newspapers and letters, combining the attributes of the hunting field and tennis nets surrounded by the implements of the game, are among the most attractive and useful designs.

—A novel hand screen is constructed by taking the fancy colored Japanese bottle having the long neck and placing therein an open fan of bright colors and gilt, it makes a decorative article for the table as well as a useful one to place between the reader and the glare of the evening lamp.

—The demand for art embroideries is now greater in this country than ever before, thereby giving employment to thousands of women who understand how to use their needles deftly, many very beautiful designs for table covers, curtain bands, sofa cushions and asteful smaller pieces of embroidery are furnished by Haas & Weiland, of 1259 Broadway; a very elegant plush screen was noticed decorated with geometrical designs in soft Persian tints, a garnet satteen table scarf with the Japanese ring pattern was very effectively worked up with the fleur de lis design in plush of various colors, tastefully blended and outlined with gold cord, the ends were finished with plush cones.

A Projected Harbor Improvement.

Among the various plans suggested for terminal improvements for the harbor of New York is one of great magnitude, with which the name of Senator McPherson, of New Jersey, has been associated. It is a scheme for utilizing the large space, now covered by shoal water, extending from the ferry slips of the New Jersey Central Railroad as far southward as Constable's Point, west of Robbin's Reef.

New Jersey possesses the skeleton of the largest city in the world. Hoboken, Jersey City, Newark, Elizabeth, Rahway, Perth Amboy and South Amboy are scattered along a water front reaching in a direct line about twenty-five miles from its most northern limits at the depot of the West Shore Railroad, and the entire distance is destined to be eventually covered by a continuous population. But the growth of this great district has been retarded by the unfortunate condition of its navigable waters. While offering according to superficial appearances along the shores of Hudson River, New York Bay, the Kill von Kull, Newark Bay, the Passaic and Hackensack Rivers, Staten Island Sound and the Raratan River, more than thirty-five miles of available water front, these waters abound in shoal places, and can be cheaply utilized only over very limited sections. Not more than ten miles are ready for the immediate service of a first-class commerce, and this space is found at the two extremities of the district, a portion on the Hudson River and the remainder at the lower end of Staten Island Sound and on the Raratan River. New York Bay is obstructed from the use of our New Jersey neighbors by many square miles of rock and Hudson River sediment. Newark Bay is shallow even in the narrow channel that affords a passage for third-class shipping, and much of Staten Island Sound requires dredging before it can be made of the highest utility to commerce. This is the reason why this before mentioned skeleton city in New Jersey is now composed of a great number of widely dispersed and partly ossified members, and why many years must elapse before it can be consolidated and made into the great metropolis, the largest city on the continent, once seen by ex-Governor Parker in his vision of the future.

But our New Jersey neighbors should have a fair chance. We wisely limit the power of Congress to the improvement of general channels of communication, and leave to individual or local agencies the detail of harbor improvements, from which a direct pecuniary profit can be derived. But it is sometimes very difficult to decide just where the line that separate these distinct duties should be drawn. It is never the duty of Congress to refuse its co-operation when such co-operation is necessary to prevent the waste that follows upon conditions that render private enterprise impossible. It is not the duty of Congress, for instance, to refuse to keep the channel of Newark Bay deep enough for the passage of the largest ocean steamers when such improvement would encourage the construction of private piers extending from the shore line to this deep water channel, and greatly enlarge the commercial resources of the neighborhood.

The suggested improvement for New York Bay consists of a broad and deep ship channel from Constable's Point, at the entrance of the Kill von Kull, about one mile west of Robbin's Reef light, to the mouth of the Hudson River at Communipaw, passing to the left of Bedloe's and Ellis Islands, and opening into the river opposite the Battery. This would leave, over most of the distance, about one mile of shoal water between this new channel and the New Jersey shore, and, at the southern end at least, still another mile before reaching the deep water of the bay.

The advantages of this work will be readily seen. It is two miles, at present, from the New Jersey shore to deep water, and though this distance might be bridged over by piers, the bottom, composed largely of rock impossible to pile and difficult to excavate, is unfavorable. Such works would prove too costly to be found profitable, and they would never be undertaken by individuals or by companies with less capital than some Standard Oil or Pennsylvania Railroad Company, not just the agencies whose interests we are trying to promote. But reduce the distance by one-half, and though the water front might still fall into the hands of the great corporations, the general fate of such property in New Jersey, there would still remain a chance for individuals of enterprise. Within the space between Communipaw and Constable's Point there will be room enough for twenty-five piers, each 400 feet broad, separated by channels of a corresponding width. Along these piers warehouses can be built and railway tracks extended, and the amount of wharf-room which they will offer, at a rough estimate, will be equal to almost half the present pier and bulkhead line in the harbor of New York. This should offer a sufficiently brilliant prospect for our New Jersey cousins, a branch of the family a little too prone to think that they are "sat down upon" by their New York relatives.

But right here it will be necessary to enter a caveat. The construction of this ship channel is a very proper work for Congress. Such a water way will offer a direct and interior line of communication between the Hudson River and the Kill von Kull, and otherwise relieve the commerce of the harbor; but only in this aspect can it be regarded as a suitable undertaking for Congress. The lateral channels which will be necessary to give the improvement its highest utility will furnish occupation for an entirely different agency. God helps those who help themselves. We should seriously object to seeing the Federal government enter into competition with the private companies and individuals who, in South Brooklyn, are engaging in enterprises of almost equal magnitude from which they expect to draw an advantage and profit for both themselves and their city.

But, with a proper understanding of the just limitations of Congressional authority, this is a work that should be encouraged. New Jersey has never received very liberal appropriations for harbor improvements from the Federal government. She has never asked them, except in a very small way, an abstention for which, probably, she is more to be censured than praised, and it is no more than right that Congress should aid in removing some of the natural disabilities that afflict her water front.

This improvement will be one to add greatly to the grandeur and resources of our harbor, and it will aid also in placing us at an advantage over all other ports on the continent, a pardonably selfish object which our neighbors in competing seacoast cities must forgive us for holding in view.

Realty at Albany.

ALBANY, March 14.

The various measures affecting realty and building interests, as well as improvements in New York, are increasing at a rapid rate, and action is being had on those heretofore introduced. The Senate Committee on Cities on Thursday reported the bill revising and amending the building law for New York, so as to make the law relative to buildings applicable to the wants, necessities and restrictions required for the metropolis of to-day, instead of the city as it existed fifty years ago. The committee made several amendments to the bill, the most important of which was the elimination of the section creating a new Department of Buildings. In its place they inserted a provision for the enforcement of the law by the Bureau of Buildings as now constituted in the Fire Department. The effort for the retention of the patronage, under the bill in that department, has thus been successful.

The same committee also reported the bill to regulate the height of flats and tenements hereafter erected in accordance with the width of the streets and avenues on which the building faces, the limit being 70 feet high on streets 60 feet wide, and 80 feet high on streets or avenues more than 60 feet wide. Under it no building to be used for dwelling purposes can be constructed over 80 feet high to the top of cornices and mansards.

The same committee also reported a bill sent here by the German Association on the east side, restricting the power of the Superintendent of Buildings in connection with the enforcement of the use of fire escapes. The propriety of this bill is very questionable. It has been advanced at the request of Senator Daly's German constituents, who claim to have been annoyed about the introduction of fire escapes by Mr. Esterbrooke.

The bill giving authority to Commissioners of the Sinking Fund to enter into contract with a corporation for the introduction of water, through an independent system of mains, pipes and hydrants, for the extinguishment of fires and for sanitary purposes, has been amended to suit the local authorities and reported in the Assembly. It has been disconnected with the Ramapo Act of last year and made an independent measure. The plan proposed is a tower into which water is to be pumped from the rivers and distributed to all parts of the city, to be used for putting out fires and flushing the gutters through a separate system of mains and pipes, the city to pay only for the amount of water used, the expense of constructing the works and laying the pipes to be incurred by the company contracted with. The bill in its present shape meets with favor, and its passage is more than probable. When constructed it will relieve the Croton system of a large drain upon it.

The bill to enlarge the power of the Broadway Underground Railroad, so as to enable the company to abandon the dark tunnel 18 feet wide, and construct the road on the Arcade plan, with four tracks and sidewalks was favorably reported in the Senate to-day. On the announcement, by Senator Newbold, that parties desired to be heard on the bill, it was sent back to the committee, and next Wednesday set down to give them an opportunity to be heard. There is also a hearing on the same measure before the Assembly committee on next Wednesday.

The general street railway bill, prepared by the Railroad Commission, to provide a mode for the construction of street railroads in all cities and villages of the State, has been amended by the Senate Committee on Railroads, and favorably reported. The street railroad interests which have been quarrelling over this measure heretofore and prevented its approval by the Governor, are now apparently all united on this bill. Those connected with the National Cable Company's schemes are looking at it edgewise with indications that they may yet start a crusade in opposition.

The cable company is still trying to get its bill to extend the time of the Rapid Transit Commission, which recently laid down so many routes. Their representatives weekly come here in large numbers and have a lively contest before the committee with the opponents of the measure. They are to come back next week. The prospects of the bill are not very promising.

The bill for the purchase of Riker's Island, in Long Island Sound, for the use of the Department of Charities and Correction, has been favorably reported in the Assembly. Also the act authorizing the construction or purchase of municipal buildings for the city of New York. Included in this is the contemplated new fire-proof building for the Register's office. The city authorities represent that additional quarters have got to be provided for some of the city offices at an early day, and that unless this bill passes another will have to be presented to provide for leasing a building for the Comptroller, who is now in the county building. It is understood that the city officials have had experts examining the Stewart building on the corner of Broadway and Chambers street, making estimates as to its value and cost of alterations, with the view of purchasing that building for the city.

A petition was presented in the Senate to-day, from the New York Real Estate Exchange, for the passage of the bill to facilitate and cheapen the transfer of real estate.

There is a hitch in the bill for new parks in the Twenty-third and Twenty-fourth Wards. The opposition arises from causes not very creditable, but is of a nature too often seen in opposition to public improvement and in making provision for future growth of the city. It borders on mercenary and a disposition to levy toll on all measures possible.

The bill to enable the Harlem Railroad to enlarge and extend the Forty-second street depot 80 feet to the east has been favorably reported. They propose to build an elevated platform from this extension to the Elevated Railroad depot, and provide a large waiting-room for those who go to meet friends on trains arriving.

Among the new bills introduced this week is an act directing the Dock Department to prepare maps for and locate an exterior street 150 feet wide on the East River, from Sixty-fourth street to Ninetieth street, and the bulkheads and piers for that section. If one plan is rejected by the Sinking Fund Commissioners the second to be prepared for their approval.

Senator Plunkett introduced in the Senate, and Mr. Clarke in the Assembly, a bill authorizing the Commissioners of the Park Department to alter and revise the map of the Twenty-third Ward, heretofore made and filed by that department, as far as it relates to that section, included between Railroad avenue on the west, Webster and Sheridan avenues, between One Hundred and Sixty-second and One Hundred and Sixty-seventh streets, and Overlook avenue, by striking therefrom Morris avenue, between One Hundred and Sixty-second street and Overlook avenue, all of One Hundred and Sixty-fifth street, between Winfield place and Sheridan avenue, as laid down on the former map, discontinuing those portions of said streets and avenues, and make such other changes as may appear to them best for the good of that section of the city; make and file a new map showing the alterations made. The bill has been reported in the Assembly.

Senator Robb has introduced a bill authorizing the Park Department to change the name of Reservoir square, between Fortieth and Forty-second streets, on Sixth avenue, to Bryant Park, in honor of the late William Cullen Bryant. That has also been reported.

A bill has also been introduced in the Assembly authorizing the construction of a drawbridge across the Harlem River at Second avenue.

Mr. House, of New York, has introduced a bill providing that in all buildings in any city of this State of three or more stories high, where there shall be an elevator or hoist for the transportation or taking of persons, goods, wares and merchandise from one story to another, a good and substantial cover or covering sufficient to stop a falling elevator shall be provided by the owner or lessee of the building for every opening in the floors through which the elevator or hoist may pass, which covers shall be so constructed as to open at the approach and to close immediately after the passage of the elevator or hoist, provided, however, that the act shall not apply to buildings where the elevator does not pass through more than two floors.

The second section makes the act applicable to all buildings now erected in which elevators and hoists exist and all hereafter erected. Where the elevators or hoistways now exist the owners, lessee or lessees of the buildings shall within three months provide the covers as provided in the act. The enforcement of the act is placed in the Board of Aldermen, or Common Council, in cities, and town council in villages, and to provide such rules, regulations and penalties as will secure the proper enforcement of the act.

Mr. Kent to-day introduced a bill authorizing and directing the Board of Street Openings to proceed at once to open, widen, extend and grade Elm street with a width of not less than 100 feet to Lafayette place on the north and through the blocks to Centre street on the south to near the entrance of the Brooklyn bridge.

Mr. Haggerty introduced a bill extending the powers of the Assessment Commission, which has charge of the revision of the assessments for local improvements in the west and upper end of the city. It provides that whenever the assessment has been paid on any lot for the improvement, and the assessments on the other lots for same improvement shall be vacated, revised, or modified by the commissioners, an amount equal to the amount of reduction to which such parties would have been entitled if they had not paid the same, shall be allowed them. The amount thus awarded them shall be proportionately equal to the reduction upon other lots so revised or modified.

The bill establishing a park at Coenties slip, heretofore passed by the Senate, was amended in the Assembly, naming it "Jeannette Park" and to-day passed by that body.

The act requiring the Register to include in his searches of mortgages in examination of titles, all mortgages given for moneys loaned from the Loan Commissioners in charge of the United States deposit fund, has been favorably reported in the Assembly. This reduces one set of fees which are now required in the search of titles.

The bill for the election of the Comptroller in the city has been advanced to third reading in the Assembly, and also reported in the Senate. There is no doubt but that this change will be made. It is also probable that the bill electing a Vice-Mayor, who shall be president of the Board of Aldermen, will also pass. This is to prevent the deals like that in January last on the election of a president of that Board.

The Association of the Mason Builders.

At a meeting held at the Hotel Brunswick, "The Mason Builders' Association of the City of New York" was organized by many of the leading firms of employing masons. The objects of the association, as stated in the constitution, are "to further the interests of mason builders, and in conjunction with other organizations now existing or to be formed to promote the interests of the building trade in general. . . . To adopt such measures for the better protection of employers and employes as shall lead to the promotion of harmony between all parties engaged in the business, to arbitrate all differences, and thus to avoid the great evil of strikes, which unsettle business and drive capital into other channels of investment. . . . To demonstrate to the employes that the interests of employers and of employes are identical, that consequently all laws affecting the building interest must be considered jointly if they are to operate to the benefit of all." The officers of the association are: President, John J. Tucker; vice-presidents, Richard Deeves and John W. Hogencamp; secretaries, Charles F. Wills and Henry M. Tostevin; treasurer, Samuel Lowden. Executive committee: Marc. Eidlitz, chairman; James B. Smith, Frank C. Tucker, Frank M. Weeks and Daniel Herbert. After the election of officers, the president in his address stated that the organization of the various branches of the building trade appeared at this period to become an act of absolute necessity; that through various causes the representatives of the building trade—one of the most important industries of the city of New York and of its vicinity—as mechanics and employers, do not enjoy in the community a position in keeping with the high standard of their calling, and of its social and financial bearings on the body politic; that the most important cause leading to such a deplorable result appeared to be the want of organization, and thus of the representative power of a numerous and compact body, whose influence may at all times be felt in the business community and in the halls of the Legislature. The president further remarked that the past season clearly demonstrated the necessity, on the part of the employers in the building trade, to effectually resist all unjust and illegitimate demands of individuals or organized bodies, and of effecting general reforms of abuses, which, slowly but surely, destroy the vitality of the trade. And further, that the events of the last season made it apparent that henceforth employers in their individual or corporate capacity were not in a position to cope without well organized aid with the disturbances in the labor market, and that in this most important question the interests of all employers in the building trade are identical. The committee on organization reported that the principal architects favor the movement, and will grant it their moral support. To perfect the organization a meeting of the same will be held Tuesday next, 8 P. M., at the Hotel Brunswick.

When a Mortgagor is Not Liable.

The General Term of the Court of Common Pleas decided at its last term in the case of Smith vs. Rice [Judge Van Hoesen writing the opinion], that where a mortgage is given without an accompanying bond or promissory note, and the mortgage contains no express covenant by the mortgagor to pay the amount secured, even though it be part of the purchase money, no deficiency or personal judgment can be given on foreclosure against the mortgagor.

The New York statute (1 R. S., 738, sec. 139), provides that "no mortgage shall be construed as implying a covenant for the payment of the sum intended to be secured; and where there shall be no express covenant for such payment contained in the mortgage, and no bond or other separate instrument to secure such payment shall be given, the remedies of the mortgagee shall be confined to the lands mentioned in the mortgage." The decisions that have been made by our Courts have uniformly been that an admission of indebtedness must be made in unequivocal terms, and would not be inferred from the fact that a mortgagor intended, by executing a mortgage, to secure the payment of some debt due to the mortgagee. The debt must be due from the mortgagor to the mortgagee, and it must be collectible without a foreclosure of the mortgage, in order to entitle the mortgagee to a personal judgment against a mortgagor who has given no bond, and who has not expressly covenanted to pay the amount for which the mortgage is a security.

Where there is neither a bond nor an express covenant to pay the mortgage debt, the mortgagor is never liable unless the instrument discloses an intention on the part of the contracting parties to secure to the mortgagee a claim against him personally. An admission of indebtedness is usually an admission that an obligation exists on the part of the person who makes it to pay the debt, but circumstances may show that it does not carry with it any personal liability.

No inference of an intention to make a mortgage a personal charge upon himself can properly be drawn from the circumstance that a man gives a mortgage to secure a part of the purchase money of land that he buys. The statute clearly recognizes the fact that a mortgagee has the land to resort to, and it declares that that shall be his only resource, unless he exacts an express promise from the mortgagor to pay the debt.

In the absence of a bond and of a covenant, the presumption is that the mortgagor does not intend to make himself personally liable; and the burden lies upon the mortgagee of proving that it was the intention of the mortgagor to assume responsibility for the payment of the mortgage debt, and thus relieve the mortgagee from the duty of looking to the land for his money.

The Coal Roads and Their Future.

Mr. Austin Gallagher, who was once editor of an engineering journal, has for some years past been paying a great deal of attention to coal and the coal roads. Said he to the writer: "There is a revolution going on in the coal business, bituminous coal is taking the place of anthracite and supplying heat for the generation of steam for locomotives and manufactories. It is sold at a dollar a ton cheaper than its old relative rate as compared with the anthracite. Much has been said about monopolies, but the tendency in the carrying of coal as well as of grain, cotton and general merchandise is toward lower and still lower rates. Coal is now transported at a half a cent per ton per mile. It was not so long ago when three cents per ton was charged."

"I should judge," said the writer, "that you have no great faith in coal properties as investments."

"You are wrong," said Mr. Gallagher, "I believe that all the coal roads, Delaware & Lackawanna, Delaware & Hudson, Reading, New Jersey Central and Pennsylvania have each splended futures. No roads can be comparable to them in means for getting lucrative and steady business; but this is in the future. I think the immediate possibility is a tremendous war of the coal roads, due to the encroachment of the Reading upon the Pennsylvania road, helped by Mr. Vanderbilt. If I am right in what I hear this war is not far off, and the initiative will be taken by the Pennsylvania road. However, the Reading and the New Jersey Central will be backed by the Vanderbilt interest as well as the Garrett interest. Arbitration will finally settle the quarrel, but the battle must come before the treaty of peace."

Boundary of Land upon Channel of River.

In Maine, when the channel of a river is named as the boundary between two towns, the line is the thread of the channel. When the line runs "to the road, thence by the road" the grant is to the centre of the road, even though the measurement of distances would extend only to the side of the road. A grant of land bounded on a highway carries the fee in the highway, to the centre, unless the terms of the conveyance unequivocally exclude such construction. Nothing short of an express intention to exclude the soil of the highway will have such effect. In case of fresh-water streams, when such stream is the boundary, the deed passes the fee to its centre. The words "to the stream, thence up or down the river" in a deed pass a title to the thread of the stream. The general rule is, that when the river is the boundary the grantee takes usque filum aquæ, unless the river be expressly excluded from the grant by the terms of the deed. When the river is a boundary, the thread of the stream is the dividing line. When the channel is the boundary, the thread of the channel constitutes the boundary. [Inhabitants of Warren vs. Inhabitants of Thomastown.]

A land owner took away gravel from his own land near the sea, whereby the sea was let in to his neighbor's land and undermined it. The Supreme Court of Massachusetts has held, in the case of Mears vs. Dole, that he was liable to his neighbor for the injury thus done. A person has no right to carry away the gravel or other material off his land if the consequence would be to turn a watercourse, or to let in the sea, so as to inundate or injure the land of his neighbor. The defendant by his excavations for his own purposes brought the sea upon his land where it would not have been but for the excavation, and as a consequence it has escaped, and acted upon the plaintiff's land so as to cause damages, and for these he must be held responsible. While the sea is regarded as a common enemy, and it is a rule that each man may defend himself against its encroachments as best he can, even if thereby it washes against his neighbor's land, the rule has no application to the case at bar. The defendant was not protecting himself against the common enemy; he voluntarily introduced the enemy upon his land and allowed it to escape from there to the plaintiff's injury.

The Michigan Supreme Court, in Leal vs. Terbush, lately decided that when there is a conveyance of land with a warranty, and there is a mistake which does not go to the entire consideration of the purchase, the purchaser is not at liberty to rescind because of it. Therefore an action to rescind is not maintainable. If the supposed conveyance had been altogether void by reason of there having been no such land, or because the instrument itself was a mere nullity, or because the deed was given to carry into effect an execution sale which was void, or if the trade had been brought about by fraud, and the vendee had rescinded it on that ground, as he lawfully might, the right to reclaim the money in this form of action might be admitted.

Real Estate Department.

The attendance at the Exchange Salesroom during the past week has been good and the offerings numerous. On Saturday the foreclosure sale of the four-story stone front dwelling on the southwest corner of Seventy-fourth street and Madison avenue, on which about $46,100 was due, was adjourned until Wednesday, when it was sold for $34,000. On Tuesday the four-story dwelling No. 23 East Sixty-seventh street was offered and knocked down for $47,900 to Daniel Hennessy, who sold the same in January last for $60,000, taking in exchange a lot on Eightieth street, near Fifth avenue, at $30,000. On Wednesday the sale of the Willet's estate and of lots on Second avenue and Ninety-eighth street was largely attended. On Thursday the three and four-story brick dwelling No. 7 East Thirty-eighth street, size 37.6x197.6 to Thirty-ninth street, was sold after spirited bidding, to Samuel Sloan, for $165,500. It was held at private sale for $200,000. On the same day dwelling houses on Lexington avenue and Mitchell place, West Twenty-seventh, Twenty-ninth and Forty-third streets were sold, and the sale of fourteen lots on West Ninetieth and Ninety-first streets was adjourned to April 3d. On Friday the property Nos. 42 Broad and 48 New street was sold for $119,500.

Richard V. Harnett & Co. will, as noticed in this column last week, sell on Tuesday next, under a decree in partition, a large number of parcels, comprising the estate of the late William H. Leggett. On Pearl street, No. 404 and No. 301 are both desirable properties, as are the other down-town business stores and warehouse sites to be offered, consisting of Nos. 71 to 77 Jackson street, corner of Front street, the lots and buildings known as No. 327, No. 334 and No. 340 Front street, No. 657 Water street, and No. 382 South street. The property to be sold also includes the following well-located up-town parcels: No. 813 Sixth avenue, corner of Forty-sixth street, No. 154 West Forty-eighth street, No. 804 Sixth avenue, No. 567 Third avenue, near Thirty-seventh street, No. 9 East Sixteenth street, No. 214 West Twenty-ninth street, No. 43 East Thirteenth street, and four full lots on the south side of One Hundred and Tenth street, 150 feet east of Lexington avenue. The sale, in view of its importance, will undoubtedly attract a large attendance and result satisfactorily to all interested.

On Wednesday Richard V. Harnett & Co. will offer on liberal terms to buyers the choice plot with four four-story brick stores and dwellings, Nos. 1523 to 1529 First avenue, on the northwest corner of Eighty-first street. The neighborhood is a particularly good one, and property of the description mentioned insures a good income to its possessor. The same firm will also sell on Wednesday nine lots on the southerly side of Bergen street, 277 feet east of Clason avenue, in the city of Brooklyn.

On Thursday, the 20th inst., Richard V. Harnett & Co. will offer the valuable building and lot, No. 938 Eighth avenue, between Fifty-fifth and Fifty-sixth streets. The lot is 25x100, and is completely covered by a three-story building and extension. The site is desirable in every way, and the property suitable for investment. They will also offer on that day the handsome four-story brown stone front dwelling, No. 664 Lexington avenue, 80 feet north of Fifty-fifth street. The house is in first-class condition, elegantly decorated throughout and in every respect a particularly desirable residence.

John F. B. Smyth will sell, at No. 111 Broadway, on Wednesday next, March 19, at public auction, No. 48 Sixth avenue, 19x72.10; No. 506 West Fifty-first street, 25x100; and No. 206 East Eighty-third street, 19.9x100, on each of which are medium sized dwellings; also the four-story and basement brick dwelling, No. 211 West Forty-ninth street, near Broadway.

On Tuesday, the 25th inst., Mr. Smyth will sell the three-story and basement building, No. 26 Laight street, lot 26.6x175, running through to Vestry street, on which is standing a two-story stable, also the desirable three-story brick dwelling, No. 121 East Eighty-fifth street.

James L. Wells will offer at the Exchange Salesroom, on Wednesday, March 26th, eighteen lots, which will give to any buyer as large a percentage of increase in value within the next two years as anything that has recently been offered. These lots are situated on Sixth avenue Boulevard and One Hundred and Fifteenth and One Hundred and Sixteenth streets, a region which is bound to be immediately improved. The Metropolitan Elevated has a station at One Hundred and Sixteenth street, and this station will enjoy the distinction of being the first one to which an elevator will be attached to take passengers up and down from the street. The Astors own considerable property in this neighborhood, so that a good class of improvements is very likely to be made in the immediate future. The sale is in partition, Samuel A. Noyes being the referee and W. L. Butler the plaintiff's attorney.

Scott & Myers will sell the desirable house and lot, No. 317 West Fiftieth street, near Eighth avenue, on Thursday, March 27th. This is an executor's sale, and there is a chance of getting a good property at a cheap price.

The west side is looking up. It at length is bringing into the market dwellings that will compare with some of the first-class houses on the east side. The new and very choice dwellings on West Seventy-second street, on the north side, are offered for sale at prices far below similar structures on the east side. That is because of the far lower cost of the lots. This is an excellent chance to get a first-class dwelling at a very cheap rate. Call on C. W. Luyster, on the premises, from Nos. 441 to 459 West Seventy-second street, or Jas. R. Smith, 79 Cedar street.

An opportunity offers itself for a profitable investment to any person having a small sum of spare cash or able to withdraw it from his business, as will be seen by the advertisement of L. J. Carpenter, who offers some attractive houses on One Hundred and Thirty-second street at a moderate figure and on very easy terms. Dwellings in this location in Harlem are greatly in demand, the district from One Hundred and Twenty-fifth street to the houses advertised being almost entirely built upon. The Eighth avenue is rapidly being built up with stores, which will enable every-day necessaries to be obtained at hand by residents in this location.

The fine building plot on the southeast corner of Madison avenue and One Hundred and Twentieth street, comprising 100 feet on the avenue and 75 feet on the street, is offered at private sale. The avenue front is excavated, and sewer connection has been made. The plot faces Mount Morris Park, and is splendidly situated for building purposes. The whole of the purchase money may remain on bond and mortgage with parties who will build. Communications can be addressed to John H. Deane, the owner, at 120 Broadway.

As the west side is now attracting more than the usual amount of attention from builders and investors, our readers may find the advertisement of V. K. Stevenson, Jr., in another column, interesting and profitable reading.

Attention is called to the well located lots offered for sale by Cyrille Carreau, a diagram of which, with full particulars, appears in our advertising columns.

French's Hotel on Chatham street will be sold at public auction on April 3d.

L. Tanenbaum, of Nos. 96 to 104 Spring street, publishes a card elsewhere of interest to owners, builders and others.

M. H. Raubitschek, real estate agent, has removed to No. 1050 Second avenue, near Fifty-fifth street.

The weekly returns of Conveyances compared with the corresponding week of last year does not look so well as the previous week. But then the general average for the year so far makes a splendid showing as compared with last year. The following is the table:

Gossip of the Week.

E. H. Ludlow & Co. have made the following sales: For William C. Whitney, the four-story stone front house, No. 74 Park avenue, 24.8x60x80, to Mrs. Frances E. Ogden, for $58,000; the four-story brown stone mansion, No. 414 Fifth avenue, 32.6x195, with stable on rear, and Nos. 8, 10 and 12 West Thirty-eighth street, four-story brown stone houses, each 16.8x66, connecting with the above by a 12-foot alley way, for $298,000, for the Hendricks estate, to the trustees of William Astor; the four-story brown stone dwelling, No. 12 East Twenty-second street, 26.3x98.9, for Lawrence Turnure, for $45,000; the vacant lot, No. 8 West Eighteenth street, 26x98.9 for $22,500, to Dr. Willard Parker, Jr.; the two-story brick stable, No. 17 East Thirty-ninth street, covering the entire lot, 25x49.5, to G. M. Miller, for $20,000; the three-story brick building, No. 197 Prince street, 25x100, for $14,000; the four-story brick dwelling, No. 12 West Tenth street, 32.6x93, for the estate of Judge Davies, for $36,000; the four-story brick English basement dwelling (leasehold), No. 3 Fifth avenue, 27x100, to Dr. Dawson, for $31,000; the four-story English basement brown stone dwelling, No. 29 East Thirty-eighth street, for $37,500; the three-story stone front dwelling, No. 115 West Twenty-first street, 25x40, with extension, lot 98.9, for $23,000, to Peter Hagin, and the four-story Baltimore brick dwelling, No. 34 West Fifty-third street, 25x60, with the three-story extension, 16x32, for McCafferty & Buckley, to L. G. Woodhouse, for $105,000.

Anthony Mowbray has sold one of his three four-story first-class private dwellings on the north side of Sixty-ninth street, between Madison and Fifth avenues, being No. 15 East, size 28 x about 89, with extension, lot 100.5 feet, for $95,000, to Joseph A. Blum.

L. J. & I. Phillips have sold the four-story stone front dwelling, No. 47 West Fifty-sixth street, for $40,000, to Mr. Hart; a three-story stone front dwelling on Seventy-first street, between Lexington and Fourth avenues, for $20,000, to a Mr. Johnson; a lot on the east side of Madison avenue, between Sixty-ninth and Seventieth streets, 22 feet front, for $25,000, to Mayer Sternberger; a lot on Seventy-second street, between Madison and Fourth avenues, 23x102.2, for $32,000, to Joseph Liebmann.

Martin & Bro. have leased the property on the northeast corner of Twenty-sixth street and Broadway for a term of years to the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad Company, and Phalon, the barber, who has been located at the St. Nicholas Hotel for thirty-two years, has leased the basement.

James Aitkin has sold his four-story stone front residence, No. 464 West Twenty-third street, 22x65x100, to W. H. Streeter.

L. Froehlich has sold for James Fettretch one of the row of new four-story private dwellings, No. 220 East Seventy-second street, for about $23,750, to a Mr. Davis.

The sale is reported of four lots on the north side of Forty-eighth street, 225 feet east of Second avenue, for $30,000.

J. O. Higgins has sold for Mrs. D. Shelden the three-story brown stone house, No. 221 West One Hundred and Twenty-eighth street, 17.6x50x99.11, to Mrs. C. A. Lamson for $13,000.

J. J. Clancy has sold for Thomas H. McGraw, of Poughkeepsie, the lot 25x100.5, with the one-story brick building thereon, No. 229 West Fifty-eighth street, between Broadway and Seventh avenue, to Mrs. Colwell for $20,000.

Ch. Volzing has sold the two five-story brick stores and double tenements, Nos. 1130 and 1132 First avenue, corner Sixty-second street, to Mrs. Jacob Ruppert, for $41,000, also two similar tenements, Nos. 1134 and 1136 First avenue, to Arnold Lemoine, for $36,500, and the four-story brown stone double flat house, No. 323 East Seventy-ninth street, to Dennis McGrath, for $22,000. Mr. Volzing sold the three houses, Nos. 207, 209 and 211 East Eighty-fourth street, for $75,000, not $70,000 as reported last week, the purchaser being Charles Stepath; also the four-story and basement brown stone private dwelling, No. 25 Beekman place, 20x50x100, for Dr. E. P. Williams, to Emil Gramm, for $13,000.

M. B. Baer & Co. have sold the four-story high stoop brown stone dwelling, No. 5 East Fifty-third street, lot 21x100, for Mrs. Josephine Fisher, to Mrs. Livingston, for $37,500, and for Kalman Haas the three-story high stoop brown stone dwelling, No. 122 West Forty-seventh street, 16.8x100, for $16,000.

S. Warshing has sold for O. B. Ackerly the tenement on the southwest corner First avenue and Eighty-fifth street, to Louis Michaelis, for $24,000.

Daniel Hennessy has purchased from Messrs. Dinkelspiel & Hyman the plot of ground on the southeast corner of Fourth avenue and Seventy-third street, containing seven city lots, four on the avenue and three on the street, for $93,000. These lots sold December last for $88,000.

Jacob L. Maschke has sold his four-story flat house on the north side of Eighty-second street, east of Avenue A, 29.8x102.2, to Max Danziger, for $20,000. Mr. Danziger has also bought the lot on the north side of Sixty-ninth street, 200 feet east of Second avenue, for $5,500.

Park Commissioner John D. Crimmins has sold the three-story Nova Scotia stone front house, No. 224 East Sixty-eighth street, 18.2x48x100, to Solomon Solomon, for about $14,000, and the three-story brown stone house, No. 246 East Sixty-eighth street, 16.8x48x100, to Mr. Herman, for $13,000.

The purchasers of Farley & Son's three four-story and basement brown stone houses on Eighteenth street, east of Madison avenue, as reported last week, were No. 50, size 18x68x102.2, to W. J. Rowley, of Philadelphia, for $39,500; No. 52, size 20x68x102.2, to Mr. Richter, of No. 502 Broadway, for $42,000, and No. 56, size 19x68x102.2, to Hyman Vogel, for $40,000. Mr. L. Tanenbaum made the sale of No. 56 and has this week sold No. 54 to J. Asch for $36,000; No. 48, 24 feet front, has also been sold, price $55,000; brokers, L. J. & I. Phillips.

W. K. Aston has purchased from Mrs. M. R. Pope the four-story brick building No. 5½ Pine street, 21x73, for $108,000; broker, W. Livingston Hamersley.

E. Kilpatrick has sold the four-story and basement brown stone house No. 55 East Eightieth st, 22x60x102.2, to J. C. De La Vergne, and a similar house on the same block, No. 59, 20x60x102.2.

Thomas Rutter has sold the entire front on the west side of Avenue A, between Eighty-fourth and Eighty-fifth streets, 201x119, for $60,000.

W. K. Vanderbilt has purchased two lots on the southwest corner of Fourth avenue and Fifty-first street.

F. Zittel has sold the four-story and basement house, No. 39 East Sixty-third street, for William H. Browning, to William Luttjen, of August Belmont & Co. It is 17x72x100, and the price was $35,000. The same broker has sold the three-story brown stone house, No. 105 East Seventy-eighth street, 18.9x100, to Max Stern, of No. 539 Broadway, for $18,000.

Mr. Storm has sold the five-story marble front office building, Nos. 8 and 10 Pine street, 46.11x73.11x47x73.11, for about $350,000. We understand that the Equitable Life Assurance Society are the purchasers of this property, as well as Nos. 4 and 6 Pine street, which were transferred on Saturday last to Marcellus Hartley, and that they will be eventually joined to the building No. 120 Broadway.

Messrs. Scott & Myers have sold three lots on the south side of One Hundred and Twenty-fifth street, east of Sixth avenue, for about $42,000.

Brooklyn.

The sale of the real estate of the Knickerbocker Life Insurance Company, which took place in Brooklyn on Thursday, was quite successful. It consisted of a fine residence and grounds, twenty-five brown stone houses and other property. The amount realized was $197,360.

W. F. Corwith has sold the two-story and basement frame dwelling, No. 88½ Diamond street, to Cornelius and Ellen Roach, for $2,500.

Out Among the Builders.

Albert Wagner is preparing drawings for a seven-story warehouse, 50x120, to be erected for Heywood Brothers & Co., on their property on Cherry street, near Jefferson. The building will contain hydraulic elevators, and will be constructed very solidly throughout, for heavy storage purposes. The cost will be about $75,000.

Thayer & Robinson have the plans on the board for a first-class four-story and basement brick and brown stone private residence, 25x84, to be erected at No. 52 East Seventy-ninth street, for J. & S. Cohen, for their own occupancy, at a cost of about $40,000.

Messrs. Thom & Wilson will soon commence work on the plans for ten four-story first-class private houses of various sizes, to be erected by the well-known builder, Daniel Hennessy, on the southeast corner of Fourth avenue and Seventy-third street. Some of them will have brick fronts trimmed with brown stone and the others will be entirely of brown stone. Mr. Hennessy will expend about a quarter of a million dollars on this improvement.

Babb, Cook & Willard have the plans under way for the following structures: A two-story and attic frame cottage, 35x70, with stables, boat-house, bowling alley and garden-house attached, to be erected at Ponquogue, L. I., for Mr. Peter Gardiner, at a cost of about $30,000, and for a two-story and attic frame cottage, 28x80, to be built at Cooperstown, N. Y., for Mr. R. V. McKim, at a cost of $15,000.

J. R. Thomas is the architect for the church to be erected on the corner of Seventh avenue and One Hundred and Twenty-eighth street, for the New York Presbyterian Church, as announced in our last. The structure will have seating accommodation for some 1,600 worshippers.

Frank E. Ward has the sketches for a church and Sunday school, 42x80, to be erected for the Baptist community at Fordham, N. Y., at a cost of about $8,500. The church will accommodate about 225 people. Also for a frame cottage, 30x40, to be erected at Roseville, N. Y., for W. H. Edsall, to cost $4,500, and a similar cottage, 30x60, to be built at Orange, N. J., for C. M. Bailey, to cost $8,500. Mr. Ward is also the architect for the six three-story and basement brick and brown stone dwellings, 15x52, 16x52 and 17x52 in size, to be built on the south side of Eighty-fourth street, east of Ninth avenue, for Michael Brennan, as announced in this column December 15 last.

Charles W. Romeyn & Co. have the plans under way for a five-story brick and stone improved apartment building, 50x90, to be erected on the north side of Twenty-eighth street, west of Sixth avenue, for the estate of T. H. Smith, at a cost of about $60,000.

Parke Godwin is about to have erected a two-story brick and stone stable and carriage house, 34x60, adjoining his country residence at Roslyn, L. I., to cost about $10,000. Architect, Ernest W. Greis.

Bart. Walther has the plans for a two-story brick stable, 54x40, to be built for William Hall's Sons, on the north side of One Hundred and Fifth street, about 600 feet east of First avenue, near the East River.

John McIntyre has the plans under way for a three-story and basement brick and stone livery stable, 50x100, to be erected for John S. Merriam, on the north side of Eighty-fourth street, between Lexington and Fourth avenues, at a cost of about $12,000.

Ferdinand Fish has under way the alteration and improvement of buildings Nos. 12 and 14 Cliff street, and No. 444 Sixth avenue; he is also building extension to store of No. 216 Sixth avenue, and is converting the building No. 90 Broad street, corner of Stone, into a first-class office building, with retail stores on first floor. Mr. Fish is also preparing plans for alterations and improvements to the buildings Nos. 149 Broadway, 13 Dey street and 18 and 20 Liberty street.

A first-class stable will be built by Mrs. Colwell on the north side of Fifty-eighth street, between Broadway and Seventh avenue.

Edward Kilduff intends to improve his two lots on the south side of One Hundred and Nineteenth street, 410 feet east of Sixth avenue, probably by the erection of two 25-foot three-story and basement brown stone private dwellings.

Edward V. Loew, president of the Manufacturers' and Builders' Fire Insurance Company, will at once erect a five-story improved apartment house, 30x80, on the north side of Sixty-first street, 95 feet east of First avenue.

Charles Baxter is the architect for four five-story brick and stone improved tenements, 25x85 each, to be erected for James Meagher, on the northeast corner of One Hundred and Thirtieth street and Eighth avenue, at a cost of about $75,000. This improvement was referred to in our issue of the 8th instant.

John Brandt has the sketches in hand for two five-story brown stone apartment houses, 25x90 each, to be erected on the east side of Third avenue, between One Hundred and Third and One Hundred and Fourth streets, for —— McManus, to cost $40,000, and for a two-story store and dwelling, 25x50, to be built on the south side of Seventy-fourth street, between Second and Third avenues, for A. Irvine.

Alderman Michael Duffy will at once commence the erection of twenty-one five-story brick and stone tenement houses, 25x80 each, on One Hundred and Second and One Hundred and Third streets, between Second and Third avenues. There will be fifteen on the former street and six on the latter. Some half-dozen stores will be interspersed between the houses, occuping the first story. The improvement will cost about $350,000. The architect, Andrew Spence, is drawing the plans.

Ralph S. Townsend has the plans under way for six three-story and basement private houses, to be erected on the south side of Eighty-second street, between Ninth and Tenth avenues, for Geo. S. Miller.

James E. Ware is drawing the plans for three three-story brick private dwellings, to be built on the northwest corner of St. Nicholas avenue and One Hundred and Fifty-second street, for Charles Fleming.

The Grand United Order of Oddfellows Building Association has just been incorporated with a capital of $25,000, in 2,500 shares, of $10 each. William E. Gross, R. A. Burgundy, Robert H. King, and twenty-one others are the incorporators and the trustees for the first year. The object is to erect a suitable hall or temple for the fraternity for the benefit and occupancy of its lodges. The stock may be increased to $75,000.

Julius Kastner has the plans for a five-story tenement, to be built for J. Miller, on the north side of Eighty-eighth street, between Third and Lexington avenues.

Colonel James H. Jones is about to have extensive alterations made to No. 47 Broadway, 26.3x197, which will be converted into a handsome office building, with elevator, iron stairs, &c., at a cost of about $60,000. The plans are in the hands of D. & J. Jardine. The same architects have the designs for a two-story and attic brick residence, 50x50, to be built for E. W. Coggeshall, at Morristown, N. J., and for a two-story brick parsonage, 38x50, to be erected at Yonkers, N. Y., for the First Presbyterian Church of that city, at a cost of $10,000.

Brooklyn.

The South Brooklyn Central Railroad Company intends to erect a large two-story frame depot on the northeast corner of Bergen street and Albany avenue, running through to Deane street. It will have a frontage of 190 feet on the street and 107 feet on the avenue, and a depth of 214 feet, and will cover some twelve full lots. The cost will be about $25,000. The architects, Thayer & Robinson, of New York, are drawing the plans.

E. F. Gaylor has plans for extensive alterations to the three-story brick dwelling on South Eleventh street, near Third street, at a cost of about $5,000; owner, Loftis Wood.

Amzi Hill has plans for a four-story brick flat, 32x73, to be erected on Adams street, between Myrtle avenue and Johnson street.

King & Swasey have the sketches for a three-story and basement brick Queen Anne dwelling, 20x65, to be erected on the north side of Hancock street, between Nostrand and Marcy avenues; cost, about $9,000; owner, John P. Adams.

Notes and Items.

The commissioners in the matter relative to acquiring title to lands for the southern approach to the Madison avenue bridge across the Harlem River have completed their assessment, a copy of which will be found at the Department of Public Works until April 21, 1884. The limits embraced by the assessment include the blocks of land between 4th and 6th avenues, 125th, 144th and exterior streets.

Special Notices.

Thomas J. Crombie always has on hand every kind of lumber adapted for building purposes. Mr. Crombie says that he handles six to eight million feet of North Carolina yellow pine annually. His yard is at the foot of Ninety-second and Ninety-third streets, East River, New York, where he can be communicated with by telephone. His card will be noticed on the outside back page.

J. Romaine Brown, the well-known west side real estate broker, has his card in another column. He has been in the business for thirty-three years, and is still at his old office on the southeast corner of Broadway and Thirty-third street. He can be communicated with by telephone; call 381, Thirty-ninth street.

The card of Charles Harft appears in another column. Mr. Harft has been for a long time in the real estate business, and is a notary public. His office is at No. 151 Eighth street, corner of Fourth avenue, New York.

BUILDING MATERIAL MARKET.

BRICKS.—A change for the better may be recorded on the market for Common Hards, and due in the main to the more favorable conditions of the weather. Contractors have been enabled to resume work suspended through the influence of the recent cold and others are encouraged to push forward preparations, with the result to be found in an increased demand for brick and the promise of still further growth, with values stiffening up somewhat on all grades. Really fine to choice stock, however, shows the most solid improvement, as buyers are somewhat particular in making selections and bid a small premium on offerings showing any desirable quality. It is probable, however, that the last-named feature is no more marked than usual at this season of the year, and will gradually adjust itself as supplies become more plentiful. On sales made since our last the range has been a little wide, and, according to reports, show $5.50@6.25 for Jerseys; $6 00@6 75 for Staten Islands; $6.50@7.25 for Long Island, and $7.25@7.75@8.00 for Haverstraws, with probably nothing now available at inside figures and the outsides a little full for general trading. Indeed, it may be just as well to note that the market has no special inclination to buoyancy and would not absorb many additional supplies at ruling rates. The gain is simply in the fact that business has reached a working basis again, and operators generally feel that it will require two or three weeks' test to determine the true status of affairs. There is unquestionably an ample supply of brick, but it remains to be seen how it can be adjusted to the outlet. We have reports of a good quick demand for Pales and nothing in any way desirable now available for less than $3.75 per M, while really good stock would command $4 and possibly more. As yet Front brick of all kinds are somewhat nominal, but the impression appears to be that rates will not differ to any important extent from last season, and the changes, if any, are likely to favor the buyer.

HARDWARE.—Demand still somewhat erratic and uncertain in volume, with the market not altogether satisfactory. Considerable stock has been placed in one way or another this season, but buyers have scarcely taken hold in a vigorous, stimulating manner, and the market is behind in many ways. Still the reports from travelers commence to improve somewhat, and this, with the prospect of a better home trade, affords basis for more or less hope over the immediate future. Some new lists and discount sheets have lately been issued, but cover no ground of interest to our readers.

LATH.—Not much if any improvement has taken place in the market since out last. Offerings have continued small but the demand apparently quite as indifferent as ever and buyers claim to be in a position to stand off for some time to come. Receivers certainly have found it advisable to modify the views entertained in some instances at the close of our last report, and we now find a pretty general admission that $2.25 per M is certainly the top. Sales are said to have been made lower, and it is more than likely that the above figure would have to be shaded to secure customers, but the odd lots changing hands hardly afford a fair test, and we await further developments, calling the position in the meantime more or less nominal.

LUMBER.—There has been no solid improvement in the tone and character of the general market. The weather has received a great deal of abuse for some weeks past from yard dealers, as an important factor in checking the distribution of retail lots, but pleasant days seldom added greatly to sales, and very few orders have accumulated upon the books awaiting an opportunity for delivery. Consumption, in fact, is not only slow now, but promises to continue so, as both builders and manufacturers feel too uncertain over the future to invest in material beyond necessity clearly shown. This following the very light winter trade just past, leaves quite an accumulation of stock in yard much less broken than usual, and is of course reflected upon the wholesale market. Some dealers naturally have had better luck than others, with the winter trade owing to fortunate situation of yard, etc., but in a general way supplies are above the average for the season, both in quantity and assortment. Under the circumstances, it does not take a very large amount of stock to create a surplus afloat, and when such occurs prices have to suffer, and more especially if quality is of a character to require apology and explanation on the part of sellers. Advices from primary points now available would seem to indicate that manufacturers are doing what they can to keep shipments down, but are not entirely successful in preventing a surplus occasionally appearing.

Eastern Spruce has not been doing first-rate by any means, but just how poor the market was it is difficult to say. Receivers do not in all cases appear as communicative as when business is in more prosperous condition and the "private terms" and "about old rates" way of reporting leads to the inference that values undergo frequent clipping even for the best stock, while inferior is unquestionably without sale until the cost is placed very low. The past three years has demonstrated very clearly that this is no market for short and narrow stuff with business in most prosperous condition, and manufacturers who send undesirable cargoes with trade in its present state, can hardly expect anything better than a slaughter. Stocks of 9 and 10 inch and upward, however, will always bear some little addition, and attractive bills, if not too plenty, stand some chance and sellers hope to retain about ruling prices. There cannot be much buoyancy, as the low price of Yellow Pine acts as a weight upon the market. The range of quotations may be placed at $13.00@14.00 for the lower run of cargoes, and thence along up to $15.00@16.00, according to quality, with a few extra difficult specials commanding somewhat higher.

White Pine finds some little home demand, and especially so on the finer grades suited to manufacturers wants, with no very large compensating supply. Still there appears to be no actual scarcity as yet and sellers gain simply a steadier tone on values. Coarse stuff is plenty enough here, and there will be more available as the season opens, with a general feeling current that unless demand extends into much fuller form it will be necessary to modify figures of cost to a more decided extent than yet shown. Exporters show continued fair interest, but no special anxiety, the majority awaiting actual orders, and figuring very closely on cost in most instances. We quote $17.50 @19.00 for West India shipping boards; $28.00@30.00 for South American do.; $14.00@16 00 for box boards, and $16.50@18.00 for extra do.

Yellow Pine has offered few encouraging features for the selling interest. Now and then an order comes upon the market, but there are a dozen agents ready to pounce upon it, and they create such sharp competition that buyers have about all the advantage. Some sales are whispered at figures lower than any yet openly named, and while as yet lacking confirmation, the rumor seems to excite no surprise. Many of the recent f. o. b. contracts have now about been filled at Southern ports, and while trade in that form is still fair manufacturers are more at liberty to negotiate, but they are rarely successful in finding liberal customers on either home or foreign calls; nor do they feel at all inclined to send forward randoms to this market at least until there is some assurance that there will be a chance to get at least cost out of them. Yards are pretty full and the assortment good for the season. We quote as follows: Randoms, $18@21,50 per M; Specials, $21@22 do.; Green Flooring Boards, $22@23; Dry do., do., $23@24; Siding $22@23 do.; Cargoes f. o. b. at Atlantic ports, $14@14.50 for rough, and $19@22 for dressed. Cargoes f. o. b. at Gulf ports, $13@14 for rough, and $18@20 for dressed.

Hemlock at the moment is dull and simply nominal so far as the wholesale market may be concerned, but a little stock could probably be placed without much trouble. We have been shown a letter from Pennsylvania predicting a larger cut of hemlock this winter, owing to an increased demand for bark.

Hardwoods show no changes of importance. There is a fair home trade and some export call for the finer goods, and by constant crowding poorer stock is worked off, but culls in all cases have to be parted with at low figures, and there is too many of the latter for comfort. We quote at wholesale rates by car-load about as follows: Walnut, $65@110 per M; ash, $35@40 do.; oak, $30@55 do.; maple, $20@32.50 do.; chestnut, $25@30 do.; cherry, $40 @75 do.; whitewood, $27@35 do., do.; elm, $22@25; hickory, $45@52.50 do.

Shingles continue steady all around, and somewhat firmer, if anything, on shipping stocks, as the recent sales reduced the supply available. We quote Cypress at $8 per M for 5x20 and $10 do. for 6x20 regularly assorted shipping. Pine shipping stock $2.50 for 18 inch, and Eastern saw grades at $2.50@4.50 for 16 inch, as to quality and to quantity. Machine dressed cedar shingles quoted as follows: for 30 inch, $15@20 for A, and $20@28.50 for No. 1; for 24 inch, $10.50@15 for A and $15@20.50 for No. 1; for 20 inch, $7@9.50 for A and $9@12.50 for No. 1.

GENERAL LUMBER NOTES.

THE WEST.

The Chicago Northwestern Lumberman reports;

CHICAGO.

The shipments during February this year, when compared with shipments during the corresponding month in 1883, make a favorable exhibit. The yards, as usual, are dilatory about making returns of stock on hand, but enough have already been received by the secretary of the Exchange sufficient to show that aggregate stocks were greatly reduced during the last month. Over 300,000,000 feet of lumber is represented by the returns already in, and an estimate on this basis shows a decrease of stock on hand of over 100,000,000 feet since February 1, and of 69,000,000 as compared to March 1, 1883. A favorable feature of this season's business is, that while shipments have been heavy, receipts have been very light, the conservative disposition of trade being opposed to buying for the future, and the stocks being so ample that winter receipts by rail have been deemed unnecessary.

Some debate is going on among the holders of good lumber as to whether present prices can be maintained in view of the amount of stock on hand. The yards here hold a considerable stock of selects and uppers—probably proportionately more than any other market in the country. This market is in the habit of securing a large amount of good lumber each season, and all the world has an opportunity of securing what it wants here as nowhere else. The eastern demand the past winter for uppers, especially thick lumber, has been unusually light. The manufacturing demand at home has not been as brisk as in some former years. This condition naturally makes holders of heavy stocks a little anxious, the anxiety pertaining mostly to thick clears. Selects and 1¼ and 1½ clears are thought to be safe from all decline, though holders would like to see a livelier demand for even these. The results of inquiry show that the stock of good lumber anywhere outside of the yards in this city is not large, and it is safe to say that the lumber on hand will be wanted as fast as it is dry enough to use.

During the past week there has been plenty of snow and cold weather for logging purposes, but in several of the districts the operators are losing their disposition to push work. Some of the men and teams are coming out of the woods, and many others will be out in a few days. Logs are plentiful everywhere, and the manufacturers are feeling well over the fact that they have been banked at minimum expense.

As the season progresses, trade in hardwoods seems to be assuming a somewhat more satisfactory tone. Sales are quite large in amount, some firms, indeed, reporting their transactions for February to have been as large or larger than in the same month of any previous year. Profits are not as satisfactory, but are steadily becoming more so as old lumber is replaced by that bought at the prevailing low prices.

LUMBERMAN AND MANUFACTURER, MINNEAPOLIS, MINN.

The indications of a break up in the long cold winter are very slight, and no great change can be expected in the trade of the Northwest until after the spring has reach us. The sales are increasing and inquiries becoming numerous for large lots for future delivery. We have this week met several buyers from Southern Minnesota, Iowa and Dakota who are "feeling" the market and all of them seem confident of a good spring trade. The general opinion seems to be that lumber has struck bottom prices. The job lots are about all absorbed and the few holders of choice stocks are perfectly satisfied with the prospective demand for all surplus.

The pineries of the three States have been visited by light snows, which keep the roads in a most perfect condition imaginable, and now give promise of another month's splendid hauling. The figures are not yet possible as to how much will be cut, but the long season has worn out the men and teams and probably many will come out before the roads give out. We think prices on logs may run low, but advise all holders not to be in a hurry to sell logs. If you have any under brush, tops and knots, sell them; good logs will be badly needed.

FOREIGN.

The Liverpool report of the Timber Trade's Journal notes the sale by public auction of the cargo of sawn pitch pine, timber and deals, ex Nordens Droning, from Pensacola. The writer says that prices realized were fair as things go now; at the same time it must be borne in mind that the wood was of small average, being only 25 cubic ft. per log, and the girthy wood was short in length. The cargo averaged in price, all round, nearly 4d. per foot. The prices obtained were for: 19 to 31 ft. long 16 to 19 in. deep 17d. per foot; 16 to 25 do. do. 15 do. 15¾d. do.; 24 to 36 do. do. 14 do. 16d. do.; 15 to 23 do. do. 14 do. 15d. do.; 30 to 39 do. do. 13 do. 15½d. do ; 23 to 29 do. do. 13 do. 15d. do.; 16 to 23 do. do. 13 do. 14¾d. do.; 30 to 40 do. do. 12 do. 14½d. do.; 29 ft. and under 12 do. 14d. to 14¾d. do.; 30 to 43 ft. long, 11 do. 13¼d. to 14d. do.; 29 ft. and under 11 do. 13½d. do.; 27 to 43 ft. long, and 10 and 9 do. 13½d. do.; Beam fillings, 10 to 13 do. 13½d. do.; planks 2 to 4 in. by 10 to 13 in. wide 12d. do.

The Journal also has the following on the Hardwood trade:

There is plenty doing at the West India docks just now; indeed, it is a long time since we saw so much activity there. The brokers are fully employed measuring and preparing the recently arrived cargoes for sale, and certainly the way in which the Dock Company have dealt with the unusually large arrivals of stock is most creditable to the warehouse keeper and those employed under him. A few years since it would have been quite impossible, with the old machinery, to land and house the wood as is now being done so satisfactorily.

Much has been said about the present heavy stock of Honduras wood now here, but we learn from a very reliable quarter that there is comparatively little left of the season's cutting to come forward, the steamers having brought the wood over much earlier than was possible in former years by sailing ships. We think our readers who are specially interested in the mahogany trade will do well to note this fact.

The stock of American black walnut logs has increased considerably of late. Well-squared large-sized logs of straight growth sell readily at good prices, but it is otherwise with the small rough wood. Several good parcels of 5 inch Italian walnut wood planks from Genoa have recently come to hand, and if we are rightly informed have already been sold. The stock of rosewood is heavy and sales are few.

NAILS.—The general market has undergone no change of a decided character. Some dealers report less business, some more and on the average the movement keeps up to about the former volume and requires the usual assortment of stock to meet the selections made by customers in attendance. Offerings have balanced the outlet very well, and holders were in most cases quite ready to accept bids at former figures. The quotations stand at $2.60@2.65 per keg for 10d. to 60d. on ordinary orders, but an allowance of 5@10c. per keg is made on large orders.

At a meeting of the Atlantic States Nail Association, held at Richmond, Va., on Thursday, the regular list rates were fixed on a basis of $2.60 per keg for 10d to 60d, the same figure recently adopted at Pittsburg.

PAINTS AND OILS.—So far as it goes the market is in good enough form, with prices well maintained, and the buyers in attendance bidding promptly. The volume of demand, however, is not altogether satisfactory, and there appears to be more or less disappointment over the extent of trade as thus far developed this spring. Offerings are fair, and any ordinary selection can be made without difficulty. Linseed oil meets with about an average demand; the supply is not abundant, and holders remain firm at 56@58 for domestic, and 58@59 for foreign. Spirits turpentine goes out slowly and without important change in value. Quoted 36@38 per gallon, according to size of invoice.

PITCH AND TAR.—Trade has been a little better in some cases, but was met by a fair general offering and former rates accepted. We quote pitch $2.25@ 2.30 per bbl., and tar $2.50@3.00 do., according to quantity, quality and delivery.

SLATE.—Through the courtesy of John Galt, Esq., of this city, we are in receipt of a copy of the Slatington News, published in the great slate region of Pennsylvania, under date of February 27th. From the columns of the News we obtain the following report upon the slate trade for the year 1883:

With this, our fifth annual report, in detail, of the slate shipments of this section, as well as the aggregate of those from other fields, we congratulate our people on what was, on the whole, a very satisfactory year, prices having been well maintained and the output promptly disposed of, leaving the stock on hand at the close of the season at its lowest ebb.

As the winter has been one of unusual severity, only moderate additions have been made, and in consequence, the spring demand will very soon clear the banks, if the present numerous inquiries of the trade for quotations on large and small lots have any significance, as of course they have.

The result will be, we think, that the prices recently agreed upon by the Exchange will be supported, if not bettered, during the ensuing season; although we are frank to express the opinion that no further attempt should be made for the present to advance them, lest thereby we expose ourselves to the inroads of the foreign article, which to some extent found a foot-hold through the port of New Orleans last year. At present prices, however, we entertain no apprehension other than that our manufacturers, as last season, will be unable to meet the demands of the one ensuing, although every effort is being made to take good care of them, there being, of new and large uncoverings, no less than from six to a dozen under contract, some of which will produce largely this year.

The News also shows shipments of 32,210 cases school slates; 3,463 cases blackboards, 1,557 cases, 20,318 pieces, and 36¾ carloads flagging, 47 cases, 232 pieces mantels, 28 cases hearths, 31½ cars sawed slate, 1 car shaved slate, and remarks additionally as follows: By comparing the report with that of last year, it will be seen that there is not any very material difference in the shipments of school slate, while the amount of roofing slate is hardly equal to that of last year. At first view this may seem strange, but when we come to look at the matter it is very easily explained. Last year was one of the best since the panic. At the beginning of that year our operators were well supplied with slate stock of all sizes which had been accumulating on their banks for a period of years, hence when the market opened there was no difficulty in supplying orders. The case was quite different when the trade opened last spring; but few slates were on hand, and as fast as they could be placed on the banks they were shipped. In fact, there was not sufficient to supply the demand, for some of our operators carried orders on their books for months before they could fill them. It is, therefore, plain that if the shipments of 1883 fall below those of 1882, the reason is we had not the slate and hence could not send away what we did not have. The slate was not made.

Within the last two or three years our shipments to Europe have fallen off considerably, but this is more than counterbalanced by the large increase of home trade. Shortly after the panic, when slate reached minimum prices, it would pay to send them to Europe in large quantities, but when prices reached a more respectable figure the high freight took away most of the profit, so that slate was not so generally sent to a foreign market. But still a great amount of our slate is sent abroad to almost every country in the world. Our home trade, though rapidly increasing, is still in its infancy, and the time is not far distant when we will not be able to supply even this. There is now every indication that the year we have just entered upon will be a good one for the trade. More quarries are being put in operation than ever before, while extensive improvements are being made all around us, and all signs betoken a lively season.

MORTGAGES.

NOTE.—The arrangement of this list is as follows: The first name is that of the mortgagor, the next that of the mortgagee. The description of the property then follows, then the date of the mortgage, the time for which it was given, and the amount. The general dates used as headings are the dates when the mortgage was handed into the Register's office to be recorded.

Whenever the letters "P. M." occur, preceded by the name of a street in these lists of mortgages, they mean that it is a Purchase Money Mortgage, and for fuller particulars see the list of transfers under the corresponding date.

JUDGMENTS.

In these lists of judgments the names alphabetically arranged, and which are first on each line, are those of the judgment debtor. The letter (D) means judgment for deficiency. (*) means not summoned. (†) signifies that the first name is fictitious, real name being unknown. Judgments entered during the week, and satisfied before day of publication, do not appear in this column but in list of Satisfied Judgments.
